P R E F A C E.

To fulfill its first purpose a work of the character here submitted to the public must be accurate in every possible particular. That it should be entirely so is not to be expected, but it may be free from any appreciable number of errors, and the precautions taken in the preparation of this particular work are such as to warrant the presumption that within reasonable limits this end has been attained.

The index or reference to recorded plats, a new feature in atlas work, is designed particularly to serve the convenience of those who deal in real estate.

The absence for more than a generation of an up-to-date, reliable reference map of Columbiana County has been a hardship, not alone to conveyancers, but also to buyers, sellers and mortgagees, and a source of much needless confusion and expense.

If this work shall prove as accurate as it has been the effort of the compilers to make it, reference to it in the preparation of conveyances will render the labors of future abstractors and conveyancers lighter and provide against many possible boundary line disputes and many possible inconsistencies in the public records. The importance of so drawing instruments affecting realty that they may be entirely intelligible to future generations, grows with the age of titles and the increase in the volume of the public records, and no possible precaution against a lack of clearness should be neglected. Reference to a published map of accepted reliability is the next best thing to reference to a recorded plat, and either one adds much to the clearness of a description of lands.

In the compilation of this work all possible diligence has been exercised to the end that it might be entitled to rank as an authority in its field, but the amount of detail involved prohibits the possibility of perfection, and for those discrepancies which may have crept in the publishers respectfully beg the indulgence of the public.

HISTORICAL SKETCH

OF

COLUMBIANA COUNTY, OHIO

THE earliest settlement in Columbiana county is an open question.

Tradition credits John Quinn, a hunter, with maintaining a cabin near Calcutta's site in 1792. Col. Boquet established a camp in Middleton township about the same time; but the best claim to the honor was probably gained by one Carpenter in 1797, when he cleared a tract near West Point's site, built a home and removed his family thither.

There was a tragic incident following Carpenter's home building that had fair to plunge the entire territory into a terrible Indian war. A noted Indian chief called "White Eyes" stopped at the Carpenter home in an intoxicated condition and requested a drink of water. A son of Carpenter essayed to wait upon the redskin, but, not moving fast enough to suit the latter, he was menaced by the Indian's tomahawk.

The spirited boy replied sharply to the savage, whereupon the latter pursued young Carpenter around the cabin trying to strike the youth with the tomahawk. The boy watched his chance and, making a quick dash into the cabin, he seized a rifle and shot the drunken "White Eyes" dead.

The casualty, occurring in a time of peace, led to young Carpenter's being arrested on a murder charge. He was taken before the territorial court at Steubenville, where he was tried but promptly acquitted, on the grounds of self-defence.

All the Indians of the neighborhood were wildly excited over the affair, as "White Eyes" was high in his own people's councils and influential with many other tribes.

Great efforts to placate the savages were made, and Bazaleel Wells, of Steubenville, headed a subscription fund which aggregated $300, for the benefit of "Mrs. White Eyes," which, when presented, oiled the troubled waters.

This incident proved to be at once the last Indian blood shed in the territory, and a crimson baptism for the, to be, great County of Columbiana.

The county was erected March 25, 1803, from parts of Washington and Jefferson counties, almost coincidentally with the erection of the State of Ohio from the Northwest territory.

Gov. Edward Tiffin, on April 6th, signed the bill which made the young county a legal and political entity.

At this time Columbiana embraced the larger part of Carroll county, all of Stark to the Tuscarawas River, including the sites of Canton and Massillon, and five southern townships now in Mahoning county. The fanciful name of the county was designed as an honor to the memory of Christopher Columbus and Queen Anne.

In 1803 but five townships were comprised in the taxable sub-divisions of the county, viz: Springfield, Middleton, St. Clair, Salem and Center.

The first county seat of government and justice was located in the barn of Mathias Lower in Fairfield township.

On July 26, 1803, a Court of Common Pleas was opened in this humble structure by Gov. Tiffin's appointees—Calvin Pease, President Judge, assisted by Associate Judges William Smith, Henry Bachman and Robert Simison.

The Grand Jury appointed Obadiah Jennings prosecuting attorney and John Crozer, sheriff. Reasin Beall, of Steubenville, was appointed clerk of the court and they were open for business.

November 20, 1803, the court again convened in New Lisbon in Christian Smith's tavern. The most important case tried was an indictment on a charge of riot, with James Glass, George Hooten, Thomas Bruce and Noah Anderson as defendants.

Adam Poe became surety for the appearance of the young men the following June, when they were dismissed without disgrace.

The twenty-two members of the November Grand Jury received $32.70 for their work for the term, Obadiah Jennings was paid $50 for the year and the clerk and sheriff were paid by fees.

The first attorneys admitted to the bar were James Allison, John B. Gibson and Robert Moore, the court qualifying them on March 27, 1804.

On June 18, 1805, William Larwell was appointed "inspector of flour" on a fee system of payment, but the perquisites were doubtless very slim.

The first Court House in Lisbon occupied lot No. 166, where the rear part of the present structure stands. In September, 1803, the Grand Jury authorized the payment "to Lewis Kinney of $150 for building a log court house and jail upon lot No. 166."

The inference is that Mr. Kinney donated the ground in order to get the work.

This same year, Mr. Kinney donated eight lots, on his plat of New Lisbon, at the corner of High and Market Streets to the county as a site for buildings "for the purposes of worship and education." As a means of securing to New Lisbon the county seat he was afterwards induced to change his donation to cover the eight lots now occupied by the public square and Court House, the log Court House and jail already occupying one of said lots.

Mr. Kinney seems never to have disturbed the county's title to the two lots on the west side of Market at High Street, as in March, 1838, the County Commissioners authorized the Auditor "to request bids on specifications for a new prison on the square on the hill." This jail was completed in 1840 and still boasts all the latest improvements and sanitary conveniences of that year.

Isaac Pearce was appointed sheriff in 1806 and the same court granted a certificate of naturalization to David Graham, a native of Ireland. Graham's signature to the court record rivals "copperplate" in clearness.

November 18, 1806, Rev. John Stough, a German Lutheran minister, was granted the first "license to solemnize marriage contracts." Obadiah Jennings resigned as prosecutor at the end of this term and Elderkin Potter was appointed his successor at a "salary" of $80 per annum.

Business before the court rapidly increased with the growth of population and in June, 1807, David Scott was appointed sheriff and William Heald county surveyor.

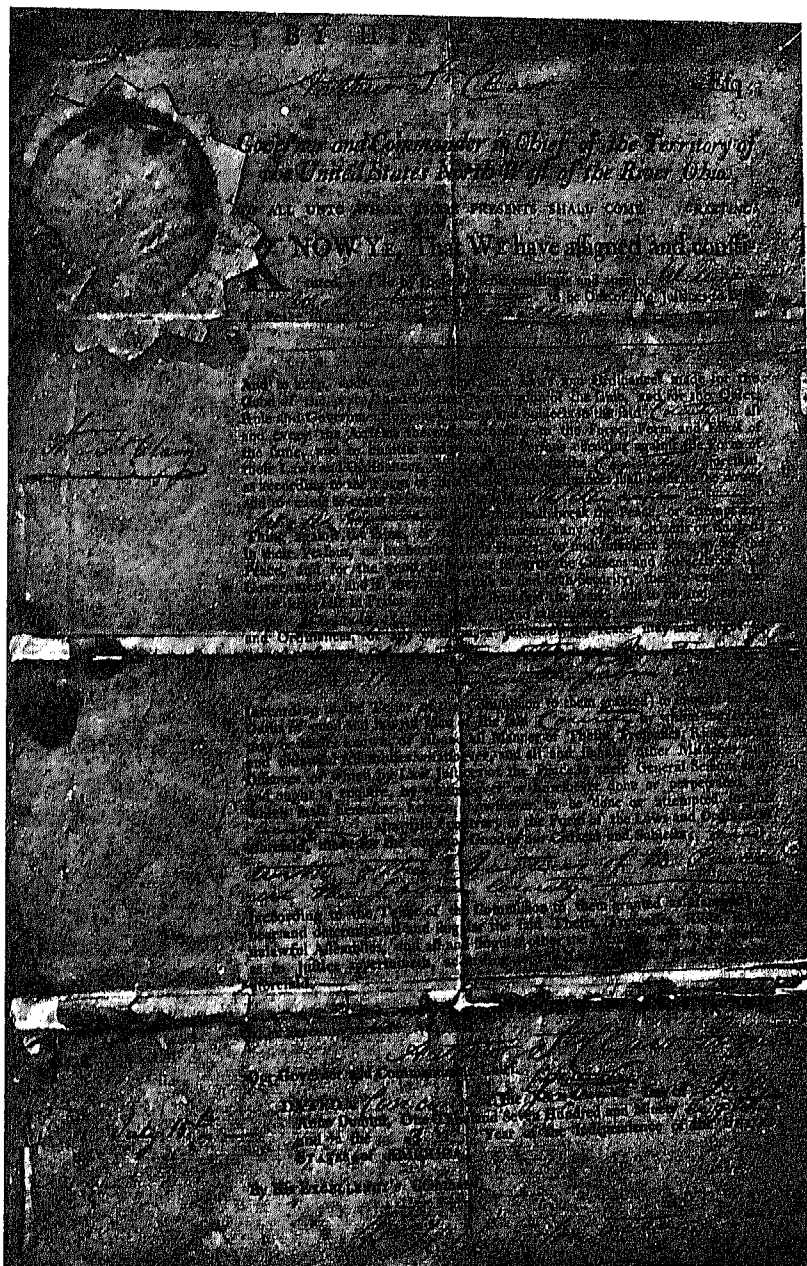

The first jail was a brief first story in the log building under the room in which the court sat. Tradition states that one MacKinroe, who had formed an undue affection for a neighbor's horse in 1804, "escaped from the jail by pulling aside the blanket before the window and walking away."

David Davis that fall completed a house beside the jail for the jailer to reside in and keep in closer touch with his wards. The fact that this crude prison was adequate to the needs of the county for nearly forty years is eloquent proof of the high character of the builders of the county.

In 1815 a contract was let to William Harbaugh for the erection of a new and modern Court House. It was completed in 1817 and stood on the northwest corner of the square, its cost, with bell, being slightly over $5000.

This building was demolished about 1884 and its site is now occupied by the lonely cannon which stands guard over the band stand on the opposite corner of the square.

The present fine structure cost, as it stands to-day, about $130,000 and is amply adequate to all needs for some years to come. The sub-basement is occupied in front on one side by the Lisbon

COMMISSION OF WILLIAM WELLS, ESQ.

The bail was probably a hide of some of Poe's game trophies as the record relates "bail piece is in the room of Adam Poe."

This same month John Milligan was elected to the Senate and Richard Beeson representative to the Legislature at Chillicothe.

Banking Co., and on the corner by the Post Office. The main floor contains the offices of the Treasurer, Auditor, Commissioners, Recorder, Surveyor, Probate Court and Prosecutor. The second floor is occupied by the Circuit and Common Pleas Court room, Clerk of Courts, Sheriff, court stenographer, jury rooms and law library. The cellar contains boiler-rooms, toilet-rooms for the public, barber shops and bath-rooms.

The structure is a beautiful piece of architectural work, and is of the most substantial nature, being entirely of stone exterior, hard wood interior with tile floors in corridors, iron mantels, electric light, sanitary plumbing, etc. The building is surmounted by a handsome and lofty tower which bears a fine clock and a large bell. The stone of which the building is constructed was all quarried in the county.

The first infirmary was completed in 1830. It was never at best much of an affair and seemed not to enjoy sufficient patronage to excite much public interest.

Stark county, erected January 1, 1809, was originally largely a part of Columbiana county, as the following record in Common Pleas Court relates: "Report of the Committee appointed to fix the seat of justice in Stark county, viz: To the Honorable Court of Common Pleas, County of Columbiana, State of Ohio. The undersigned two of the Commissioners appointed by the Legislature of the State of Ohio for the purpose of fixing the seat of Justice in the County of Stark report that we have attended to that duty and have selected lot No. 30 and have drove a stake thereon in the town plat of Canton, as recorded in the Recorder's office in the County of Columbiana, as the most proper place for the seat of justice in the County of Stark aforesaid. Given under our hands and seals the twentieth day of April, A. D. 1808."

ELI BALDWIN, [L. S.]

"Recorded by REASIN BEALL, Clerk."

The site of Canton at this time was owned by Bazaleel Wells, of Steubenville, and he recorded a deed of gift of the aforementioned lot, at New Lisbon, to a committee of Cantonians for the purpose outlined.

In the same instrument he agreed to donate three-fourths of the "neat proceeds" of the sale of all lots in Canton, sold and unsold, of which he was original sole proprietor, to the embryo County of Stark, "to be used in defraying the expense of erecting the requisite public buildings for the business of the county"—indicating that there were "Carnegies" before the advent of Andrew.

The fall of 1809 witnessed the first general state election in which the following vote was cast for the successful county candidates:

Representatives (three to elect) :
John Crumbacker.....	958	} Includes Stark county vote.
William Harbaugh .....	951
George Clark .....	536
Sheriff:
David Scott .....		415
Coroner:
David Hostetter .....		579
Commissioners:
Jno. Hindman .....		251
Jno. Crozer .....		127
Jos. Richardson .....		408

"Certified by Reasin Beall, Clerk; Alex. Snodgrass, J. P.; Joseph Springer, J. P., October 17 1809."

Jeremiah Morrow was the first representative in Congress from this district. David Scott was the first Auditor elected by popular vote. In 1821 he received 959 votes, a plurality of 344. Joseph Gillingham was the first elected treasurer. With no opposition he received a total of 3025 votes in the election of October 9, 1827, and George Duck received a majority for the office of Assessor, just instituted, on the same date.

THE INFIRMARY

In 1872 the "Poor House" gave way, under pressing demands, to the County Infirmary. It is quite a creditable institution, and, under Supt. E. R. Riddle, is kept up in an admirable manner. He has an area of 334½ acres of farm under his care, in a highly cultivated state. The principal buildings and their dimensions are, viz:

Main building, 100 feet frontage, three stories, forty feet deep, brick; insane building, sixty feet frontage, two and a half stories, twenty-five feet deep, brick; engine house forty-eight feet frontage, one story, twenty feet deep, brick; laundry buildings, one story, frame.

All the buildings are steam heated, but still depend on kerosene oil for illumination. Mr. Riddle harvests over 100 acres of hay and thirty acres of wheat each summer from the farm, and practically all vegetables and truck used are raised on the premises.

At present the inmates number about one hundred in the infirmary building and twenty-five in the insane department. A large white barn forms a pleasing contrast to the eye, from a distance, to the bright red brick buildings of the institution. All the buildings are kept well painted and in good repair.

The two points on which Columbiana county is lamentably deficient, as regards county buildings, are the long obsolete county jail and the entire absence of a county hospital.

From a humanitarian standpoint the latter feature is both inexcusable and indefensible. The county has comparatively no indebtedness compared with its resources, yet its sick or wounded poor are at the mercy of the naturally inadequate facilities of the infirmary, or the meagre charity of a cold and uninterested public—a condition which is not creditable to our twentieth-century brand of civilization.

HISTORY

The first recorder of the county was Reasin Beall, appointed by the court as follows, verbatim:

"STATE OF OHIO,
COLUMBIANA COUNTY, ss:

The undersigned Associate Judges of the Court of Common Pleas for the County of Columbiana aforesaid: To all whom these presents shall come, greeting:

Know ye, that we in confidence of the abilities, integrity, and patriotism of Reasin Beall, of said county, Esquire, have appointed and by these presents do appoint him, the said Reasin Beall, Recorder for the said county: To have, hold, execute and enjoy all duties, rights, privileges and emoluments appertaining to said office for the term of seven years from the date of these presents, if he shall so long behave himself well in said office.

In testimony whereof we have hereunto set our hands and affixed our seals the twenty-sixth day of July, Anno Domini 1803.

ROBERT SIMISON, [L. S.]
HENRY BACHMAN, [L. S.]
WILLIAM SMITH, [L. S.]

Recorded November 29, 1803.
R. BEALL, Recorder.

The first Supreme Court was, like the Common Pleas Court, held in the Mathias Lower barn, in Fairfield township, on June 14, 1803. Samuel Huntington and William Sprigg were on the bench and Reasin Beall was acting clerk.

The first sitting of this court in Lisbon occurred August 22, 1805, with the above justices and Daniel Symmes on the bench.

At this session Reasin Beall was formally appointed Supreme Court Clerk.

The first county commissioners, appointed by the Common Pleas Court, were George Atterholt, Daniel Harbaugh and Joseph Richardson.

The first county election was held in the spring of 1806 and George Duck was elected sheriff. The following Justices of the Peace received certificates of election at the polls of 1808:

Year	Representative	Year	Representative
1803	Return J. Meigs, Jr., and Samuel Huntington, to Wm. Sprigg.	1808	Return J. Meigs, Jr., to Wm. Sprigg.

TAXATION

The first assessment laid against property holders in the county was completed in the fall of 1803, the total of the five taxable subdivisions of that year aggregating $340.00 in taxes.

For their labors the five "listers" were paid $40.41, and for the tabulation of the tax duplicate Reasin Beall was paid $24.87. The latter item included the necessary books and stationery.

The decennial reappraisal of 1900 shows $24,270,600 worth of real and personal property which will yield a result of $615,000 in taxes. The cost of the reappraisal alone exceeds $10,000.

SCHOOLS

No common school system existed in the county until after 1820, schools such as they were, being sustained by voluntary contributions.

The rude school houses of that period were "mud chinked" log structures frequently with greased paper on the windows in lieu of glass, to admit the light and mitigate the rigors of the climate.

The "master" usually secured part of his tuition fees by "boarding round" at the homes of his pupils, during the term.

A frequent practice of the times was for the "big boys" to get to the school house ahead of the teacher on a wintry day and "bar out the master."

The custom was to maintain a bold stand and force the teacher to concede a treat of apples and cider as well as grant immunity from punishment to the transgressors, before they would permit the teacher entrance to the house.

MILITARY—"THE FIRST MUSTER"

The prevailing rate of tuition was $1.50 per quarter, per pupil. The Act of 1838 permitted a tax levy for the purpose of purchasing school sites and buildings, and again in 1853 voters were asked to decide what amount of township tax should be applied to a central or high school fund.

Since that time the history of Ohio public schools has been one grand forward movement, until, to-day, in that respect, we are not surpassed in the nation. Indeed, the curriculum of the schools of East Liverpool, Wellsville, Salem and Lisbon falls little short of that offered in a collegiate course. Individual mention of these schools will be found under their city histories.

The second battalion drilled on the historical Mathias Lower farm in Fairfield township, under the instruction of Maj. John Taggart. Judge Robert Simson and Reasin Beall were both Brigadier-Generals in the early state militia.

Several Revolutionary soldiers were in the first militia of Ohio, among the notable ones being Joseph McKennon, of Liverpool township, who served with "Mad Anthony" Wayne, even prior to the Revolution.

The war of 1812 with England brought many of these militiamen into active and important service. Israel Warner and Jacob Guilbert both earned captain's straps for gallantry in that campaign. Peter Musser was promoted to the rank of major and Thomas Rowland was made a captain in the regulars for distinguished services.

Wellsville boasted of a crack drill company in 1844, commanded by Capt. Henry Cope. It was called the Wellsville Light Artillery and numbered fifty-one men. The command carried a twelve-pound Napoleon gun, and wore a modest uniform of scarlet coats, white trousers and stiff hats surmounted with brilliant plumes. When trouble with Mexico developed in 1846 the entire command volunteered and got into readiness to leave, if war was declared.

In 1858 Capt. Cope organized the Wellsville Guards with A. H. Battin, James T. Smith and J. H. Hunter as lieutenants in the order named. With but one exception the command promptly responded to the first call for troops in 1861, and went out in the Third Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry.

One feature of the war of 1812 was the indignant refusal of Capt. Daniel Harbaugh's Light Dragoons, who were in Hull's brigade at the surrender of Detroit, to be bound by Hull's discreditable surrender. The entire company escaped that night, made a forced march to Urbana, Ohio, and were there honorably discharged.

A brief mention of Columbiana's generous contribution to her country in the dark days of '61 is subjoined as culled from "Ohio in the War": "Company I of the Seventy-eighth Ohio Volunteer Infantry was mustered in at Zanesville in January, 1862.

It went at once to stay and did stay at the front for FOUR YEARS and never went into either summer or winter quarters. It participated under Grant in all the bloody battles up to Vicksburg. In March, 1864, the regiment came home on veterans' furlough, but on May 7th it returned to the front and went with "Pop" Sherman to Atlanta."

On the discharge of the company its rolls showed five killed in action, ten died from disease, ten wounded, thirty discharged on account of disability and seven invalided. The corps commander, addressing the regiment on its discharge said "Your history has been truly written in sweat and blood."

The One hundred and Fourth Regiment was partly recruited from this county and made a brilliant record for gallantry and fine discipline. Four companies of the One hundred and Fifteenth Regiment were from Columbiana, viz., Companies A, D, M and K. They did excellent guard work around Cincinnati. The One Hundred and Forty-third Regiment had one company from this county in the James River campaign. Company I, under Capt. William Brunt.

The Twelfth Ohio Cavalry, largely recruited from Salem and Lisbon districts was one of the most distinguished cavalry troops in the army. Their operations covered the states of Kentucky, Tennessee, Virginia and North Carolina, and they were participants in the capture of the rebel president, Jeff Davis.

Penetrating Alabama, they aided in the captures of Gen. Bragg and the gallant little Joe Wheeler. They finally reached Nashville late in 1865, where they were mustered out after two years of continuous and brilliant service.

The county's individual experience in the Civil War was confined to the only battle fought in Ohio, in the summer of 1863. At Salineville, Gen. Shackleford, pursuing the famous raider, Gen. John Morgan, caught up with the wily cavalryman, who was making a flying trip from Cincinnati, "trading horses," and intending to cross the river at Liverpool on his homeward trip. Morgan made a brief stand at Salineville, but Shackleford's determined attack scattered his band and they fled over the hills, followed closely by Maj. Rue, until after a brief rally on the farm of David Burdick, in Wayne township, the bold raider surrendered.

The county was in the wildest panic over the approach of the noted raider, horses and munity were secreted and the section was generally on the anxious seat, until the welcome news was disseminated that the daring rebel was shorn of his power.

When war was declared with Spain in 1898 old Columbiana was again quick to offer its best blood to its country.

Company E of the Eighth Regiment, Ohio National Guard, enlisted to a man under Capt. Wm. Hill, Lieutenants George Anderson and Robert Hall, of East Liverpool.

The company left East Liverpool for the regimental headquarters on April 25th, and were mustered into the United States Army on May 13, 1898, at Columbus. All the Ohio troops were rendezvoused at Camp Alger, Va., on May 15th. On July 7th, the boys of Company E left New York on the transport St. Paul for Cuba, and were debarked at Saboney, near Santiago, on the 10th. On reporting to Shafter, that Fabian warrior sent the boys out for days on a picket line to guard against surprise by the Spanish troops, expected to come from Havana to the relief of Santiago.

While engaged in this work the young soldiers were surrounded by cactus and tropical growths reeking with miasma.

After the fall of Santiago they were encamped by Gen. Shafter's orders, under daily and nightly rains of a fury never experienced by Americans before, until what they missed in Spanish bullets was made up ten fold by the great collection of bacteria and microbes that lodged in their systems.

The piteous condition of these and hundreds of other young men excited the alarm and sympathy of such men as General Miles and Roosevelt (Vice President) and resulted in the diversion of almost the entire machinery of the government from war itself to the saving of the Nation's soldiers.

On August 18th, the little band of invalids, strong men a brief month before, was embarked for home and renewed health, for many; but for some the voyage was but a preliminary step, towards their joining "that immemorable caravan that moves to that mysterious realm where each shall take his chamber in the silent halls of death."

On August 24th, the cargo of sick soldiers were debarked at the military hospital at Montauk Point, Long Island; on September 6th, those of the company able to travel took the train for Ohio and were formally mustered out at Wooster, November 21st.

Of that lively, thoughtless band of patriotic young men who marched away the previous May the following surrendered to that implacable foe, Death:

Francis Smith died at Saboney, Cuba, August 20, 1898.

O'Key J. Eddy died at sea, August 22, 1898.

Charles Sweitzer, died from disease contracted in Cuba, September 3, 1898, in East Liverpool.

Michael Eck died at Montauk Point, September 11, 1898.

Edwin Holloway died at Montauk Point, September 13, 1898. Arthur Burrows re-enlisted and killed in action in the Philippines November 10, 1900.

In addition to this list of heroes may be considered the pitiful fact that fifty per cent. of the company returned with health so impaired that for two years thereafter they were well nigh confirmed invalids.

One irrepressible in the company, in commenting upon this phase of his experience which was undoubtedly directly traceable to the "Elegized beef" and other unfit foods furnished, said it went to verify the poet's assertion that "beef hath its victories no less renowned than war."

LITERARY CELEBRITIES AND EDUCATORS

Many natives of the county, and one time residents, have achieved fame in letters in the outer world.

William D. Henkle, for many years a resident of Salem, was Secretary of the National Educational Association and author of a number of excellent text books for common schools. His "University Algebra" and "Henkle's Test Spelling Book" were unusually excellent works.

Rev. Dr. Alexander Clark, the famous Divine who was the author of "The Old Log School House," lived "down on Yellow Creek" in his youth.

Thomas C. Mendenhall, for many years Professor of Physics in the Imperial University, Tokio, Japan, was principal of Salem High School in the '60's.

Sanford C. Hill, of East Liverpool, was for many years an international authority on things mathematical and astronomical. His calculations in the latter science are still employed by almanac publishers all over the United States.

Prof. W. H. McGuffey, author of several high grade text books, began his career as teacher in a log school house at Calcutta. He subsequently became president of the famous University of Virginia.

Prof. George J. Luckey, for twenty-five years superintendent of Pittsburg's public schools, for several years taught in the western part of the county, and, prior to his removal to Pittsburg had been principal of East Liverpool schools for several years, where he was highly esteemed. He is now retired as a gentleman farmer on a fine estate in Maryland, living as he expresses it "like a white man."

Burr McIntosh, the well known author-actor-journalist, is a native of this county and grandson of one of Wellsville's early mayors.

POLITICAL

Prior to 1827 political matters were practically one-sided in the county.

The first definite "parting of the ways" occurred that fall when a mass meeting was held to elect delegates "to the Jackson convention at Columbus in January, 1828." Dr. Samuel Quigley, William Moody and John Morrison were the accredited delegates.

The Adams admirers had delegated A. W. Loomis, A. G. Richardson, Isaac Early, DeLorma Brooks and George Endly to the "administration" convention on December 28, 1827. Thus was the first sharp issue in the county drawn.

In 1832 the anti-masonic agitation caused a new political party of some power to spring up. Its adherents memorialized the Legislature demanding an official investigation of "this pernicious secret order." A committee was appointed by the Legislature in joint session, which reported back that "Masonry was the same here as elsewhere and the same everywhere else as here and we recommend that it be left to the influence of future public opinion," which eminently wise conclusion was adopted as the sense of both Houses.

The Aurora published by John Frost, in Lisbon, was the anti-masonic organ. The Whig and Anti-Masonic elements fused in 1832, but lost the election, the Jacksonian democrats sweeping both county and state.

The first decided public opposition in Ohio to the institution of slavery was evidenced by a startling appeal to public sentiment published in the Ohio Patriot of Lisbon in 1826. On his visit to the county in 1834 William Lloyd Garrison received enthusiastic commendations, both from the prints and the pulpits, for his strong abolition views. The Liberty party became quite a political factor until, in 1848, it was rechristened the "Free-soil" party at the Buffalo convention which nominated Van Buren, and it finally took refuge under the banner of the young Republican party.

The "Underground Railroad," as the plan for rescuing and succoring fugitive slaves en route to Canada was called, had many "stations" in this county.

After the Civil War, the county became strongly Republican and it has for years been depended upon by that party to furnish a majority for the other counties in the state to emulate.

ROADS AND TRANSPORTATION

Within the county, the facilities for intra-county communication and transportation, are, with two exceptions, as inadequate and primitive as on the day of the erection of the county in 1803.

The exceptions noted are viz., A branch of the Erie Railroad which runs from Lisbon through Leetonia and Washingtonville, connecting with Salem; and, the P. L. and W. R. R. which runs from Lisbon through the coal fields about Rogers and Negley, Pa., to New Galilee, Pa., connecting with the P. F. W. and C. R. R. It thus gives an opening to the outer world from Elkrun and other interior townships.

The pioneers of the county would doubtless be surprised could they return to earth and find that the vaunted twentieth century citizens still retained their transportation "talent" in the original napkin the settlers had enveloped about it one hundred years previous.

As regards wagon roads, there is not a mile of such within the county, worthy of the name. The Lisbon-Liverpool road is top dressed in a brief spot or two, which simply accentuates the prevailing defects elsewhere, and the minor highways are as a rule in a condition that makes their passage a penance.

In 1829, stages left Pittsburg on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday from Griffith's tavern in Wood Street at 3 a. m., with mail and passengers for Lisbon via Beaver, Pa.

*Dead.

A mail stage line, still in operation daily, between Wellsville and Lisbon, was put in service that same year. It requires about five hours to make the sixteen mile trip, which forces those who do not like the "roads," to ride around by rail a distance of some sixty miles, in order to reach the county seat.

Mail was furnished the river towns exclusively by steamboat at East Liverpool and Wellsville until the completion of the C. and P. R. R. to Pittsburg in 1856.

It was a beautiful sight to witness the graceful side-wheel mail steamer swinging swiftly in to a landing, crowded on the upper decks with passengers, the ever present calliope steaming forth a popular air, possibly more fortissimo than harmony required, on a soft summer evening. The rivalry between the boats was strong and sincere, and the "sitting of a nigger on the safety valve" was indulged in more frequently than prudence dictated.

In 1818 the Commissioners fixed the following "ferry rates" for the Ohio River ferries:

Foot passenger	.....	\$0.06 $\frac{1}{4}$
Man and horse	.....	.12
Loaded wagon and team	.....	1.00
Four-wheeled carriage,	}	.62 $\frac{1}{2}$
Empty wagon and team
Loaded cart and team	.....	.50
Empty cart, sleigh or sled and team	.....	.31 $\frac{1}{4}$
Horse, mule or head of neat cattle	.....	.06 $\frac{1}{4}$
Sheep or hog	.....	.03

The Sandy and Beaver canal was completed in 1846 amid great rejoicing and ardent expectations. It left the Ohio River at the Pennsylvania state line, through Liverpool, Madison and Elkrum townships, following closely the middle fork of Beaver Creek to Lisbon, thence through Hanover and West townships out of the county. The enterprise was a "loser" from the start and was abandoned totally in 1852.

MINERALS

Coal is found in abundance all over the county, the Salineville district leading in output, the average daily production from that field being sixty carloads of twenty-five tons each.

Along the line of the P. L. and W. R. R. large deposits are in the initial stage of development, over ten cars daily being handled from mines in this county by that road.

Large tracts of excellent steam coal lie in Liverpool and Yellow Creek townships and an immense bed around West Point is about to be developed and will probably prove the most valuable field in the county.

All these deposits are continuations of the Pittsburg field, and possess the same general characteristics with the exception of a lower percentage of carbon.

It is a strong steam producing coal, but analysis shows too much inert organic matter for it to be valuable as a coking or gas coal. The veins run from three to five feet in thickness and are not difficult to reach.

Iron ore was formerly produced and smelted in the county, but its production grew too expensive comparatively to maintain.

At present Leetonia possesses the only two furnaces in the county and they use ores from remote sections of the country.

Some years ago salt was produced in large quantities from wells drilled to subterranean saline lakes, Salineville in particular being a centre of the industry.

One salt well in the west end of East Liverpool was remarkable from the fact that the same well that produced the brine also furnished a strong flow of natural gas which was used as fuel to evaporate the brine and produce the refined salt. Lisbon also was the centre of a smaller salt field.

The value of the natural gas produced from these wells gradually surpassed that of the salt and led to the abandonment of the salt industry about 1870.

This county has frequently had its surface punctured in the search for oil, but the quantities of the unctuous fluid secured were usually dwarfed by the valuable flow of fuel gas usually accompanying the oil.

East Liverpool and Wellsville both use gas largely for light and fuel, which is piped from the vicinity of Wheeling and Midway, Pa.

Many of the Liverpool china potteries use natural gas exclusively for firing their ware.

Excellent fire and yellow ware clays are found in profusion and the best grades of sewer pipe known are those produced about Wellsville and Liverpool.

The development of the clay working industry has led to the production of large quantities of white porcelain and fine china ware in East Palestine, Wellsville and East Liverpool; the latter city leading the world in volume of output and rivaling Germany or France in excellence of quality of its china. Thirty-two plants worth $15,000,000 are in daily operation in East Liverpool.

Fine building sand is easily obtainable along the Ohio River and the branches of Beaver Creek.

Excellent sandstone is available at numerous points, and the fine stone of which the Court House at Lisbon is constructed is strictly a home product.

Superior cement is produced in large quantities, adjacent to Lisbon, and is shipped all over the United States.

EARLY ORGANIZATION

An association with a far reaching influence for good, and the revival of which at this time would be of great effect, was the Columbiana County Medical Society, organized in 1841. Dr. Benjamin Stanton was president and Dr. Leonard Hanna, later one of Cleveland's leading physicians, was its secretary.

Dr. Hanna was the father of the present United States Senator, Marcus A. Hanna. The society lapsed after the removal of Dr. Hanna from Lisbon about six years later.

The Union Medical Society was formed in 1864 by the leading "regular" physicians of Stark, Mahoning and Columbiana counties. It was permitted by its members to die a natural death at the age of five years.

At the present time the physicians of the county have no organization, and even in the towns there seems to be no interest in public discussion by the medical fraternity of important topics.

THE LISBON FAIR

April 10, 1846, the Columbiana County Agricultural Society was established at New Lisbon with Samuel Myers, President; William Krimble, Vice President; John McInmonds, Secretary; Fisher A. Blockson, Treasurer and Dr. Leonard Hanna, Warren Peters, James L. Caldwell, William F. Russell and Jacob Harbaugh as the Board of Managers.

In 1851 it re-organized with John Ferrall, President and Dr. Leonard Hanna, Vice President.

In 1854 the society purchased the "Sommerville" tract of fourteen acres for $1800, erected buildings, built a half mile speeding track for horse racing, arranged booths for agricultural displays, and prepared to hold a genuine "county fair" every fall.

Several tracts of land have been added to the original purchase since then and the original purpose of the organization has been carried out, without interruption, since 1841.

The present officers are President, C. E. Lease; Vice-President, William Wham; Secretary, Edmund F. Moore; Treasurer, F. G. Bowman.

TOWNSHIP HISTORIES

BUTLER TOWNSHIP

BUTLER lies in the northwestern quarter of the county on the northern border.

It has an area of thirty-two square miles of hilly uplands, covered by clean stretches of forest and dotted with fertile farms. Sugar maple trees abound and the making of genuine maple syrup is quite an industry. Numerous streams, tributary to Mahoning Creek and "Little Beaver," give good drainage and induce large stock raising. The pioneers of this section were William Whinnery and his six sons in 1800, David Hurson and John Johnson in 1803, William and James Raudels in 1806, Henry Woolf and family in 1804, Isaiah Harris and family of seven in 1806, Garrett

Campf and family from Germany in 1804, John and Hugh Burns, Jacob Gaunt and Philip Irej in 1805. William Hereford, John Coppock, Samuel Aaron and Keziah Woolman, Jesse Lynch, Jesse Walton, Obadiah Crew and Jacob Schriver all settled in Butler about 1806 and William Kennett, James French and Daniel Burns arrived prior to 1820. Legislative authority for the organization of the township was enacted in 1806, but the records prior to 1839 were permitted to shift for themselves, so that it is impossible to name the original officials of the township. Villages in the township, in order of size are as follows: Damascus, Winona and Valley. Damascus was platted in 1808 by Horton Howard, agent for the proprietor, a Mr. Hooper of Eastern Pennsylvania. The Mahoning county line now nearly bisects the village. Winona became a post-office in 1868, with James Dean as the first official. Valley was established in 1809 by John Emrich. He erected a large grist mill which has been in steady use nearly ever since. Emerson Stanley purchased it in the '70's. The Friends were the pioneers of religious affairs. After the "rupture" in 1854, no less than six different factions worshipped in Damascus under one roof at different hours.

CENTRE TOWNSHIP

CENTRE gained the name by reason of the location of the township in 1803, by the United States Survey. The township's surface is much broken, precipitous hills being frequent. The northern sections are the more fertile, and near the numerous streams the soil is rich and alluvial; elsewhere it is a loamy clay. Considerable virgin woodland is still in evidence. The middle fork of Beaver Creek crosses the township, cutting off the northeast third of the division. The creek runs over an extremely rugged bed and is generally restrained on one side and occasionally on both by a precipitous rocky wall. The mineral wealth of the township is extensive and varied. Coal and fire clay deposits are large and freely developed; excellent building sandstone exists in all directions. In former years much iron ore was mined. A number of oil wells have been struck at various times with moderate results and some gas has also been developed. In previous times large quantities of salt were shipped from Centre, procured from saline wells. The production of an excellent quality of cement has also been an extensive industry for years. The first settlement was probably that of Lewis Kinney and associates in 1802. Mr. Kinney purchased the present site of Lisbon and erected a cabin at what is now the foot of Jefferson Street. Christian Smith established a log tavern in 1803. The first tannery was established by John Arter on the creek below Jefferson Street in 1805. Section 12 was taken up by Thomas Frederick in 1804. Frederick Bleeker, Andrew Brinker, Jonathan Hamilton, William Paul, Michael Mowry, Harmon Fagan, Jehu Powell, Jacob and Conrad Worman also came into the township prior to 1808. About this time, also, the western sections settled upon by Gabriel Laird, Frederick Crubaugh, Robert Blackledge, the Branderberrys, George Lee, et al. On Section 29, the Koffel family settled. Jacob Springer and Peter Glassner were early arrivals on Section 30. John and James Pollock resided on Section 32. Section 31 was first occupied by Daniel Lindersmith. Peter Springer and Joshua Chandler early were part owners of Section 20-21 and their descendants still live there. John J. Bowman was an early settler on Section 8. Davidson Filson was a neighbor whose descendants were numerous and prominent in later years. Rev. John Stough, the first minister in the township settled in Section 8 in 1805 and there reared six sons. Joab Gaskill, a prominent churchman, and his five sons lived in Section 25, and vicinage, in early days. Many of the other prominent pioneers of Centre receive notice in the review of the history of Lisbon. The present officers of Centre township are Abram Moore, George Hirst, Peter Davis, Trustees; J. J. Bennett, Clerk; W. H. Hepburn, Treasurer.

FAIRFIELD TOWNSHIP

THE village of Columbiana, delightfully located in Fairfield township, is a charming, though rather rural, community.

The incorporation of the village took place in 1856 with George Lamb as the first mayor. It is near Columbiana that the first seat of justice was established in 1803 in the barn of Mathias Lower.

This first "Court House" was stricken by lightning in 1838 and destroyed.

Several of Mr. Lower's descendants still reside in Columbiana and the neighborhood, viz., George, Mathias and Emanuel Lower, Mrs. Bradfield, Mrs. Truckass, Mrs. Gleckler and Mrs. Gilbert.

Among the earliest settlers was William Heald, the surveyor of the early organization, in 1801. He settled with his family on Section 26. He afterwards removed to Cedar County, Iowa, about 1850, where he died in 1867 at the remarkable age of one hundred years and eight months.

Samuel Oliphant settled on Section 27 the year of Mr. Heald's arrival. William Ferrall came from Virginia the same year and settled on Section 22. He was accompanied by John James.

Isaac James, a brother, settled on Section 35.

Joseph Bradfield settled on Section 36 in 1802.

John Crozer, one of the most prominent men in the early affairs of the county, came the same year to East Fairfield. Abel Lodge lived near the Crozer farm.

Henry Dixon, John Woods, John Cope and John Allman all lived near Middleton in 1802.

Joab Pritchett also settled on Section 25 near Allman's in 1805.

James Boulton became a citizen of Fairfield with his son Levi about 1806.

The latter lived to be nearly 100 years of age in the original village.

One of the prominent families of the county, largely interested in Fairfield township, was the Holloways, who came from Virginia in 1801.

Both male and female members became active in civil and social affairs of the county and are prominent at this day.

Joshua Dixon and family came from near Brownsville, Pa., in 1802 to Sections 3 and 4. He laid out the village of Columbiana in 1805, and contributed eleven children to its population, all of whom achieved more than local prominence in later years.

In 1807 William and Peter Bushong settled on Section 7. Nicholas Firestone came from Virginia to Fairfield in 1803. Robert Hanna and family settled on Section 10, prior to Firestone's arrival. His son Benjamin, afterwards prominent in Lisbon, was the hero of the first marriage in the township, taking Rachel Dixon to wife.

The Esterlys arrived in 1804, John M. Esterly settling on Section 5 in that year.

Jesse Allen and Benjamin Hanna had the first store in the settlement in 1812.

Joseph Wallace, Moses Copeland and Jonathan Esterly were also prominent early merchants.

John Young was probably the first apothecary, and was at the same time a justice of the peace.

Although the village was not permanently incorporated until 1856, a charter was legally issued to it in 1837. At an election held in that year at John Sturgeon's house, William Hickman was elected "mayor" and Samuel Nichols, recorder, twenty-one votes being polled. The little village however essayed more than its strength justified and the charter was surrendered in 1842.

In 1856, however, the railroad spirit had restored the ambition of the village and it was again incorporated with George Lamb as Mayor and Jonathan Esterly, recorder.

COLUMBIANA

The first post-office was opened about 1809 by John Dixon and the mails were received by stage from Pittsburg and Wooster.

The present postmaster is Edward I. Snyder. Under his administration facilities have been improved and at present the receipts of the office from the sale of stamps, etc., reach $3600 per annum.

In the business district the streets are paved with brick, and the retail stores are of good character and well managed.

The prominent industries of Columbiana are, viz., A road machine factory, a saw mill, a planing mill, an iron pump factory, a handle factory, a large carriage factory, and a grist mill.

The population of the town in 1902 is close to 1500 people, the town is well kept up and taken as an entirety it is probably the most charming town in the county.

COLUMBIANA SCHOOLS

Columbiana Union School was formed in 1858 as a special district, with David Woods, Jacob Greenamyre and Michael Henry as trustees.

In 1863, the present large brick school building was begun and the following year Prof. George J. Luckey was appointed principal, which position he held for two years. F. A. Atterholt was also principal of this school from 1874 to 1876.

The present superintendent of schools is Prof. E. O. Trescott. He has seven teachers and an average daily enrollment of 300 pupils, in his charge.

Linda L. Snyder has been principal of the High School for nineteen years. An average daily attendance of fifty scholars attend the High School. The value of the present public school property is over $12,000.

COLUMBIANA CHURCHES

The churches of Columbiana are as follows:

The Evangelical Lutherans possess a neat brick building which, with a frame parsonage, is valued at $5000. The congregation numbers about 150 and is ministered to by Rev. W. H. Lehman who took charge in 1899. He also preaches in New Waterford.

Grace Reformed Church is a handsome brick structure valued at $1500. Since 1899 it has been in charge of Rev. A. V. Casselman who preaches to a congregation of 500 persons.

The Methodist Episcopal congregation worships in a fine brick building valued at $12,000.

Rev. J. W. Satterthwaite ministers to a growing congregation of nearly 200 persons.

The Presbyterian congregation numbers about one hundred and has been in charge of Rev. R. E. Porter since 1898.

The building is a modest frame structure, which, with grounds, is worth $3500.

The Disciples' church is also of frame and is attended by a congregation of less than one hundred. The property is worth about $2000. A stated supply fills the pulpit at the present time.

FIRE DEPARTMENT—Volunteer

William Feeler, Captain.

Water Works consists of large reserve wells producing water of excellent quality. Both water and electric light plants are owned by the town.

MIDDLETON

William Heald platted this village on the southeast corner of Section 23 originally, but subsequent owners carried it over into Section 25. The village never thrived and has simply been a sweet, wholesome little hamlet since its beginning.

EAST FAIRFIELD

This settlement was platted by John Crozer in 1863. It bade fair to become important until the building of the railroad through adjacent territory stripped it of its hopes of future importance.

The village was on the Pittsburg and Wooster road and was famous for many years for the excellent inn kept by Abel Lodge. The post office here was established, in a manner, in 1869, with John Crozer as the first official.

One of the earliest industries in the state was the foundry conducted by President McKinley's father in East Fairfield.

FRANKLIN TOWNSHIP

FRANKLIN'S site is in the southwestern part of the county, has an undulating surface with some high hills; none but streams of small size break the landscape, consequently the region is well adapted for agricultural purposes. Much soft coal abounds and finds easy transportation facilities over the Pennsylvania line of railroad. The climate is considered very healthful. The pioneers of Franklin township were early on the scene, Section 7 being occupied in 1804 by William King. Section 11 was located upon by William Laughlin in 1805. Philip Willyard and family settled in Section 12 in 1805. Thomas Ferguson settled Section 9 and was later joined by Robert Smith. Their nearest neighbors were Hugh McElroy and his mother, also on Section 9. James McQuilkin, William Winder and Samuel Reeder lived on Section 3. James B. Morrison, after of Lisbon, lived twenty-five years in Franklin township. Other prominent pioneers were Samuel Brown, James Anderson, William Knepper, Thomas Fife, Anthony Dunleavy, John Morrison and Mathew McGuinn. In 1816 the township was formally organized, and contained thirty-six sections, but on the erection of Carroll county twelve sections were given to that county, reducing Franklin to twenty-four sections. Summitville, its principal village, was platted by Peter Friedt in 1854. Its name is due to its altitude, it being at the summit of the highest grade on the C. and P. R. R. Millport, about two miles north of Summitville, on the railway, was originally called Franklin and frequently confused with Franklin Square. Its name is due to its original industries, a grist and a saw mill. It was laid out in 1854 by Philip Willyard and Hugh Laughlin or McLaughlin.

HANOVER TOWNSHIP

HANOVER is the township next to Centre on the west. It is hilly and picturesque and has a good soil and a large area of coal deposits. A part of the upper waters of Beaver Creek drains the township, leaving the township at Section 25. Hanover was organized in 1806, but in harmony with many other townships, the records were not preserved. Within its boundaries are five villages: Hanoverton, New Garden, Guilford, Dunganon and Kensington.

Of the first settlers William Winder lived in Hanover until 1828, when his demise occurred. Many of his descendants reside in the neighborhood. His nearest pioneer neighbor lived on Section 31, where the C. and P. station now stands in Kensington. His name was Andrew Milburn. William Rhodes, Samuel Reeder and Benjamin Stackhouse were near neighbors of Milburn's. Joseph Rhodes, Stephen McBride, John Rupert, Philip Fox, David Wyley, John Sinclair, Frederick Bayard, Griffith John, Joseph Milner and James Craig all came to Hanover within a period of five years prior to 1808. Jonas Murray and wife settled here about 1812. Thomas Robertson, Samuel Fugat, George Brown and Price Keith were prominent arrivals in the township about the same year. William Nixon and Owen Williams were the early inn-keepers. Amos Frost and Nicholas Miller were residents of the eastern part of the township in 1807. Joseph Dutton and Levi Miller came in 1810 and Michael Arter removed to Hanover from Lisbon in 1817. Hanoverton (early Hanover) was laid out in 1813 by James Craig. In 1836 the village was incorporated with Michael Arter as Mayor. It advanced in spurts until 1847 when the soon following collapse of the Sandy and Beaver canal scheme seemed to blast its ambition permanently to be commercially great, and it remains to-day, contentedly, a sweet, quaint, rural community. It is about one mile from Kensington station. Guilford was another canal scheme rocket that returned to earth but a stick.

In 1835 Dr. George McCook, J. G. Willyard and Jacob Schriber purchased the larger part of Section 12 and laid out a town on the strength of the highly esteemed approaching artery of commerce, the Sandy and Beaver canal. Judicious advertising awakened public speculation and lots were sold like hot cakes. One hundred and fifty lots were sold in one day's sale, some of them bringing as high as $250 from optimistic investors. (Afterwards many of these lots were slow sale at $1.00 each.) Business grew, stores and taverns were opened, and in 1836, on its being incorporated with Thomas Brandon as Mayor, it boasted some 500 inhabitants. The panic of the ensuing year stopped the further construction of the canal and the village started on the down grade. Ten years later the failure and abandonment of the canal project crushed any further hopes for the town and it collapsed. As an illustration, in 1900 the entire assessed value of the real estate in the village is but $1450, less than half a dozen lots brought half a century previous.

New Garden was laid out in 1810 by Benjamin Saunders and Jacob Ritter. James Graham was postmaster for forty years. It is a peaceful, thrifty village, never experiencing the lofty flights and subsequent sad awakenings of its neighboring villages.

Kensington was platted in 1852 by William Holland and Robert Miller, under the name of Maysville. Confusion with the nearly similar names of other places led to its name's being changed to New Kensington, at the request of postal authorities, in 1876. Jacob Dutton was the first railroad agent here and he was succeeded by Oliver Miller. B. C. Battin opened his hotel here in 1859. Religious institutions were early formed. St. Philip's Catholic Church was organized by Andrew McAllister in 1816 and the first confirmation administered by Bishop Fenwick of Canton. In honor of Philip Ehrhardt, of Dunganon, and the saint whose namesake he was, the church was christened as above. Mr. Ehrhardt having donated the present beautiful site, on a commanding elevation at Dunganon on which in 1847 a $15,000 edifice was erected.

Rev. John Stough of Lisbon had a German Reformed congregation in the eastern part of the township until 1847, which developed into Trinity Reformed Church. "Frost's" M. E. Church, since known as Point Pleasant Church, was organized in 1820 by Amos Frost and for twenty years, services for the congregation were held weekly at his house. In 1842 a frame church was erected near the Frost house, on which was painted the legend "Frost's Church." In 1852 the congregation organized a new structure just across the line in Centre township. The first church structure in the township was built by the Friends near New Garden, in 1806. Like most buildings of the time, it was of logs and the continuous inundation from the canal reservoir's overflows finally compelled the society to abandon the house and dispose of its holdings. In 1807, the Friends in the vicinity of Hanover built a log church a mile west of the village, and the congregation soon aggregated one hundred. In 1857 they replaced the log structure with one of brick. A Christian church was organized in 1820 in Hanover by Enos Ellis. About 1825, a difference in views led to the majority of the congregation embracing the "Disciple" doctrine and the church was promptly reorganized as that name. Joshua Rhodes and Christian Keith were active in the reorganization. The M. E. Church of Hanover was organized in 1844, Joseph Hillerman being foremost in the work. Rev. Amos Young was the first pastor and their first building was erected in 1847. In 1876, a cyclone devastated the neighborhood and razed the church building along with other structures. Another building rose promptly from the ruins and was dedicated in 1877. The First Presbyterian Church of Hanover was dedicated in 1860. Rev. James Robertson was its first pastor. In 1846 the congregation split on the slavery question and consisted of two factions until the war of Rebellion brought the discordant elements to one mind. The M. E. Church of New Garden was dedicated in 1841 by Rev. Joseph Montgomery. A second building in 1854 replaced the first church. The earlier preachers were Rev. John T. Kent and Thomas McGrath. In 1824 the growth of the Disciple church received quite an impetus and a reorganization of affairs resulted in the erection of a new building under pastors William Fife, Jonathan Elton and Emanuel Anglemat. Subsequently frequent removals reduced the congregation members materially and they were forced to give up a regular pastor.

KNOX TOWNSHIP

THE soil of Knox township is fertile and well drained by the Mahoning River and side streams. The surface is rolling and well adapted to farming and grazing. The first permanent settler in Knox was John Thomas, who, accompanied by a large family of well grown children, "entered on" Sections 27, 28 and 29 in 1804. He died in 1818 aged 73 years. The four Gilson brothers located here in 1805.

Cornelius Sheehan, James Johnson, James Beer and his son, Rev. Joshua Beer, Chris. Dellenbaugh and his son, Dr. John Dellenbaugh, Daniel Borton and Samuel Hoffman were prominent settlers from 1810 to 1825.

Geo. M. Bowman and Jacob Kuntz in the early 30's and Benjamin Anderson, Jacob Stoffer, Henry Keister, Daniel Shively and George and Adam Wolf were also pioneers of the early days. Knox was organized in 1808, the first trustees being Benjamin Anderson and Jacob Crumbacker. It has no towns of any pretensions within its limits. North Georgetown is a pretty little hamlet laid out in 1830 by John Whiteleather and George Stiger. The first building erected on the plat was by John Weaver.

Honeworth is a station on the C. and P. R. R. It is platted by Jonas Ruff, Samuel Fox and Jacob Williams in 1851.

Reading was a small settlement, platted as a town in 1840, but it has never exceeded its original lines.

Probably the oldest church organization in Knox township is the Evangelical Lutheran Church in North Georgetown. Its beginning was in 1813 with German service. In 1861 a schism occurred resulting in the division into the German Reformed and the Evangelical Lutheran congregations. Knox also supports the Middle Sandy Presbyterian Church organized in 1816. In 1822 during a communion service in the woods led by Rev. James Robertson, a violent storm suddenly descended upon the meeting and a falling tree instantly killed Mrs. Jacob Shaffer and her child.

The German Baptist Church held informal meetings as early as 1800 in the homes of its members. A regular house of worship was formally dedicated in 1820 and was remodelled in 1878 to accommodate its large membership. The building will now seat close to two hundred. Lewis Adams was the first pastor. Bethel Lutheran Church was organized in 1860. It is located on Section 15 on land donated to the society. Rev. Peter Hasbrouck was one of its earliest preachers.

The first school was opened in 1800 by Samuel Thomas on Section 29 in a log cabin. He secured Thomas Anderson as its first teacher.

A school house was built on the lines of Sections 89 about the same time. Daniel Borton and John Thomas were teachers.

In 1860 the township was divided into twelve districts, each of which was provided with good school buildings.

LIVERPOOL TOWNSHIP

LIVERPOOL occupies the southeastern corner of the county and is bordered on the south by West Virginia, the Ohio River dividing that state from Ohio.

The city of East Liverpool now covers the largest part of the township.

Beyond the city limits the surface is rugged, the hills containing large deposits of good coal and excellent fire clay. Liverpool's early settlers arrived before the township was created out of "fractional St. Clair," about 1798.

Among the earliest arrivals were Joseph McKennon, grandfather of Riley McKennon, and Noah Grant, grandfather of Gen. U. S. Grant.

Both of these pioneers settled on Section 6 below Dry Run.

Jesse Grant wrote Col. H. R. Hill of East Liverpool, some years ago that he was six years of age when his father settled at Liverpool, and that he clearly remembered hearing Robert Dobbins, the pioneer Methodist exhorter preach near where the Pennsylvania passenger station now stands, on Christmas day 1799.

Noah Grant was married to Anna Kelly, whose brother John was also an early settler. The Grants subsequently moved to Wooster in 1803.

Thomas Fawcett and Robert Boyce came about 1799. Fawcett made a clearing and built a cabin near the present Murphy pottery site, and Boyce cleared off a tract near the Spring Grove camp ground site.

The village of St. Clair, the embryo East Liverpool, was platted by Mr. Fawcett on part of the eleven hundred acres, of which he was proprietor, along the river.

Other early settlers were John Ranch in 1800, Thomas Ashton, Angus McBane, who settled on the ridge back of Jethro, Edward Devoe, a negro, who occupied the Spring Grove tract below Boyce's place, and Edward Wellington whose farm occupied the site occupied by the Knowles China Co. at the present time.

William Larwell, a Baltimore lawyer; Harvey Heath, a blacksmith; Griffith Williams, a tanner in the present Micherer addition of East Liverpool, and Michael McKennon, a son of Joseph McKennon, who farmed on Calcutta road, all arrived prior to 1804. Michael McKennon was the animating spirit in the organization of the Presbyterian church in the township. He died in 1874 in his ninety-fourth year.

John Babb had a blacksmith shop on his island farm, above the water works station of East Liverpool. Mr. Wise had the hill farm on the mainland, and above him Adam and George Miller had farms and at the mouth of Beaver Creek was the place of Peter Wells in 1805. "Up the creek" dwelt Adam Burdeaux, Peter Hyatt, James Burns and Thomas Moore, who managed the mills owned by John Beaver along the creek.

At "Moore's mill" he maintained a tavern, store, saw mill and blacksmith shop.

John Beaver lived in Georgetown, Pa., at this time and was a boon companion of Joseph McKennon, Capt. Brady and the famous Poe brothers. Capt. Brady and McKennon were with the Poe boys the day of the killing of the noted Indian "Big Foot." In 1806 Charles Hoy, Nicholas Dawson, Thomas McCartney, Solomon Cable, John Jaddis the weaver, and Alexander his brother, all farmed and trapped along the creek.

In 1808 Thomas Jefferson granted to Charles Blackmore Section 34, now partly occupied by the suburb "Maplewood." The original patent is still in existence, and is owned by the heirs of the late Josiah Thompson.

In 1805 John Beaver and John Coulter built a mill at the mouth of the creek, for the manufacture of writing paper. Some years later a disastrous flood terminated the enterprise.

The first grist mill in the county was built by Joseph Fawcett on Carpenter's Run in 1804. It occupied the present site of the West End pottery. John Beaver built the second one on the creek about one and a half miles from the river. In 1824 Claiborne Simms became the owner of a large tract northwest of Fawcettstown, as St. Clair had then become known. The Dresden and the Burford potteries occupy part of the former Simms tract. The township was created in 1834 out of "fractional St. Clair." The further history of the township will be found under the head of "East Liverpool." The present township officials are Trustees, J. W. Albright, Mack Anderson, Joseph Beardmore; Clerk, James N. Hanley; Treasurer, S. T. Herbert; Justices of Peace, J. N. Rose, H. P. McCarron, D. McLane, L. W. Carman; Constables, J. A. Miller, C. W. Powell.

MADISON TOWNSHIP

MADISON, one of the thirty-six section townships, adjoins Liverpool township on the northwest. Its soil is fertile, but the surface is rugged and covers large deposits of excellent coal. The vicinity of West Point is particularly blessed with veins of coal of good thickness. "Round Knob" farm on Section 22, owned by Dr. J. W. Hammond, of Wellsville, is said to be the highest point in the state, being some 900 feet above the level of Lake Erie.

One of the institutions of Madison, and, in fact of the county, is the "Scotch Settlement." This occupies about one half of the township and is peopled by an unsurpassed citizenship, devout and thrifty, whose forebears came from the Highlands of Scotland. The early Scotch settlers were Andrew McPherson, who, with his family "took up" most of Section 36 in 1802; Alexander McDonald on Section 36, Archey Cook on Section 25, James McIntosh on Section 21, William Monroe and Evan McIntosh were near neighbors. John McPhail, Alexander Chisholm, John McPhail, John Campbell, William Falconer, John McKenzie, Daniel McCoy, Duncan Frazer, Jesse Williams, Angus McIntosh, Jacob Vanfossen and his son Arnold, Hugh McBane, John McDonald, John McBane and Jacob Welsh all located in the "settlement" in the first decade of the nineteenth century.

Andrew Smith settled on the Yellow Creek line and was for many years a leader in civil and religious councils. Robert McCready, of Washington, Pa., "entered" the east half of Section 32 for his son Joseph, who had thirteen children born on this farm.

James McKenzie came to Section 31 in 1807. He became prominent in the soldiery of 1812, fought with Harrison in Canada, brought 700 prisoners to the fort in Pittsburgh, and then came back to his farm to live in peace until his ninety-ninth year. William McLane and Rev. E. N. Scroggs were of the earliest about West Point. Angus McBane, later of Liverpool township, was the pioneer of Madison, and the "Scotch Settlement." He had hunted through the territory and, prior to 1800, had urged his friends in Scotland to come over, which they did, with the results related.

In 1809 Madison was formally organized, Thomas George being its first "collector." There are no towns in Madison, but post offices and small rural settlements are found at Williamsport, Glasgow and West Point.

William Crawford built a mill at the first named place on the Beaver canal, platted a sub-division, and christened it as noted, probably to perpetuate his Christian name. Glasgow was platted in 1852 by William McBane and was populated then to about its present extent. West Point has never been platted, and has but a small population. Its first postmaster was Jacob Stewart, in 1836. The leading religious denomination, is perforce, Presbyterian. The first services were held at the cabin of Alexander McIntosh, a "ruling elder," during cold weather, and in warm seasons, in the groves, "God's first temples," from 1802 to 1808. The earlier pastors were Revs. Robertson, Hughes, Scott and Macmillan, who frequently preached their sermons in Gaelic.

Rev. Cook was the first regular minister in the township.

The first church in the "settlement" was erected in 1827 and was replaced by the present one in 1878.

The Associate Presbyterians organized in 1806, with Rev. E. N. Scroggs as their first regular minister in 1820. He also had congregations at Calcutta and "Four Mile." In 1821 William Read and Henry Benner donated an acre of ground each to the church and a log building was erected thereon. It was replaced in 1851 by the frame building. The first M. E. Church in Madison was founded in 1820 at the William Crawford home on the creek. Their first building was erected at Williamsport in 1838. The present M. E. Church was built in 1871 and for convenience was located at the intersection of the four townships of Madison, Middleton, St. Clair and Elkrun. "Madison Church" is on the Liverpool-Lisbon road in Section 10 about midway between the two towns. The site was donated in 1838 by William Brown and James McCaskey and the building was immediately erected. Rev. William McCarty was the first minister. The first building was replaced in 1866 by the present one. A large congregation attends and a neatly kept cemetery surrounds the building. The earliest schools in Madison were John McBane, on Devore's Run, Andrew Smith on the Yellow Creek line, and those maintained by John Elliott, Daniel Smith and John Grant at different locations. The county roads in Madison are very poor, which fact does not distinguish it, however, from any other townships in the county.

MIDDLETON TOWNSHIP

MIDDLETON is the middle eastern township on the Pennsylvania state line, and contains thirty-six full sections. The surface is remarkably rugged, being much cut up by Beaver and Bull Creeks, and their tributary streams. Many of its hills are so precipitous that they are still covered with virgin forest and are valuable only for timber and mineral deposits; coal, clay, stone, some oil and brine deposits abound.

Where the contour of the surface permits, unusually fine fruits grow in profusion and the soil is very fertile, so that, though much of the land is not adapted to tillage, Middleton ranks well agriculturally.

The first settlers in Middleton were not of the high character of those of other townships, being chiefly ambitionless "squatters," who were satisfied to leave nature's provisions for their comfort pretty much unaided. By 1810 this element began to be pretty well forced out by genuine settlers. Of these the earlier ones were Baltzer Young on Section 14, Job Russell on Section 13 along with Abraham Rogers, his brother, and John Briggs.

John Richardson and his sons, all afterward prominent in the county, John Booth and his seven boys, Alex. Huston and Edward Earle occupied Section 12. Section 23 was settled by John Eakin, Levi Jennings and Francis Andrews; Section 1 by John and George Grate and Thomas Barton, the Hustons and the Burts, Rev. John Burt, of the latter family bringing thirteen children.

Hugh Eaton and his son Isaac came about this time.

On Section 10 were Bernard Feazle and Robert Billingsley. The latter reared six sons on his farm, all afterwards prominent.

On Section 3 Thomas Rogers, George Brown and Henry Garrett were early arrivals. Benjamin Scott and Ambrose and Robert Martin "took up" Section 4, and Nathan, Joshua and John Crawford Section 9.

Parley Brown and Joseph Thompson were pioneers on Section 5. Israel Cope was first on Section 18.

On Section 20 John Edmundson, father of eight sons, was the pioneer. Richard Fitz-Randolph located on Section 12 in 1813 as a tanner. He raised seven sons on this farm. John and Eli Vale came from York, Pa., in 1814. Among other prominent pioneers were the Saints, Guys, Ashfords, Shirtz, Hannas, etc. Immigration was so rapid that in 1821 Middleton possessed over 200 voters.

The industrial plants in Middleton have been principally grist and saw mills. Achor and Clarkson have possessed tanneries, whose importance varied with that of their proprietors.

The large coal deposits of the township are practically undisturbed.

In the northwest portion of Middleton are numerous fine peach orchards and apples, pears, quinces and grapes grow in profusion and are unusually excellent in quality. Several large nurseries for the propagation of fruit and shade trees are features.

Clarkson is the only village in the township. It was platted in 1816 by Robert Hanna, who had the first "store" there. Eli Vale was a successful merchant and he was succeeded by I. and M. Warwick who were in business for many years.

In 1839 the first post-office was instituted, with Richard Stock in charge.

Doctors John Edmundson and Thomas McMillan were the first physicians. Doctors Joshua and Luther Calvin were later medics and they were succeeded by the Vales, father and son.

The first church in Middleton was the Achor Valley Baptist Church at Achor Post Office in 1804. It started with fourteen members and Rev. Henry Frazier, as pastor. In 1806 they built their first building on an eminence under the spreading branches of forest trees. The third successive building now occupies the site with a well kept cemetery adjacent.

The Carmel Friends' Society organized in 1810, and erected a meeting house on a site donated by Jacob Heacock in a beautiful grove. In 1846 it was replaced by a comfortable frame structure which is practically abandoned now. In 1815 Amos Stevens agitated the organization of an M. E. Church and fifteen years later the struggling band erected a church on Stevens' land. In 1865 the church had prospered sufficiently to require a new building and is now known as Mt. Zion M. E. Church.

In 1839 the Clarkson Presbyterians erected a building on ground donated by Thomas Ashton and George Feazle. It was used until 1877 when it was replaced by a frame structure. Rev. William O. Stratton was their first pastor.

In 1862 the United Presbyterians formed a congregation and were organized in church fellowship by Rev. Samuel W. Clark, at the home of Samuel Roseburgh. A meeting house was built the year following, but the church has never thrived as its promoter hoped.

PERRY TOWNSHIP

PERRY is the central township of the northern tier, projecting northerly for half its area above the lateral line of Mahoning county. It is composed of sixteen sections, four each having been taken from Butler, Salem, Green and Goshen townships (when the latter two were given to Mahoning county upon the erection of that county), for the purpose of organizing Perry.

The land surface of this vicinity is of a gently rolling character and the farms to the east of Salem are quite fertile. The streams are small and scarcely noteworthy.

The transportation facilities of Perry are of the best; the Pennsylvania Company's Chicago trunk line running through the township diagonally, and the Salem Railroad which connects with the Erie Railway and the coal fields around Washingtonville.

The county roads here are probably better than in any other section.

Perry was organized in 1832 while the five southwestern townships of Mahoning were yet a part of Columbiana county.

In honor of the hero of Lake Erie the name of Perry was bestowed on the new township.

Joseph Wright, Thomas Webb, John Antrim and Dr. Benjamin Stanton, Treasurer, and with Benjamin Hawley, Clerk, were the first trustees, in 1833.

One peculiar feature of this section was that the city of Salem was an incorporated village some time before the township was erected.

From the beginning this section has been famed as a haven for the peace and liberty loving followers of William Penn, the Society of Friends being the potential influence in the life of Perry township.

In 1806, Thomas Jefferson granted a patent to Samuel Davis, a Pennsylvania Quaker, for Section 31 (now about one-third of the city of Salem) and subsequently Mr. Davis received a deed from Mr. Jefferson for Sections 20 and 33.

He cleared off a large tract and opened up a fine farm, two acres of which he donated to the Friends for a meeting house site the same year.

Mr. Davis was an uneducated man, but he was strong for his idea of the right and had a deeply rooted hatred for intoxicating liquors.

Mack's History recounts that "the first wedding in the Salem district was between Mr. Davis's daughter Rebecca and David Scofield." The Friends' Church record relates the incidents preceding the ceremony and adds "David took Rebecca's hand and they publicly asseverated the following pledge, to a transcript of which on the church records they afterwards signed, 'In the presence of this assembly I take this my friend ——— to be my (husband or wife), promising, with Divine aid to be to (him or her) a loving (husband or wife) till death shall separate us.'" Then follows the signature of the witnesses to the ceremony by twenty-four of the assembly.

Mr. Davis's later years were spent managing his estates and "peacemaking" between contentious citizens, his especial delight.

David Scofield "kept store" in Salem for many years after his marriage. Benjamin Hawley married Mary Davis in the '20's and was for many years a prominent and public spirited citizen.

John Webb came to Perry in 1805 and raised ten children. He kept the hotel in Salem afterwards known as the Jennings House, in the management of which his son John succeeded him. Levi Jennings settled on Section 26 in 1808. He was township treasurer almost uninterruptedly until 1823.

Abram Warrington and Job Cook came to Perry in 1804. John Strawn arrived in 1806 and settled on the northern one-third of Section 1. He and Zadok Street platted the town of Salem in 1806.

Within the next few years the population of Perry increased rapidly, the fame of Salem inducing many desirable Quaker citizens to locate here.

Hugh Burns, Zaccheus Test, Jonas Cattell and his son Enoch,

Thomas French and his brothers James, John, Robert and Barzilai were all early arrivals, and Zadok French was the first child born in Salem, January 7, 1808. John Street was the first storekeeper and postmaster of Salem. Thomas Stanley, Richard Fawcett, Abram Barber, Stacey Hunt, Jacob Painter and his four boys, Elisha and Israel Schooley, Michael Stratton, Jonathan Stanley and his three sons, Jonathan Evans, Dr. Benjamin Stanton, who for fifty years was Salem's leading physician, William Heaton, the great abolitionist, and Isaac Boone, father of Col. Thomas C. Boone—such was the character of citizens attracted to Perry in its early days.

A unique feature of the early life of the township appears on the township records of 1833.

Zadok Street had recorded articles of apprenticeship reciting that "Araminta Gist was bounden to him until her eighteenth year, she to be instructed in the art, trade and mystery of housewifery; to be taught reading and writing, and to cipher as far as the single rule of three; to be provided for, and allowed meat, drink, washing and lodging, with apparel for summer and winter. When she arrives at eighteen years of age, and at the expiration of her service, she shall receive a new Bible, and at least two units of common wearing apparel." Mary Sheets was also apprenticed to Thomas Burns. Mary was promised all the foregoing benefits, and in a burst of prodigality Thomas agreed to give her "a new bureau, one new wool wheel, and a new umbrella." From this small beginning doubtless sprang the great servant girl problem, that now agitates two continents.

The further history of Perry is identical with that of the city of Salem, under which head it will be found.

The present township officers are: Trustees, William Henshildwood, Charles E. Paxson, James Ramsey; Justices of Peace, A. J. King, J. B. Baker, O. J. Astray; Constables, James M. Reed, Cash Johnson; Clerk, E. O. French; Treasurer, Fred Pow.

SALEM TOWNSHIP

SALEM township originally consisted of thirty-six sections, but she lost four to Perry township when it was erected.

The surface of the land in Salem is gently rolling and fairly well wooded, and is well adapted to agriculture. Large deposits of coal are being heavily developed in the northern part of the township, and considerable iron of a medium grade has been discovered, although not worked for some time.

The soil is well drained by two headwater branches of Beaver Creek.

The earliest settler was Peter Miller on Section 1 (now occupied by Washingtonville and the Iron Co.), in 1803.

John Blair, J. Gongware and Fred Belger occupied Sections 2 about the same period. Jacob Bossart built a mill on the creek, in Section 3 in 1812, which has been almost constantly in operation since. Jesse Holloway was a pioneer on Section 4. William Shearer opened up Section 9 and later sold a portion of his tract to John Hilliard and John Rakestraw.

Urban Betz took up Section 11 and with his five sons cleared the territory now occupied by Leetonia.

David Hardman and Christian Meese occupied Section 12 in 1803; the Meese interest afterwards passed to John Anglemeyer. Section 13 was settled by Joseph Longnecker, the Anglemeyers and Zimmermans. Henry Dixon was the pioneer of Section 14. Samuel Reeves occupied Sections 15 and 22, afterwards selling a part to Ruth H. Nichols.

Section 16 was held as a "school section," subject to lease.

Jonathan Fawcett erected, in 1841, the large stone mill on the middle fork of the Beaver; the lower walls of which are four feet thick. In 1836 a lease was executed on the property for ninety-nine years, "lessee to have privilege of renewal." Section 17 was opened by William Furl, William Shinn and Abram Webb in 1809, and Nathan Hawley purchased the southeastern quarter in 1816. Benjamin Gaunt owned the larger portion of Section 19. Hugh Stuart, William Crane and Robert Phillips were early owners of Section 20.

Chilian Long, Conrad Bennett and Michael Mothinger were likewise pioneers of Sections 20 and 21.

Section 23 was entered in 1809 by Henry Dixon. John, Henry and Elizabeth Hoke were pioneers of Section 24. Henry Halverstadt purchased Section 26 from Gen. Reasin Beall.

Jacob Karns, William Groner and Daniel Keck settled on Section 27. Joseph Long, afterwards a Lutheran bishop, lived on this section for a time. Garrett Hart and Samuel Shelton were early arrivals on Section 28. Nathan McCracken later purchased a quarter of this section in 1812. C. K. Betz was proprietor of Section 29 and Preston Peck of Section 30 in 1804. James Yates subsequently purchased the west half of Section 30.

William Teegarden, James Blackledge and Uriah White were pioneers of Section 31 and Levi Blackledge and Mahlon Ervin took up Section 32.

The first post-office in Salem was established in this section in 1832 at what was later known as Teegarden Street on the Erie Railway.

In 1803, Bazaleel Wells of Steubenville entered Section 33, but sold it three years later to Abram Arter, George Butz, Andrew Brinker and Conrad Wormer.

Section 34 was taken up by Mat. Stewart, John Bricker, Daniel Burger, and Henry Wormer.

George and Andrew Simon and Jonathan Lodge were pioneers of Section 35. The latter gentleman was also one of the proprietors of Section 36.

When he arrived in 1805 he brought a wife and nine children. Andrew Brinker was a neighbor in 1806.

The villages of Leetonia, Washingtonville and Franklin Square are in this township; the larger part of Washingtonville, however, extending over into Mahoning county. It was laid out in 1844 by Michael Frederick. Henry Snyder was its first Mayor. Franklin Square was laid out by Fred Best, who for many years maintained a large tannery there. He was the first postmaster in 1844. Leetonia is mentioned under its own head.

The first church in Salem township was of the Lutheran denomination on Section 34. Rev. John Stough of Lisbon was its first pastor in 1812. In 1840 the Reformed Lutherans built their own church on the same section, and were ministered unto by Peter Monsmith.

St. Paul's Evangelical Church was organized in Leetonia in 1872, D. R. Hanna being a prominent pastor. St. John's Lutheran Church was organized in 1870, by Rev. S. Rechsler, and a $3000 building promptly erected. Hart Methodist Church was organized by Garret Hart in 1825. Their present building was erected in 1866.

Franklin Square Methodist Church was established in 1828; it is included in the Hart and Washingtonville charge. The latter village built its present Methodist Church in 1872. Its first pastor was Rev. John Murray.

About 1830 Robert Phillips became interested in the then new Disciple doctrine and donated land in Section 20 on which a church was speedily erected by the congregation he organized. In 1859 this building was replaced by a new one. Rev. Van Vorhis was their first minister. The Disciple church in the village of Salem was an outgrowth of Mr. Phillips' congregation.

The Highland Christian Church was an outgrowth of the efforts of Rev. William Teegarden, of Section 33; he for many years preached over the township. In 1860, Rev. D. B. Hyde regularly organized the church; Joel Johnson donated an acre of ground, others gave timber, and a building was soon up and harboring a large and prosperous congregation.

ST. CLAIR TOWNSHIP

ST. CLAIR township, named for the able governor of the north-west territory, Gen. Arthur St. Clair, occupies the region on the eastern border of the county, immediately north of Liverpool township.

Nearly the whole eastern end of the township is traversed by Beaver Creek and the picturesque ruins of the ill-starred canal. Many of the old "locks" of the canal afford delightful scenes in the summer season.

The surface of St. Clair is that of rugged hills and delightful well tilled valleys, slashed with limpid, swiftly flowing streams, well calculated to delight the eye of the lover of romantic scenery. Some of its forests are well-nigh in primitive virginity, and, along the creek, harbor black snakes of phenomenal size, which are alleged to carry off lambs and young calves, so great is their growth.

The confluence of two branches of the creek at Fredericktown forms an unsurpassed water power, and, during a freshet, a scene of thrilling interest as well.

A legend states that in 1792 a hunter named Quin lived in a cabin near Calcutta, but the best authenticated first settler is probably Seth Thomas, five years later, on Section 26. His son Enos aided in the organization of the county in 1803 and was for many years a prominent citizen.

James and John McLaughlin "flat boated" to the mouth of the Beaver from above Fort Pitt in 1802 and took up Sections 21 and 22, the latter being one-third occupied by John Coburn. John Totten and Isaac Matson settled on Section 32 in 1797. At that time St. Clair took in all the territory to the river, Liverpool township being as yet unorganized.

James Caruthers settled about the same time on Section 28. John George, and his sons, Thomas and William, were victims of the "land jumping" which sharpers brazenly practiced during this period. At great expense and labor they cleared off "Buck Flats," a desirable tract, and delayed going to Steubenville to "enter" the tract in the land office records. A "shark" learning of this, went to Steubenville, entered the tract in his own name, and, returning dispossessed the owners from their hard earned farm. They then took up the northwest part of Section 29, being careful to "enter" the claim on the records this time. John Goddis settled near them.

Samuel Huston, Robert Davis and Thomas Moore settled on Sections 21, 22 and 23 respectively in 1798. William White on Section 12, Moses Baird on Section 11, Cornelius Sheehan on Section 9, Lewis Cannon on Section 8 and Thomas Huston on Section 21 were settled prior to 1800. Henry Fischer settled near Calcutta in 1802. William Foulks built the first brick house in Calcutta, in 1802, then known as Foulkstown.

Alex. McCoy, Phil. Rauch, and Peter Foulks were neighbors. John Smith kept a tavern in the early days, where the Ben Fisher residence now stands, Paul Fisher afterwards taking charge.

Samuel Quigley, Sr., was the first merchant in Calcutta. His son Samuel came to Calcutta about this time and was the first, and one of the best, physicians in this end of the county. He practiced for fifty years with marked success.

Joseph Green, who kept tavern in Calcutta, was with Gen. Harrison during the War of 1812.

Enos Thomas performed the first wedding ceremony, as a justice of peace, in 1803, Susanna Shaw and Jesse Smith being the contracting parties.

In 1805 the commissioners fixed St. Clair's boundaries to include thirty-six sections, but in 1834 the organization of Liverpool township, composed of "fractional St. Clair" and the six southern sections of St. Clair proper, curtailed the latter township to thirty sections.

Four small villages thrive in a desultory manner in St. Clair, viz., Calcutta, Fredericktown, Spruce Vale and Cannon's Mill. Calcutta is the most pretentious and thriving and is the seat of township government. The significance of its oriental cognomen is not apparent to the wayfarer. Cannon's Mill owes its existence to the flour mill at that crossroads.

The first church in the township (and county as well) was Long's Run Presbyterian Church, the members being pretty well organized in 1800. The first preacher was Rev. Hughes, of Pennsylvania, who preached, shaded by a tree at the intersection of the streets of Foulkstown (Calcutta). The place of worship was transferred that fall, for convenience, to Long's Run, from which the church took its name. The next habitation of the church was on the Ben Fisher farm, then owned by Paul Fisher, in a log structure built for the purpose. The first regular pastor was Rev. Clement L. Vallandigham, father of the famous agitator of secession. He preached there and at his home in Lisbon, until 1817, when the church built another building at its present location southeast of Calcutta.

UNITY township occupies the northeastern corner of the county and contains its original complement of thirty-six sections. Its surface in the southern part is quite hilly, but in the northern portion it becomes comparatively level.

The mineral wealth of Unity consists of large deposits of excellent coal and fire clay; some iron ore exists, but not in commercially important quantities.

Several large streams contribute towards excellent drainage, and the soil is generally fertile all over the township. Unity in the early days, like Middleton, suffered from gangs of Pennsylvania "squatters" and land grabbers.

Adam Rupert, a soldier of the Revolution, Michael Baker, Robert Simison, afterwards prominent as a jurist, David McCalla and Richard Dikline were among the substantial pioneers who succeeded the "squatter" element in 1800-1802.

Conrad and Mathias Varrian, with their large families, settled on Sections 7 and 8. Richard Beeson and John Sands, Aaron and Isaac Chamberlain, James Armstrong, John Bennett, Stephen Ogden, Benjamin Reeves and Joseph Taylor all arrived in the township about 1806.

William Harsh on Section 1 in 1803 and Jacob Greenamyer and sons on Section 2 the same year were pioneers. Section 3 was taken up by the four Blackburn brothers and James Early. Henry Forney's six sons divided Section 10 among them in 1803. Peter Eyster was an early arrival on Section 11; Isaac Early, on Section 15 and Charles Long on Section 13, both entering in 1803. The previous summer Frederick Sheets, with six sons and two daughters moved upon Section 23. John Taggart entered Section 25 about the same time.

From 1805 to 1810 the population rapidly increased, notable among the accessions being the Boatman, Crum, Martin, Kees, Cress, Mendenhall, Justison and Hatcher families.

Mack's History recites an interesting illustration of spleen and economy combined, in a transcript of an advertisement taken

Of Mr. Vallandigham, Mack's History relates, "He was noted for his methodical promptness in fulfilling appointments; when streams were high he many a time swam them with his horse to keep his Sabbath engagement at Calcutta." In 1808 the united membership of his Lisbon and Long's Run congregations was forty-five. In 1817 when he retired to Lisbon exclusively, his rolls showed 261 communicants in the two blocks. Of him it used to be remarked, "Mr. Vallandigham is the preacher for Christians and Mr. Hughes for sinners." The brick structure of the present was erected in 1868. Rev. P. W. Snyder is the present pastor, with a congregation of about 200. The U. P. congregation was organized in 1815 by Rev. E. N. Seroggs, who preached there until 1851. His remains lie in the adjacent cemetery, his grave duly marked with a monument. Another faithful minister to this church was Rev. J. H. Leiper, whose ministry began in 1868. The present building, south of Calcutta, was built in 1805. Rev. W. B. Campbell, the present pastor, has 150 communicants on his books.

The Disciple Church at Fredericktown was organized in 1827 through the efforts of Walter Scott. Services were held in No. 1 school-house for several years. Mary Gaston, Rebecca Meek, John Jackman and wife, David Figley and wife, and John Wollam and wife were the organizers. In 1853 they built a church which, in 1877, was removed to Fredericktown, building and all, where from a Lisbon paper of 1820, viz., "One cent reward: Ran away from the subscriber in Unity township, Monday the 23d inst., an indentured mulatto girl named Anna Barnhill, seventeen years old. Whoever takes up said girl and delivers her to me, shall have the above reward, and twenty-five lashes into the bargain, but neither thanks nor charges paid by, Martin Shellenbergher." It is probable the girl acted advisedly in absconding, if the above is a reflection of Martin's disposition.

The township was organized in 1805, but in common with the practice of that time the records of the occasion were not preserved.

The villages in the township are New Waterford, Unity and East Palestine, the last of which will receive individual mention.

Unity was laid out by John Augustine in 1810, and was originally quite an important point.

The pioneer merchant was Robert Veon, and Henry Forney was the first innkeeper.

The first post-office was opened in the store of John McClymonds. Dr. Hugh Martin was a noted physician from 1820 to 1840 and possessed an extensive practice.

New Waterford was platted in 1850 by John and Robert Silliman and in 1852 the wisdom of the founders was rewarded by the P. F. W. and C. R. R. running its line through the village, which occurrence put Unity practically out of the race for supremacy in the township. John Silliman and John Nevin were pioneer merchants. Above New Waterford water power mills have been in operation since 1804, and below the village several mills were established very early which have since given way to plants of greater capacity. The excellence of the quality of the product of these mills has led to the belief in the trade that the name "New Waterford" on a sack of flour is a certain badge of fine quality.

The first church organization had its inception in small meetings as early as 1802 at Adam Rupert's cabin, usually addressed by Rev. John Stough. The first church was erected of logs in services have since been held. Elder Jackman was the first minister. The first school teacher was Joseph McKennon, a soldier of the Revolution, who taught in a log hut near the present Riverview Cemetery of East Liverpool in 1800. He was a close friend of the Poe boys and Capt. Dan. Brady and was present at the fight which ended in the death of the Indian "Big Foot." About 1810 John Quinn taught in a log house near the Calvin home on the Fredericktown road.

W. H. McGuffey, famous later as an educator and author of unequalled text books, taught several terms in Calcutta.

The first postmaster in Calcutta was William Christy in the '20's. Fredericktown and Cannon's Mill are also post-offices. About the close of the Civil War, oil was struck along the eastern border of the township in paying quantities. Wild excitement ensued, farmers mortgaged their property for funds to drill wells, new wells came in, and all looked bright ahead until suddenly the field went "dry" and aside from a very few small producing wells the "field" was the scene of a nipping frost for the eager investors. The present township officers are: Trustees, George McCoy, Charles Gonzales, J. W. Crawford; Constable, John Lambright; Justices of the Peace, J. E. Davis, Alfred T. Moore.

1804 on Section 10, and their third building was erected on the site in 1861.

Rev. Shaefer was the first regular pastor in 1810.

St. Paul's Lutheran Church, formed by seceders from the Rupert Society, built their house of worship on Section 2. Rev. Haelsche was the first regular pastor in 1840.

About 1850 the two factions again joined forces, and St. Paul's became an integral part of the original parish.

Unity M. E. Church was organized about 1861 by Rev. David Hess. It has been fairly prosperous and is now a part of the East Palestine charge.

Pleasant Valley Presbyterian Church was organized in 1825 with Rev. Robert Dilworth as the first minister. The present building was erected in 1873.

In 1858 the M. E. Church in New Waterford was organized by Rev. G. D. Skinner and their new building was dedicated to church work in 1859.

NEW WATERFORD

New Waterford is situated on Sections 19, 20 and 29 in Unity township. The village is divided by Big Bull Creek. The plat was recorded in 1851 by John and Robert Silliman and was originally known as Bull Creek. The town struggled along in a desultory fashion for many years, but since 1890 has been steadily gaining in importance, through the coal industries in the vicinity, until it bids fair to rival its neighboring railroad towns.

It possesses some 800 inhabitants and is growing rapidly. The following officials are now in charge of the city government, viz.: Jacob Koch, Mayor; Samuel C. Scott, City Clerk; B. Town Walker, Marshal; Council, George J. Koch, H. B. Dow, Walter Scoville, Frank Kinnear, P. F. Vollnagle, Joseph Bretz.

WASHINGTON TOWNSHIP

WASHINGTON lies on the southwestern border adjoining Jefferson county. The general character of the township can be thoroughly defined by the phrase, hilly and healthy.

The C. and P. R. R. bisects the township diagonally in its effort to give full service to the immense coal fields which are so largely developed in Washington. The only village and railroad station in Washington is the thriving town of Salineville, which receives an extended treatment under its proper head.

When originally organized in 1816 the township was given the name "Saline," owing to the "salt wells" which were vents to a subterranean briny sea, but on the erection of Carroll county, some sections were apportioned to the new county, and some were taken from each Wayne and Franklin townships and added to the remnant of Saline township and the hodge podge of "fractional sections" reappeared under the name of Washington township.

The first settlers arrived in the township in 1803, the first being probably William McLaughlin, whose son Alex was prominent for several years as the first Mayor of Wellsville. George Clark, afterwards a justice of the peace; James Sharp, George and Silas Burson, Cornelius McLeest, John Farmer, a Quaker, prominent in the organization of the C. and P. R. R. Thomas and Martin Adams, Moses Marshall, James and John Ogle, Thomas Patterson and John Hart were prominent pioneers previous to 1805.

James Hoey was Salineville's first tavern-keeper. Evan McPherson was a pioneer of the Scotch section about Highlandtown, which place was platted in 1834 by Angus McDonald. Allen Dallas and David Rose were fellow emigrants with MacPherson.

The salt deposits in the township were discovered to the Indians by the action of wild animals who had "licks" where the brine had exuded and precipitated as salt; this made Washington a favorite hunting section for deer and other game until the county lost its wild character.

In 1809 an inquisitive Kentuckian by the name of James came to the valley and sank the first "salt well." The consequent generous flow of brine encouraged other similarly successful ventures in that line and induced an influx of lively "salt boilers," whose personal characteristics introduced frequent and startling innovations in saline society. A prominent attribute seemed to be an abnormal thirst, possibly accentuated by the salty atmosphere, with much resultant fighting. Salineville thus early earned a reputation in pugilism.

The Bursons, Anthony Roof and John Farmer were prominent in the salt industry, Mr. Farmer being probably the most successful financially. He and his brother platted the town of Salineville in 1839 and incorporated it in 1848; but not until the stimulus afforded by the advent of the C. and P. R. R. reached it did the town thoroughly awaken, and it has flourished steadily since. Its first Mayor was John Tasker who afterwards removed to East Liverpool.

The earliest church organization was the First M. E. Church, organized in 1837. In 1850 the congregation erected a frame building, with Rev. Archibald as their pastor. This building was supplanted by a larger brick structure in 1870, in which Rev. Huston preached first.

The U. P. Church dates from 1866, when Rev. Joseph Boyd ministered to a small congregation. In 1869 the society was augmented by the accession of the Free Presbyterians, at which time Rev. W. H. Janison was pastor. Rev. S. U. Coon was a prominent minister in the church's early history. In 1864 the First Presbyterian Church was organized in a school house, the owners of which were of that denomination. Rev. Robert Hayes was the first pastor.

The Disciples Church was organized in 1856, and their first meeting house was the former Friends' Church, which they purchased from James Farmer for $1000. Rev. Wesley Lanphear was the first regular minister.

In 1872 Rev. P. J. McGuire aided in the erection of St. Patrick's Catholic Church which has prospered steadily ever since.

Highlandtown, laid out in 1834 by Angus McDonald, is a small rural settlement, and is not recognized by the post-office department, Inverness being its postal name.

In 1841 the M. E. Church at this point was established by Rev. J. K. Mills.

Coal was known to abound in the Salineville field as early as 1810, and was freely used for domestic consumption for years before any effort was made towards the commercial development of the deposits.

The advent of the railroad in 1852 supplied the necessary stimulation to the dormant coal interests and the awakening was quick and permanent.

The pioneer "coal barons" were James Penrose, Jehu Miller, John Thompson and Mat. Brown. The firm of Hayes and Hussey was prominent in the trade for a number of years.

About 1870 the McGarry interests, of Cleveland, were attracted to the field since which time they and their successors, the Ohio and Pennsylvania Coal Co., have practically controlled the territory.

The character of the coal can be most lucidly described by the statement that it is about halfway between the "Pittsburg" and the "Hocking" varieties.

In 1900 the average daily output of this coal was sixty cars, or 1500 tons. It is used exclusively as a steam coal, possessing comparatively no gas-making qualities.

In this immediate vicinity two large grist mills produce great quantities of high grade flour, and an immense brick plant and a stoneware pottery are operated. The first postmaster in Washington was Alex. Chisholm, in 1835, at Highlandtown (now Inverness). James Farmer was appointed postmaster at Salineville the same year, and the "office" was kept in his general store.

The only battle during the Civil War within the boundaries of the state of Ohio was fought in Washington township, the celebrated raider, John Morgan, being defeated back of Salineville by Union troops and forced to surrender the next day near Lisbon, by Maj. Rue, who had chased him for one hundred miles.

TOWNSHIP HISTORIES

WAYNE TOWNSHIP

WAYNE adjoins Centre township on the south and contains twenty-five sections, being but five miles square.

The surface of the township is rather rough and much cut up by the numerous streams which form the west fork of Beaver Creek.

The township organization was effected in 1806 and originally covered thirty-six sections, but on the erection of Carroll county, five sections were given from Wayne's quota to Washington township and six to Franklin township.

The first settlers arrived in 1802, Adam Poe, father of the famous Indian fighting boys, Aaron Hull, James Hoge, Patrick McKaig, the Sheehans, Armstrongs and Hutchinsons being among the foremost.

Gideon Gaver settled in 1804 on the section where Gavers post-office now is. John T. Parker, James Figley and James Donaldson arrived about the same time. Other pioneers were John Fleming on Section 9, James Armstrong on Section 4, James Hoge on Section 8, William King on Section 7, along with the McKaigs, William Grafton, the Pattersons, McCords, McMillians, Desellems and Morgans.

Jean Meister and Gottlob Northdurft were two early French settlers who were proud of having served under the first Napoleon.

Daniel Lindesmith was noted in these early days as a phenomenal rifle shot and a fearless hunter of big game.

Bethel Presbyterian Church was in existence as early as 1818 under the ministry of the ubiquitous Rev. Robertson. In 1823 it was formally organized and a new frame building replaced the log cabin originally used. In 1832 the third building was erected, larger than its predecessor, and dedicated in the presence of a large assemblage by Rev. Robert Hays.

Lebanon U. P. Church was organized in 1831 as the Associate Reformed Church with Rev. James Brown as its first minister. The present building was erected in 1850.

Wayne township has no settlements large enough to possess a civic organization. Gavers and West Beaver post-offices are the nearest approaches to towns in the township.

Robert Fleming is said to have been the first official at Gavers post-office and William Phillips at West Beaver.

WEST TOWNSHIP

WEST township, in harmony with its title, is on the middle western border of the county. It possesses a rolling surface and is, in the centre, quite hilly.

The watershed separating the drainage of the Big Sandy district from that of the Mahoning River passes through West township.

Well appointed farms, devoted largely to the production of high grade live stock, are features of West.

The township was organized in 1816 of full thirty-six sections, although pioneers began taking up land about the time the county was established in 1803.

Among the earlier arrivals were Michael Sanor and his eleven children. Sanor had served under Washington during the entire Revolution.

John Ruff brought nine children with him.

In 1804 Henry King settled on Section 4. David Smith, John Hahn and Isaac Davis arrived with their families the same year. In 1807 three families, those of William Harrison, John Freed and John Hahn, Jr., settled upon Section 13. John Coulson and family, Nathan Pine, John Messmore and Philip Wolf came in 1811-12.

Philip Bremer and Isaac Willis arrived in 1819. John Willis, son of Isaac, had considerable local prestige from the fact of his having been the possessor of three successive wives and seventeen children.

Other prominent settlers prior to 1820 were the Barnes, Lower, Betts, Redmond and Foulks families.

East Rochester, Bayard and Moultrie are the principal settlements in West township, none of them possessing a civil government. New Alexander, Chambersburg and Lynchburg are smaller hamlets with no distinguishing features worthy of note. Bayard is a small settlement at the junction of the C. and P. Ry. main line and the same company's Tuscarawas branch. It was platted in 1852 by Cyrus Prentiss and James Farmer, but never thrived.

East Rochester was originally known as Emmons' Cross-roads and a Mr. St. Clair was its postmaster in 1828. In 1834 Emmons and Davis platted the tract under the name of Rochester. It is now a railroad station on the C. and P. R. R.

Moultrie was platted by John Foulks in 1851. It is also a station on the railroad.

The first church and school building in West township was the "pioneer building" at New Alexander, built in 1810. All public gatherings for years assembled in this structure. It was razed in 1840.

One of the earliest schools was on Section 35 in 1810 and Nathan Pine was the master.

YELLOW CREEK TOWNSHIP

YELLOW CREEK township adjoins Liverpool on the Ohio River and is of irregular shape and contains but twenty-three sections. Its name is due to the two large streams which cross its borders, Big Yellow Creek reaching the river in Jefferson county and Little Yellow Creek, which has its river outlet in Wells-ville. The surface of the township is rough and hilly excepting along the river and creek levels. The soil is unusually fertile.

Mineral deposits in Yellow Creek are profuse, varied and profitably developed, coal, stone and fire clay being the principal products.

Several of the largest brick and sewer pipe plants in the world are within the borders of this township.

The township was formally organized in 1805 and originally carried a row of sections on its lower border, which, upon the erection of Carroll county, were apportioned to Jefferson county, a procedure scarcely justified by reason.

A territorial surveyor named Johnston is said to have been granted the entire original area of the township, at an ostensible valuation of $6 per acre, as a liquidation of a debt owed him by the United States Government for surveyor's fees in 1797.

James Clark, of Pennsylvania, purchased about 350 acres of the tract, Wells-ville's present site, but later finding himself cramped in his efforts to keep up his payments, he transferred his major interests to his son-in-law, William Wells, who removed to his purchase in 1797 or 1798.

Mr. Clark evidently recuperated his fallen fortunes later, as he removed to the remainder of his land prior to 1800, was a member of the Legislature of Ohio in 1809, and lived on his little farm until his death, at the great age of 104 years.

Mack's History mentions that the residents of Wells' settlement in 1800, simply spent the daylight hours on the Ohio side of the river, retiring at dark to the government block house on the Virginia side, which was on the tract where the colonial A. P. Howard residence now stands. After 1810 Mr. Wells lived for years in a log house about the present intersection of Seventh and Commerce Streets, in Wells-ville. Prior to 1800 Mr. Wells' neighboring pioneers were Robert Boyce, Adam Hickman, Alex. McDonald, Thomas and Dawson Swearingen.

Robert Dobbins, the famous Methodist exhorter, lived on what is now known as the Bean estate above Wells-ville.

Other settlements on the highlands were made by Samuel Flowers, Daniel Maylove and Robert Strain.

Near the creek lived John Scott, "Fighting Bill" Wells and John Parsons.

A later arrival was Joseph Knapp, a "salt boiler" who acquired wide fame by thrashing, seriatim, all the bullies of the river district.

Jacob Neisly and Isaac Emmons each received a gift of a large tract on Big Yellow Creek, from their fathers in 1800.

"Big Bill" McIntosh was a famous Scotch settler in those times. Another noted character was Abel Geer, "the crop-eared Yankee," said to have lost his ear by a fight with a panther.

Oak Ridge Presbyterian Church is about four miles west from Wells-ville. Its organization was a matter of convenience, in 1851 or 1852, as the Wells-ville Church was too distant for the Oak Ridge contingent to attend as frequently as they desired. Rev. John Price was the first minister.

The city of Wells-ville will receive mention under its own distinctive head.

HISTORY OF CITIES OF TOWNSHIPS

EAST LIVERPOOL CITY

INCEPTION

IN the year 1798 Thomas Fawcett came to the site of East Liverpool and purchased an 1100 acre tract of land reaching from about the present location of the Pennsylvania passenger station to Jethro Run.

Mr. Fawcett cleared some land and erected a cabin about the present intersection of Second and Union Streets.

Other settlers closely following Fawcett were John Rauch, a shoemaker, "Quaker Tom" Ashton, the first merchant in the settlement, Angus McBane, a tanner who resided back of Jethro hill, and Ed. Devoe, a negro, who made a clearing just opposite the present entrance to "Spring Grove."

Mr. Fawcett was a Quaker and his occupation was jointly that of a carpenter and farmer. In 1802 he laid out and christened the settlement "St. Clair Town."

The entry in the Recorder's office page 520, Book I stands, viz., "Plan of St. Clair Town, laid off in Jefferson county, northwest territory, June 3, 1802." The plat shows four blocks on Union Street from Water Street to Fourth, thence west to the first alley west of Jackson Street, thence south to the intersection of Water and First Streets, thence southeast diagonally to the corner of Market and Water Streets, thence to point of beginning.

On the river front Water Street was fifty feet in width to where the bend in the river bank forced the merger of First and Water Streets.

Just above the Golding mill a point of land extended far out into the river in 1800, and bore a fine grove of sugar trees. Michael McKennon was the mail carrier from Washington, Pa., to Wellsburg at that time, and although but thirteen years of age, he used frequently to relate that the river was so narrow at the sugar camp that he had often thrown a stone entirely across the stream.

On comparing the description of the then river front with that of the present, despite much filling in, the ravages of the "insatiable Ohio" can be appreciated.

DR. B. R. OGDEN'S HOME, 1878.

Regardless of the legal name, the village became, by common consent, "Fawcettstown" and so remained until it was laid out as "Liverpool" in 1816. That date (July 4th) was celebrated by "Thomas Fosset, James Pemberton and John Fossett offering for record the plat of Liverpool," according to the records of Enos Thomas, recorder.

This plat covered all the territory comprised in the previous plat of 1802, excepting that all of Water Street and about half the land between Water and First Streets had meanwhile voyaged down the Ohio.

This record donates lots 1 and 7 (Fourth and Union Streets) for school purposes, and lots 132 and 137 (St. Stephen's Church) for church purposes and a cemetery. The proprietors reserved all the fractional lots between First Street and the river for themselves.

In 1832 Clailburne Simms the first, platted the tract beginning at St. Stephen's Church property along the north side of Fourth Street to West Street (about the flint mill site), thence to the river, and up the stream to a point parallel with the beginning, thence to the first point. Mr. Simms also gave the Fifth Street cemetery site to the town for "cemetery purposes." He probably never expected it to be put to the present base uses. Mr. Simms came here in 1824 and purchased all the territory running from the west side of Market Street and the river up back of the McKennon farm to the Gaddes farm, thence across California hollow and to the crest of the Pleasant Heights hill, thence southwest to the Picket property, thence to the river along the west side of the West End base ball grounds.

Hill and Smith platted their addition from Union Street, Third and Locust Alley to the river. Joseph Smith was a miller in the Carpenter's Run mill where the West End pottery now stands.

George D. McKinnon had a distillery on his farm (now East End) in 1809 and Thomas Fawcett, Jr., had a tavern in a log house at Union and Second Streets. Sutton and McNichol had the first store worthy of the name opposite Fawcett's Tavern.

Sanford C. Hill, father of Col. H. R. Hill, was the first dry goods merchant about 1820. "July 4, 1811, a monster barbecue was held on the river bank where Cartwright's pottery now stands.

JOHN SMITH

The Leading Merchant of the Ohio Valley in the 60's.

William C. Larwell read the Declaration of Independence and Capt. Wilcox, at the head of a grand array of militiamen, shot off one of his flowing side whiskers by accident, much to the amusement of the crowd" (Mack's History). The immediate effect of this sensational episode, was seen in much twisting of the Lion's tail, and the subsequent large number of volunteers for the United States Army in the War of 1812 against Great Britain. From the meagre population of the village no less than twenty-two men entered the service and fought under "Tippecanoe" Harrison until peace was attained.

The village thrived indifferently for many years, disappointment in failing to secure the county seat inducing a number of the more prominent men to remove to Steubenville and Wheeling. It is related that in 1823 the town had "gone back" so remarkably that the settlement possessed but six families and two bachelors. "The only street was a wide greensward (Second Street) with a faint bridle path through the centre." (Horace Mack.)

In 1830 a post-office was established with John Collins in charge and a turnpike was opened via Lisbon to Cleveland; Clailburne Simms prepared to sub-divide part of his property, Scott and Hills steam sawmill was established and the hamlet all forlorn again picked up heart.

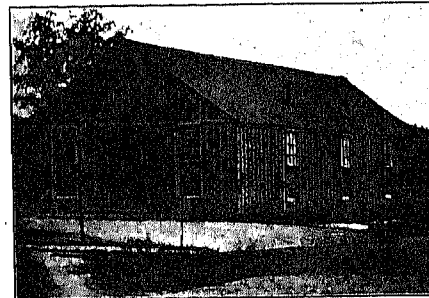

George D. McKinnon began building flat boats and Samuel Coffin established a boat building yard and produced the steamboat Liverpool, which went into the Wheeling and Pittsburg trade under the command of Capt. Richard Huston who lived for many years at the corner of Fourth and Washington Streets. He was the father of Martha and Euphemia Huston, for many years prominent in the local public schools.

Other steamboats were produced by Coffin and McKinnon as well as many barges.

In 1834 East Liverpool was formally incorporated the prefix "East" being added to avoid confusion with a small settlement in Medina county called Liverpool. The name of Liverpool is so identified with the crockery industry that the history of one is the history of both.

James Bennett, an emigrant from England in 1839, happened to "turn up" in East Liverpool in the fall of that year, en route from Cincinnati to Pittsburg, seeking employment.

THE OLD M. E. TABERNACLE, 1879.

Having been a packer in an English yellow ware pottery his practiced eye readily noted the adaptability of the clay along the river banks to the manufacture of ware.

He enlisted the interest of Benjamin Harker and in the spring of 1840 had a small one-kiln pottery in operation. His first kiln was soon out, and of its burning, Isaac W. Knowles took two crates of ware down the river in a trading boat while Bennett peddled the balance through the country from a wagon. It is said the two "merchants" netted $250 from that first kiln, quite a respectable sum in those days. This first of Liverpool's many potteries stood on ground below the foot of Second Street, long since washed away. About 1845 Bennett and his brothers removed to Allegheny where he made yellow ware until his death.

In 1842 the Mansion House, originally built for a swell hotel at the corner of Washington and Second Streets, was leased by James Salt and Fred Mear, Messrs. Ogden and Hancock joining with them in establishing a yellow ware pottery which is now a part of the plant of John Croxall & Sons.

The other pioneer of the crockery business was John Goodwin, afterwards Mayor, and father of the members of the Goodwin Pottery Co., who established a pottery at the corner of Second and FIFTH AND WASHINGTON STREETS, 1886.

Market Streets which later was run by S. & W. Baggott. He also established the pottery now owned by the McNicol Pottery Co. His third and last enterprise was the establishment of the present Goodwin Pottery Co. plant, aided by his three sons, James H., George S. and Henry. In the early forties Benjamin Harker established the "Etruria pottery" in a log building at the east end of the present Harker pottery. He was later joined by George S. Harker, father of the members of the present Harker Pottery Co., and James Taylor.

William Brunt made yellow ware in 1847 where the G. F. Brunt porcelain plant now stands.

Woodward Blakely & Co.'s plant in 1850 covered the territory now occupied by the Vodrey, Brunt and East Liverpool companies.

In 1860 William Bloor, partner in the Brunt knob factory, produced the first white porcelain in the United States, but the financial stringency incident to war prospects forbade his taking the discovery beyond the experimental stage.

The immense plant of the Knowles, Taylor and Knowles Co., was established in 1853 by Isaac W. Knowles and Isaac Harvey. The Harvey interest was taken over later by Mr. Knowles and a partnership was formed by Mr. Knowles, his son-in-law John N. Taylor and Homer S. Knowles.

In 1870 their careful experiments resulted in their producing white crockery, for the first time, at a profit, in this country.

The inventive genius of Isaac W. Knowles was responsible for a large measure of the firm's success, he having devised many labor and time-saving clay-working devices.

Among other machines should be mentioned the "pull down," which changed the manufacture of all hollow dishes, such as bowls, basins, plates, cups and saucers from a few dozen daily by hand to hundreds of dozens daily by machine. In 1878 Henry Brunt and Son and R. Thomas and Sons were both large manufacturers of door knobs, exclusively.

About 1890 the development of electrical devices induced both firms to experiment with porcelain insulating attachments for electrical wiring of interiors.

Success was instant and both firms are now engaged entirely in the production of electrical porcelains of all characters.

They practically control the market of the United States. In 1896 Henry Brunt retired and the plant is now in charge of George F. Brunt.

One of the offshoots of the yellow ware industry was carried on for many years at the head of Forest Street by William Colclough. He had a Lilliputian pottery there, but produced large quantities of clay pipes. Along in the '70's the site of the West End pottery was occupied by Burgess Bros. stoneware pottery, devoted to the production of crocks and jugs. About the same period the site of the Dresden pottery was also occupied by a stoneware plant operated by Nathaniel Simms and Homer Laughlin, the latter becoming founder of the Laughlin China Co. some years later.

This stoneware, and a great deal of yellow ware, was taken largely by trading boats, along with tin and glassware, and distributed to the waiting population of "Long Reach," in exchange for produce.

In 1842 George McCullough established a brick and sewer pipe works about a mile below Jethro.

It was afterwards purchased by N. U. Walker, of Wellsville, who developed it into the largest sewer pipe plant in the world.

The plant extends along the river for almost a mile at the base of towering cliffs from which the clay for the plant is mined. Considerable coal for the plant has also been extracted from the same source.

The output of the plant is loaded at its doors into barges and cars for shipment by river or rail.

Large brick yards were conducted along in the '70's by Harry Surles and Surles and Gamble where Knowles' china works now stand.

One of the queer characters of the town following the Civil War was old "Santa Anna." He lived as a hermit on the Simms' farm in a ramshackle cabin at the present crossing of the Horn Switch and East Market Street and conducted a solitary "pottery" of one kiln just north of the present Central Fire Station.

His proper name was Henderson, but service in the Mexican War and the absence of one leg conspired to gain him the sobriquet "Santa Anna."

His arrival in the city was unheralded and he departed equally unannounced, being found dead in his little cabin one Sunday morning.

One of the important early industries was the A. J. Boyce foundry, established in 1869, and devoted largely to the production of machinery and casting for the pottery industry.

Mr. Boyce died suddenly in 1898, universally mourned, at the age of fifty-six years.

The plant is now owned and operated by the Patterson Machine Co.

The first railroad fever attacking the town was manifested in 1835.

The thirty-fourth legislature (1835-1836) chartered the Ash-tabula, Warren and East Liverpool Railroad, promoted by John Patrick, preacher and financier, of the last named town. He possessed undoubted ability in that direction, for one visit to New York sufficed to complete the organization of the railroad company with all stock subscribed. On his return to East Liverpool, he opened a large general store, started the survey of the railroad, and launched the prospectus of a bank.

Before his energies were permitted to bear fruit, however, the ominous premonitions of the disastrous panic of 1837 thickened the financial atmosphere, his New York friends let their obligations go to protest and the arrival of the "panic" buried Patrick's schemes deep and finally.

Mack's History relates that "September 16, 1856, the first through train on the Cincinnati and Pittsburgh Railroad (Cleveland and Pittsburgh) went through carrying an excursion to the Fremont barbeque at Pittsburg. No depot being yet in the town Andrew Blythe sold tickets from the front door step of his residence near the railroad." Although half a century has nearly passed since this event the C. and P. depot facilities are relatively little better.

Previous to that date trains had been running between Wells-ville and Cleveland and East Liverpool and Rochester.

The present year finds the hopes of the city centred on the extension of the B. and O. Ry. short line from Akron via this city to Pittsburg and a trans-county electric road from Salem via Lisbon to this city.

Both projects, however, are merely possibilities.

EAST LIVERPOOL WATER WORKS

The City Water Works was authorized by act of legislature in 1879.

A pump house was erected on the river shore just below Babb's Island and a large reservoir constructed on the hill crest 350 feet above, with a capacity of 1,500,000 gallons.

The force obtained from this weight of water maintained at such a height, imparted several severe and lasting lessons to the embryo "fireman" of that time who desired to show how he could hold the nozzle unaided.

In 1890 this plant became inadequate to the needs of the growing city and another reservoir was built on a second hill 300 feet above reservoir No. 1, for a special high pressure service. To provide for it, a second pumping station was set up midway between the two reservoirs.

The supply and force thus obtained is already taken up and a third reservoir is being constructed beside No. 1 which will give a reservoir capacity, in toto, of seven and a half million gallons.

A private plant is also projected in East End.

The main pump station of the City Water Works contains as handsome and effective machinery as can be seen anywhere, the equipment being as follows: one Cope-Maxwell duplex pump with one and a half million gallons capacity, and one Gordon duplex direct pump of three and a half million gallons capacity.

The upper pump station is equipped with one Gordon duplex pump with one and a half million gallons capacity.

The original service called for three and a half miles of street mains. Now over twenty-six miles of street mains are in service and more are demanded.

The first Board of Trustees was composed of Josiah Thompson, Isaac W. Knowles and Thos. Arbuckle, with Christian Metsch as Clerk.

The present value of the plant is $240,000, with a bonded indebtedness of $140,000 drawing from three and a half per cent. to five per cent. interest.

EAST LIVERPOOL FINANCIAL

The first Liverpool bank was organized by Huff and Co. in 1870, in the hotel building in east Second Street.

F. D. Kitchel was cashier and manager.

In 1873 they erected the building at the eastern side of Broadway next the railroad, but had scarcely gotten fully established when the panic of '73 came along and the several Huff & Co.'s banks were carried down in the wreck that followed the failure of Jay Cooke & Co. in New York.

Their liquidation in East Liverpool was so well handled by Mr. Kitchel that they paid eighty per cent. of their liabilities. In the winter of 1873 David Boyce, Capt. W. S. George, Josiah Thompson, N. B. Hickman, George Morley, Isaac W. Knowles and Noah Frederick organized a state bank, Mr. Boyce, President and F. D. Kitchel, Cashier.

The latter part of the following year the institution was re-organized as the First National Bank with David Boyce, President and N. G. Macrum, Cashier. Both gentlemen are at present holding the same offices, and the bank is in the front rank of Ohio financial institutions. It occupies its own fine block in Washington Street near Fourth Street.

In 1881, a charter was issued to the Potters' National Bank with William Brunt, President, and F. D. Kitchel, Cashier, the latter gentleman holding his office until in 1899, when failing health warned him to desist from further arduous labors. He was succeeded by Roland W. Patterson formerly paying teller.

The bank occupies its own elegant building at Fifth and Washington Streets, in which it also possesses fine and commodious safe-deposit vaults.

Its former building at Fourth Street and Broadway is still owned by the bank and maintained as an office building.

The Citizens' National Bank occupies its own handsome building in Washington Street near Sixth.

Robert Hall is president and Heber H. Blythe cashier, positions both have occupied since the bank's organization in 1897. This bank is already in the ranks of the leading banks in this section. Each of these banks is capitalized at $100,000 and all possess a handsome surplus.

Three large and conservative local building and loan companies flourish in East Liverpool and do an immense business.

EAST LIVERPOOL CURRENT

The prominent industry of the city is the manufacture of fine crockery, the grade of ware produced here being unsurpassed in the world for general excellence.

Over thirty plants devoted to this work alone are valued at fifteen millions of dollars.

Two large plants here also produce the bulk of the porcelain electrical appliances used in the world.

Another plant is devoted exclusively to the production of door and shutter knobs, of all varieties that can be made from clay.

Three large machine shops and two foundries represent the iron trade.

One immense sewer pipe plant and one brick factory also do a prosperous business.

A further idea of the commercial importance of the city will be gained from a perusal of the statement of postal business submitted for the year 1900.

EAST LIVERPOOL GENERAL HISTORY POST OFFICE

Another excellent index of the city's commercial importance is observed in the following statement of Post Office business for 1900, viz.:

Weight of second-class matter sent out.....	to tons,
Value of money order business.....	$100,000
Value of registry business.....	$3,000
Sales of stamps, cards, etc.....	$30,500
Number of special deliveries made.....	2,300
Number of special deliveries received.....	1,700
Cost of carrier service.....	$6,000
Cost of office force.....	$4,100
Postmaster's salary.....	$2,700
Number of call boxes used.....	130
Number of lock boxes and drawers.....	319

The official roster of the postal force is as follows: Postmaster, Will H. Surles; Assistant Postmistress, Mrs. J. S. Rinehart; Chief Mailing Clerk, John Edward McClure; Clerk, "Station A," W. E. Baird; General Delivery Clerk, T. B. Mackey; Stamp Clerk, Lillian McBlane; Stamper, Lena J. Coventry; Special Delivery Messenger, Clyde Litten; Carriers, Henry Bevington, D. H. Jessop, P. E. McCloskey, J. J. McKeever, Alvinus Swancy, J. W. Sutter, Charles Smith.

The transportation system of the city is controlled by the East Liverpool Electric Street Railway Company.

About sixteen miles of tracks are embraced, from near the Pennsylvania line in East Liverpool to the lower end of Wellsville. L. W. Healy is superintendent of the system.

There are three natural gas companies with thirty miles of pipe laid for distribution of the volatile product.

The nucleus of this large business was the East Liverpool Gas Manufacturing Co.

In 1875 Connelly & Co. built a small artificial illuminating gas plant on the river bank where the plant of the Potters' Supply Co. now stands.

Col. H. R. Hill and J. W. Kelly then joined with the builders of the plant in the above corporation, the two latter named gentlemen subsequently purchasing the other interests.

They continued the manufacture of artificial gas until the fall of 1877 when they dismantled the plant, having in July of that year drilled in the Bonanza well with a strong flow of natural gas.

The East Liverpool Gas Co. continued in the business until the arrival of the Bridgewater Co.'s line when the latter corporation purchased the old company's interests outright.

In 1897 the East Liverpool Bridge Co. threw open to public use their fine new steel toll bridge, crossing the Ohio river at the foot of College Street.

The structural work of the bridge is of steel and iron, suspended by cables from two massive central piers of stone with a steel superstructure.

The enterprise as yet has not made much money for its stockholders, but has proven to be quite a boon to farmers and merchants alike. Another result of the building of the bridge was the development of the West Virginia river lands into the thriving suburb of Chester, possessing a railroad, an electric street railway two large modern china potteries and a rolling mill. Not the least of Chester's features is the beautiful Rock Spring picnic grounds, which draws immense summer excursions from the larger portion of three states, and is thus of direct financial benefit to East Liverpool.

Fifteen churches, a live Salvation Army post, a public library and a business college are eloquent proofs of the excellent moral and intellectual tone of the city.

Another grand institution for the moral uplifting of the rising generation will be the Carnegie Library, the magnificent building for which is now nearing completion.

This grand instrument for the intellectual development of the city is due to the munificence of that master philanthropist, Andrew Carnegie, and was tendered to East Liverpool as a tribute of affection for the place where many of the Steel King's youthful days had been happily passed, he having been a resident of this city in the days when, for him, libraries and castles existed but in summer dreams.

The city covers an area of 3000 acres and with its contiguous settlements has a population of over 20,000 souls.

EAST LIVERPOOL SCHOOLS

The first public school building under the "Union school law" was erected on the "school lands" at Fourth and Union Streets in 1851.

The building was a frail, two-story brick structure, containing four rooms, and its vibrations under the pressure of high winds, were the cause of the school's being invariably dismissed at the approach of a storm.

The first superintendent and principal in one, was Prof. Orr. He was succeeded sequentially by Rev. F. B. East, Prof. Gillespie, and J. C. Ogle. George J. Luckey, the famous educator, took charge in about 1859, and continued until he resigned to enter the Union Army.

He was followed in order by A. M. Norris, H. P. Borton, Rev. D. H. Hastings, Rev. Samuel Burns, Ebenezer Erskine, well remembered for his skill with the birchen rod, and John V. Crawford.

The salaries paid these gentlemen varied from $450 to $700 for the school year and their duties required them to teach and administer corporal punishment, as well as superintend the schools.

By this time (1869) the town was showing such a growth that it was decided to erect a large and safer building on the same site.

The old building was therefore demolished and the Union School building, a three-story brick and stone structure was erected and ready for occupancy at the opening of the fall term of 1870.

Prof. T. J. Duncan was the first superintendent, receiving $1200 per annum. He was an able educator and an unsurpassed and farsighted organizer, his methods being so effective that in a short time he had the schools raised to a plane of efficiency that added largely to the prestige of the town and the future welfare of the pupils.

Of the teachers under his charge two are still in the service, Miss Kate Harker and Mary A. Smith, both of whom are women of rare character and ability.

Prof. Duncan resigned at the expiration of his third year of service and, removing to Washington, Pa., was admitted to, and became a leading member of the bar of western Pennsylvania. He was succeeded by Van B. Baker who afterwards removed to Collins, West Virginia, where he rounded out his career by murdering his mother-in-law.

Rev. G. W. Riggle succeeded Baker, and he in turn was followed by Capt. J. Newton George, an excellent man, who died in the harness.

Miss E. B. Huston, principal of the high school finished the unexpired portion of Prof. George's term and was then appointed to the dual position of superintendent and high school principal.

She accomplished the arduous labors with signal ability. Her term was followed by Prof. R. F. Fearon.

A. J. Surface, Alexander Vance, A. E. Gladding and S. D. Sanor then followed in turn.

During Prof. Sanor's administration the rapid growth of the city caused such a congestion in the schools that in 1894 it became necessary once more to "tear down and build greater."

This forced a general distribution of schools into vacant rooms temporarily all over the city and augmented the work of the superintendent largely.

Prof. Sanor stood it well, however, and doubtless felt repaid when on September 6, 1895, he opened to school uses amidst much pomp and ceremony, the present magnificent central school building.

The building is beautiful, architecturally, and is of the type technically known as modern Renaissance. It is constructed of Rochester brick and Herkston stone, two and one-half stories, surmounted by a story of French mansard. An elegant four dialed clock is borne aloft at a height of 128 feet by an ornate tower rising from the central facade of the building.

The building contains eighteen class and two recitation rooms on the main floors, together with the book store-room. The offices of the Board of Education and the superintendent are to the right and left of the main entrance.

The basement contains the laboratory and two class and one science room, where experimental work is performed. The heating and ventilating plant and the janitor's quarters are also in the basement. From his quarters he can regulate the heat or ventilation of any room in the building.

The structure as it stands represents an outlay of $63,000 and is unsurpassed in the state. Including the other buildings below enumerated the value of school property in the city is close to $350,000.

The following tabulated enumeration shows the average daily attendance in 1901—spring term:

School.	Teachers.	Pupils.
Central .....	22	932
Sixth Street .....	8	402
East End .....	4	175
Third Street .....	4	210
West End .....	4	179
Grant Street .....	8	406
Bradshaw Avenue .....	2	91
Sheridan Avenue .....	2	96
Trentvale .....	1	66
Gardendale .....	1	67
Pleasant Heights .....	1	32
Horace Mann .....	6	223
Superintendent.	1	—
Total .....	64	2879

Prof. R. E. Rayman succeeded Prof. Sanor as superintendent and has proven an unusually able man in the position, the present curriculum offered never having been equaled heretofore.

EAST LIVERPOOL CEMETERIES

The cemeteries of East Liverpool, with one exception, are specimens of beautiful landscape gardening.

Spring Grove and the Catholic cemeteries are well located on the Lisbon road, northwest of the city in a picturesque locality.

Riverview cemetery, on the Calcutta road, is one of the most beautiful cemeteries in the state.

It commands a delightful prospect, the windings of the Ohio River in the distance, with the wooded hills of Pennsylvania and West Virginia as a final background, making a scene of surpassing beauty.

The cemetery is beautifully kept up and in its centre is an ornate "Memorial Chapel" erected by the Grand Army of the Republic at a cost of $10,000 to commemorate the deeds of our soldier dead.

The structure is built of fine stone, beautifully carved and the panels graven with the names of battlefields upon which local heroes offered up their lives for their country.

The whole is surmounted by a well executed statue of copper of heroic proportions, representing Liberty with Peace.

The exception referred to is the old Fifth Street Cemetery, a spot hallowed as the resting place of many of East Liverpool's most illustrious dead. Graves here are overgrown with weeds, tombstones are fallen, and the entire aspect is anything but that of a revered resting place of honorable dead.

EAST LIVERPOOL CHURCHES

The first preaching in East Liverpool was done by Robert Dobbins, prior to 1800, who had been exhorting assemblages in the interests of Methodism all along the river for a number of years.

Most early residents attended Long's Run Presbyterian Church near Calcutta. Riley McKennon relates that he, when a child in the '30's in common with the other children of the neighborhood, walked out there each Sunday to church, carrying his shoes, which he was required to put on when he reached the vicinity of the church, to appear "dressed up."

The first church building erected in the city was St. Stephen's Episcopal Church in 1834 on the present site, which was donated by the Faweetis and James Pemberton to the public for church purposes. Rev. Thomas Mitchell preached the first sermon in St. Stephen's.

This building was replaced by a brick structure in the '70's which was popularly known as the "Bell Church."

Rev. Philip McKim was largely instrumental in building up the church at this period, both the building and the church spiritual.

In 1900 fire destroyed the building, and the rector Rev. Edwin Weary turned his energies all into one channel, that of rebuilding. With such purpose did he work that on December 26, 1900, Bishop W. A. Leonard was able to dedicate one of the most beautiful buildings in the state to the work of the established church. Under Rev. Weary the parish has thrived as never before. He is now in the third year of his rectorate in East Liverpool.

The first Catholic church was built in 1838 occupying a site which is now covered by Vodrey's pottery. After great effort and self-denial the little band of worshippers had their building consecrated, but the very next day an inexplicable fire destroyed the building and plunged the congregation into despair. The walls of the building still stand as part of Vodrey's mold shop.

In 1852 the frame building in west Fifth Street was erected, but not until 1876 did the parish secure a regular priest in the person of the hard working Rev. P. J. McGuire who preached here until Rev. James Carroll succeeded him in 1880. Father Carroll was an unusually engaging man, his genial personality making much toward the growth of the parish, which increased so that in a few years the necessity of a new building became apparent and the present ample structure was begun.

The parish is now in charge of Rev. T. M. Smyth under whose leadership it is steadily gaining in numbers and influence. Rev. Smyth is probably the hardest worked priest in the diocese. A large parochial school is maintained in this parish.

One who is specially deserving of mention for signal service in the upbuilding of St. Aloysius parish was Mrs. Henrietta Keffer. Her decease was a distinct loss to the church temporal.

The First Presbyterian Church was organized in 1845 by Sanford C. Hill, Michael McKennon, John Fisher, Andrew Blythe and R. S. Irwin and their first church home was a frame structure at the corner of Third and Jackson Streets, afterwards remodeled as a dwelling by William Deidrick, its purchaser.

Rev. Reuben Lewis preached at intervals in this church, but no regular pastor was installed until Rev. Geo. W. Riggle was called in 1867.

During his pastorate in 1870 the erection of the first brick building on the present site began.

In 1877 his health became impaired and he resigned his pastorate, becoming later Superintendent of Public Schools.

The next permanent pastor was Rev. T. V. Milligan who preached with marked success until in 1887 he retired from the ministry for several years.

Other popular and efficient ministers were Revs. A. B. Marshall and John Lloyd Lee.

In 1899 the building in use became inadequate to the needs of the church and was razed, the present elegant structure being erected on its site at a cost of $30,000.

The present pastor is Rev. C. G. Jordan who preaches to a growing membership of 1200.

The Second Presbyterian Church in East End was organized in 1890 under the pastorate of Rev. Cooper. Rev. N. M. Crowe is now in charge and his congregation numbers 225, and is growing healthfully. The present church building is of frame construction and cost about $3,000.

The First M. E. Church dates its organization from a meeting held by Rev. George Brown at the home of Claiborne Simms, probably in the fall of 1827.

The early membership was largely the Simmses and their family connections, services being held for some years in a log school house on the farm of Bazaleel Simms.

The first church structure the congregation owned was a small brick one on the same site as the present building and it was replaced in 1845 by a much larger structure of brick, popularly known for years as the "brick church." In 1874 the construction of the present fine building was begun through the efforts largely of Rev. William P. Turner, the popular pastor at that time, whose virile eloquence and earnest sincerity drew immense audiences to hear his sermons. While the work was taking its course an immense temporary shed was built on the southeast corner of Fifth and Jackson Streets for church services and was popularly dubbed "The Tabernacle" which title was transferred to the new building when it was completed. The late A. Mitchell Davidson was largely instrumental in the financial success of the building plans.

The present congregation of 1300 is ministered to by Rev. Clark Crawford, who, in spite of large withdrawals from the first to her daughter churches at Sebring and Chester, has more than retrieved the losses by the addition of 700 communicants in the two and one-half years of his local labors.

The Second M. E. Church at East End is flourishing under the pastorate of Rev. G. W. Orcutt and has the largest congregation in that end of the city. They possess a neat frame building valued at $3000.

The first M. P. Church was organized in 1855. Rev. E. A. Brindley was the first pastor and was deservedly popular. The Sons of Temperance hall, a white frame building was purchased in 1857 and was known, until its abandonment twenty years later, much better as the "White Church" than by its denominational title.

The present large brick building was erected in 1878 under the pastorate of Rev. J. B. Lucas, whose son Abner, well known here, is now famous in the church at large. Rev. W. H. Gladden is in charge of the church, having been accorded the honor of a second call to this charge. He is very successful, a recent "revival" under his direction resulting in 150 accessions to the church rolls.

A feature of the erection of the present building, unique in church history, and admirable as an instance of courageous faith, was the act of John Rigby, one of the members, who when a stagnation appeared likely to endanger the erection of the building, mortgaged his own home and secured funds with which to continue the construction of the building.

The church property is now worth over $30,000.

The First U. P. Church was formed from a faction of the Associate Reformed Presbyterian congregation in 1858 by Rev. S. W. Clark.

Mr. and Mrs. James McCormick, William Blythe and family and George Anderson and family were among the initial members.

The first church building, whose pulpit was occupied by Rev. Dr. J. C. Taggart, was a frame structure, a wide one story house, on the southwest corner of Fifth and Market Streets.

In 1878 the congregation moved into the present handsome building, then just completed at a cost of $28,000. When Dr. Taggart began his labors he preached to ninety-five members; now his congregation numbers over 400 and the second church, which drew largely from the first, has over 200.

The second U. P. Church was established in 1887 and a building was erected in 1888, under the pastorate of Rev. A. K. Knox. The present building is a handsome ornamental brick structure in Mulberry Street costing $8000. Rev. J. R. Green is the present minister.

Both the U. P. churches received notable accessions to their membership during 1900.

St. John's Evangelical Lutheran Church is the result of the coalition of the forces of the Reformed Protestant and German Lutheran Congregations about 1866, under Rev. Geiser.

Their first building was at Third and Jackson Streets and was built in 1867 of brick.

This was replaced in 1896 by a fine brick and stone structure costing about $17,000.

Rev. J. G. Reinwartz, the present pastor, took charge in 1886 with a congregation of less than one hundred. He now preaches to over five hundred communicants, alternating his sermons each Sunday in the German and English language.

The Christian Church, on Broadway adjoining the Carnegie Library, was organized in 1888 by Rev. J. A. Brenenstahl of Steubenville. Regular monthly sermons were preached by Elder J. C. Shivers of New Cumberland, until May, 1889. That year the church was incorporated by Stockdale Jackman, H. H. Dixon, J. S. Scott, Thomas Lloyd and William H. Vodrey.

A lot was donated by Josiah Thompson at Robinson and Elm Streets, and a frame building erected at a cost of $2500. In December, 1883, the church was dedicated by Rev. J. M. Tribble of Bethany College.

At that time over 200 members were enrolled.

Rev. B. C. Black was the first regular pastor, continuing until October, 1871. January 26, 1897, fire totally destroyed their building and services were then held in Bradshaw's Hall which occupied their present site. It was later purchased by the church, with grounds, for $10,000. In 1898 it was remodeled into the building erected at a cost of $2000.

Rev. J. A. Gorrell is the present minister.

At this time the Baptist denomination is preparing to organize a church and will probably be in their own home by 1902.

Present meetings are held in Fowler's Hall in the Diamond.

An institution which for years has worked tremendously for the good of the town, and which is even yet scarcely appreciated, is the local corps of the Salvation Army. It was organized here in 1883 by Capt. Emmel and Lieut. Blackburn. At present the barracks has about thirty members. Their hall is on Fourth Street just west of Market Street. Ensign and Mrs. W. D. Job are in charge. Mr. Job was born in Iowa, thirty-six years ago, and left a good position in a Minneapolis mill in 1888 to devote his life to the cause of Christ among the lowly. He has been an officer for twelve years.

SALEM—EARLY HISTORY

THE first plat of the city of Salem was submitted for record by William Heald on April 30, 1806, in behalf of Zadok Street and John Strawn, proprietors. The plat covered the territory running three blocks each way, north and south, from the present intersection of Main and Ellsworth Streets. The tract included a width of nine lots, 60 x 180, and a fifty-foot street, at the end of the block of the first six lots. This thoroughfare was called Howard Street. The regular incorporation of the village did not follow until 1830. Mack's History says of Salem in 1809, "Coming from the south the first house was Israel Gaskill's, situated where Zadok Street's now stands on Lisbon Street (Lincoln Avenue). The log cabin of Samuel Davis could be seen to the northwest. Turning into Main Street, the first building was Price Blake's log cabin, used as an inn. Adjoining it was the Friends' Meeting House of brick; further west lived Zadok Street in a log cabin in which he also kept a store. Robert French lived on the north side of Main Street and James and Barzilla. French lived northward about a mile. John Strawn's home was on the south side of Main Street; Jonathan Evans lived just east of Gaskill's." In 1880 Salem had 4700 population, ten churches, four banks, one Union school, a gas works, three hotels, a town hall, three newspapers and several manufacturing plants. The other troubles of the residents were augmented by twenty-one physicians, five dentists and eleven lawyers. The first public hall was over a carpenter shop built in 1840 by Samuel Reynolds. It was christened "Liberty Hall" from the fact that the great anti-slavery meetings were held in it.

EARLY INDUSTRIES

In 1830 near the Friends' Meeting House John Stanley established a woolen mill. On the opposite side of the road William Kidd had a wagon factory. Christian Harmon also conducted a "pottery" on the Lisbon road at this time. In 1822 Isaac Wilson built and "ran" the "Western Hotel," a store and the tan yard, and from 1830 to 1834 he was also postmaster. The site of all his enterprises excepting the tan yard was where the Greiner-Brainard Hotel now stands. John Street kept the first post-office in his store from 1807 until 1829. At that period the mails came regularly once or twice a week. Daily mails were established in 1852 with the advent of the steam railroad. The first district school was opened in 1831, at Green and Chestnut Streets in the Friends' Meeting House. In 1842 Thomas Sharp started a steam engine works and in 1887 a church-organ factory was established. One of the famous John Brown's company of raiders hailed from Salem. He was Edward Coppock; after his execution his remains were secured and brought back to his former home and buried in Hope Cemetery. Among Salem's more famous citizens should be mentioned Dr. Benjamin Stanton, who practiced with brilliant success in Salem for forty-five years following 1815; Joseph J. Brooks, the first counsel and one of the instigators of the great Fort Wayne railroad system; his son, J. Twing Brooks, also one of Salem's best citizens, who was Vice-President of the Pennsylvania Company at the time of his death last year. The Brookses are scions of the Green Mountain State.

Judge Peter A. Laubie, of the Circuit Court, is also one of Salem's sons. He came here in 1856 and in partnership with J. A. Ambler, also later Judge of the Circuit Court, made a name for their firm that is as yet unexcelled in the state.

Judge J. A. Ambler was on the Circuit bench from 1859 to 1867. He is an able and conscientious jurist, and a brilliant lawyer. J. D. Fountain, twice Sheriff, and thrice Mayor of the city, is also one of the prominent legal lights of this era in Salem. The present Judge of the Common Pleas for Columbiana county is W. W. Hole, a highly respected Salem man. Judge Hole is yet a young man, but has been City Solicitor of his home town several terms and since his judicial incumbency, has developed to a remarkable degree. He has the physique to maintain his unusual mentality and will be heard from in later years.

A most commendable feature of modern Salem is the Public Library in the Pioneer Building. It contains about 4000 carefully selected volumes, accessible to the public two afternoons each week.

WATER WORKS

July 24, 1888, the city of Salem formally accepted from the hands of Turner, Clark and Rawson, of Boston, the present water works system, as meeting the requirements of that firm's franchise. The agreement between the city and the franchise grantees was, tersely, as follows: The grantees to have the exclusive right to build, maintain and operate a water system for the delivery of a pure and abundant supply of that necessary fluid, for a period of twenty years, the city to have the right of purchase at an appraised valuation at the end of each period of five years during the life of the franchise. A stand pipe of ample capacity and a double reservoir of not less than 1,600,000 gallons to be erected and constructed, together with two independent ten-inch mains, direct from the pumps to the street mains. The pumping engines specified were two Blake duplex compound condensing type machines, with three million gallons capacity. Fifteen miles of service mains were originally installed to supply the demand for water. The plant is now the property of the Salem Water Co.—H. M. Plummer, President.

GAS COMPANY

The Salem Gas Light Co. was given an exclusive franchise to furnish gas to the city and its residents for twenty years at $1.50 per 1000 feet. The only restriction attached to this liberal franchise was the furnishing to the City of 100,000 feet of gas per annum; any amount in excess of this figure was to be paid for by the City at the same rate as that applying to private consumers.

ELECTRIC LIGHT

In November, 1893, Thomas Cooper was given a ten year franchise for an electric lighting system, which was somewhat more closely guarded than that of the Gas Company, the Cooper ordinance containing a forfeiture clause. In it, however, the city agreed to take not less than eighty street arc lights at $70 each per annum. The plant is now the property of the Salem Electric Light and Power Co.

STREET RAILWAY

In 1889 and 1892 the Street Railway Co. was given outright a franchise with practically no restrictions, for a period of twenty-five years. Its assigns are the same people who control the electric lighting system. The rolling stock of the line is very inferior in appearance and entirely out of harmony with the other many up-to-date features of the city.

The history of the foregoing franchises is recounted to show that the city is thoroughly in earnest in its intention to secure artificial advantages equal to those accorded by nature. Their liberal treatment of corporations formed for the introduction of improvements proves this.

SALEM TO-DAY

The city as it stands to-day is far the handsomest in the county. It possesses elegant residences in profusion and its business blocks are modern to a large extent and well constructed. In the matter of church edifices, however, Salem is woefully deficient, nearly every other town in the county surpassing her in that respect.

The Salem High School is a magnificent school building, but one in the county surpassing it. The graded schools are also the occupants of fine buildings.

Salem streets are wide and well paved with vitrified brick through the business and residence portions of the city. About twelve miles of streets are included in the paved district. The grounds about the finer residences are spacious, and beautiful specimens of landscape gardening abound.

The Masonic Building is one of Salem's best business blocks, the upper floors, with the exception of the lodge rooms, being devoted to offices. Perry Lodge No. 185 F. and A. M. was established in 1856. Salem Chapter No. 94 R. A. M. was established in 1865 and Salem Commandery K. T. was organized in 1886. All three bodies have a large membership and have on their rosters the names of many men prominent in the affairs of county and state.

Salem Lodge B. P. O. Elks No. 305 has one of the handsomest homes in the entire county. Their rooms are commodious and exquisitely furnished. The membership of the lodge is over 250 and its personnel is unusually high.

The city's financial affairs are handled by three banks, sound and conservatively managed. They are the Farmers' National, established 1865, with a capital of $200,000, of which J. Twing Brooks, the Vice-President of the Pennsylvania Company, was President; the First National, established 1882, with Furman Gee, President, and a capital of $100,000, and the private bank of H. Greiner and Son, established in 1853.

Salem also possesses a strong local fire insurance company and a well established building and loan association. Its citizens possess more wealth than those of any other town in the county.

The city has twelve churches, five public schools, a business college, and two cemeteries; one of these is on Garfield Avenue. Hope Cemetery is a beautifully located spot well kept. The other one is not so well looked after.

In industrial affairs Salem is well up with any city in the state, within her boundaries being found, viz., Three machine factories, two label printing houses, one engine manufacturer, one hardware factory, one china factory, one nail mill, three flour mills, two stove foundries, one pump factory, one church furniture factory and one metal statutory factory.

Salem also has service from two telephone and two telegraph companies, and has one theatre. An admirable addition to her other public institutions is an ably conducted Home for Aged Women, a feature exclusive to Salem as far as the county is concerned.

FIRE DEPARTMENT

The organization of the fire service of Salem dates from 1831. In that year Council appropriated $100 with which Jacob Snyder and Benjamin Stanton were to purchase ladders, hooks, etc., for use at fires.

In 1836 Council again set aside $250 to purchase a fire "engine." The next summer three wells were authorized to be dug, two by Henry Mall and Louis Hawley in front of their properties and one at the crossing in front of John Street's store. The same year two more were dug, one in front of Benj. Stanton's house and one at William Chaney's. The first Salem fire company was organized by J. Eggman, W. Kidd, J. Antrim and E. W. Williams, Committee. This company operated the famous "Soul Grinder." In 1841 the engine for the Deluge Fire Company was purchased for $700 in Philadelphia. The old hand engine "Vigilant" was bought in Pittsburgh in 1861 for $1450.

In 1869 the "Deluge Company" was made happy by the purchase for them of a fine "Silshy" rotary steamer, costing $7500. The steamer "Vigilant" was purchased for the "Vigilant" Hose Company in 1875 at a cost of $3700.

The "Rescue Hook and Ladder Company" was organized the same year. The city now possesses a fire and patrol telegraph service, which with the efficient volunteer department, affords reasonable security from disastrous conflagrations.

RAILROADS

Salem is on the line of two railroads, the Fort Wayne division of the Pennsylvania Company, and the Salem Railroad, the latter of which is in the hands of a receiver. It "runs" from Salem to Washingtonville where it connects with the Erie Railroad. The P. Ft. W. and C. Ry. had its inception in the alert brains of Salem citizens.

About 1815 Zadok Street, William Chessman, J. J. Brooks, Alexander Wells of Wellsville and some Cleveland men formulated a scheme to build a line from Cleveland via Alliance, Salem, Lisbon and Wellsville to Pittsburgh. The plan worked nicely until Lisbon was reached. There the promoters struck a snag in the shape of the Sandy and Beaver canal men, whose opposition was so pronounced and ingenious that they even were a factor in having the route changed so as to leave Salem entirely off the line. Badly disappointed the promoters went to work again and organized the Ohio and Pennsylvania Railway from Pittsburgh via Rochester and Salem to Alliance.

In 1848 the officers were chosen as follows: Gen. William Robinson of Allegheny, President; J. J. Brooks, Counsel; William Chessman, Assistant Treasurer and Zadok Street, one of the directors. To such a purpose did the company work that early in 1851 the line was in operation from Pittsburgh to Enon and in 1852 clear to Alliance.

It then continued on to Crestline where it connected with the Ohio and Indiana (Crestline to Fort Wayne). A few years later the Fort Wayne and Chicago Company joined with the other two companies in a consolidation as the one great corporation now operated by the Pennsylvania Company. Thus did the pitiful canal project rob Lisbon and Wellsville of important positions on the line of one of the greatest railroads in the world.

The Salem Railroad was opened for business in 1891.

SCHOOLS

The first school in Salem was opened in the Friends' Meeting House in 1804.

It was continued until the spring of 1810.

The teachers during that period were Hannah Fisher and Judith Townsend.

A hewn log school house was erected in 1810 in which Joseph Shreve was the first teacher.

James Tolerton followed him from 1811 to 1816; then the Friends' school was continued until Shreve's return in 1822. He taught steadily thereafter until 1833. The corner of Dry Street and Broadway was occupied by a Friends' brick school house in 1828, which attracted, by its superior excellence more than local patronage. Jesse Markham was a successful teacher in the '40's until after the Union school law took effect. William McClain was the first principal of the High School. Dr. Joseph Shreve died in 1846. He had taken up the practice of medicine at Mt. Union, after retiring from his Salem school, with great success. In 1854 Alfred Holbrook was made the first general superintendent of all grades. He was followed by Reuben McMillan. In 1863 the famous William D. Henkle became superintendent, which position he held for eleven years. His remarkable ability soon gained for Salem a national reputation as a centre of thought in educational lines. He died in 1881. George N. Carruthers followed some time after Prof. Henkle and stayed for ten years. Myron E. Hard took charge in 1887 for ten years. He was succeeded by Prof. Burris. Jesse S. Johnson now has charge of all the schools, viz., Salem High School, Benjamin F. Stanton, Principal; Fourth Street School, Mrs. G. W. Peeples, Principal; East Main Street School, Laura E. Donaldson, Principal; Columbia School, C. C. Williamson, Principal; Prospect Street School, Mrs. M. M. Snyder, Principal. Twenty-three teachers are engaged in these schools. The value of Salem school property is about $150,000. The high school building itself could probably not be duplicated, with its spacious grounds, for $60,000. Two of Salem's teachers deserving of special mention, both by term of service and remarkable ability, are Margaret Umstead and Mrs. Gyp W. Peeples, both of whom have served over thirty years. The average daily attendance of the High School is 100, and of the graded schools 1200.

SALEM CHURCHES—FRIENDS

In 1806 Samuel Davis donated to this society the square bounded by Main, Green, Ellsworth and Chestnut Streets, and on this tract a double log structure was erected for school and religious purposes.

In 1807 Israel Gaskill gave some ground on the opposite side of Main Street from this log building, on which a commodious brick church building was erected. This structure served the Friends until 1845 when a larger brick building was constructed on the Dry Street side of the Gaskill tract, the Main Street frontage having increased in value for business purposes very materially. About the same time the Hicks element built their present substantial building on the Davis tract. In 1856 the Gurney and Wilbur adherents decided to be independent of each other, and the Wilbur's interest in the Dry Street property was purchased by the Gurneys. In 1872 the Wilbur Friends purchased land near the corner of Sixth and Ellsworth Streets and erected thereon a meeting house costing $11,000. Rev. Frederick J. Cope is the resident Gurney pastor at the present time.

BAPTISTS

The first church of this denomination was built on the corner of Depot Street in Strawn's addition. The building was constructed of logs, and the first pastor occupying the pulpit was Rev. Thomas Miller in 1810. A new brick building was erected in 1820 on the same tract and was used and paid for jointly by Baptists and Methodists. The church prospered in a desultory way for about forty years, a faction arising during that time, which seceded and endeavored to start a second Baptist church, but the new body had but a brief existence and the breach was healed by the establishment of an entirely new church in 1867, known as "the Baptist Church of Salem." In 1869, under Rev. T. P. Childs, they erected a good brick building at the corner of Main Street and Lincoln Avenue, one of the most desirable sites in the city. The congregation is still divided in sentiment and consequently its growth is slow and dispirited. Rev. A. B. Whitney was their last pastor; he resigned in February, 1901. The congregation numbers 135 and the Sabbath school 137.

CHRISTIAN

Robert Phillips was instrumental in organizing the Christian Church, his work being done in 1828. Rev. Theobald Miller organized the congregation gathered by Mr. Phillips' efforts into the "Church of Christ" in 1859 and the M. E. chapel was purchased. This building was replaced in 1870 by the Christian Church, erected at a cost of $13,000, and remodeled in 1893 at an added cost of $7000. The first pastor in the new building was Rev. E. B. Cake. The church is prosperous and growing under the pastorate of Rev. Walter Mansell.

METHODIST

Not until 1852 was Salem honored with an individual M. E. Church, although intermittent services were held as far back as 1823. Rev. J. W. Nessly was the first regular pastor of the organized congregation. A log structure was built in 1823 and it was replaced in 1837 by the frame structure afterwards sold to the Church of Christ, about 1859. The Methodists completed the present Broadway Church building in the fall of 1859 and it was dedicated amid much enthusiasm by Bishop Simpson. Rev. H. W. Dewey is the present pastor, and he has a growing congregation of 750. The Sabbath school numbers 523 and is very popular. The church property, including a pleasant parsonage, is valued at more than $22,000.

A Zion Methodist Church was organized in 1859 at High and Howard Streets by Rev. Thomas James. Salem now maintains two colored Methodist churches.

PRESBYTERIAN

The Presbyterians organized in 1832 and until their church was built in 1842 they worshiped in rented property. Not until 1860 did the growth of the church give encouragement. In that year the Rev. A. B. Maxwell stirred up the dormant church spirit, and its rapid growth from that time resulted after many trials in the erection of the present building in 1861 at a cost of $10,000. The dedication occurred that same year, Prof. Wilson of Allegheny delivering the sermon. Rev. W. F. McCauley is in charge at present as a stated supply since December, 1899. His congregation numbers 418 with a Sabbath school of over 500. The present church property is valued at more than $15,000.

LUTHERAN

The Evangelical Lutheran Church was organized in 1878 by Rev. W. B. Roller. In 1897 through the tireless efforts of Rev. Knoblauch a handsome brick church building was erected in which Rev. E. F. Butz was the first pastor. It cost over $3000. Edward A. Dobberstein is the present pastor. His congregation numbers seventy-five and is growing. The Sabbath school has a membership of fifty-five.

EPISCOPAL

The Church of our Saviour (Protestant Episcopal) was organized in 1859 by Bishop McIlvaine. Rev. Hollis was the first rector. A school house on East Green Street was purchased and served for a church until the present handsome stone structure was dedicated in 1888, during Rev. Ephraim Watt's rectorate. Rev. E. L. Wells took charge in 1898. The congregation is steadily growing and the sphere of the church gradually widening.

CATHOLIC

St. Paul's Catholic Church was born in the home of Michael Derrick about 1855. It grew slowly, stubbornly resisting all adverse conditions, until finally it achieved the dignity of possessing a resident pastor in 1880, Rev. C. Treiber. Through this priest's courageous work, a church was built and in 1886 dedicated by Bishop Gilmour. From that time until now the church has steadily gained and the incumbent priest, Rev. Father Schoennemann, has a $1200 parsonage adjoining the large frame church structure, on East Main Street, in which to reside.

WELLSVILLE—EARLY AFFAIRS—FOUNDATION

SO named in honor of its founder, William Wells, Wellsville is the most favorably situated of any town in the county.

It occupies a long, wide stretch of nearly level land along-side the Ohio River, with an unsurpassed wharfage for heavily laden vessels. How the pretty little city has escaped greater commercial importance, eludes logic. The C. and P. R. R., operated by the Pennsylvania Company, has always greatly favored the city, because its existence was due to the enterprise, in a large measure, of Wellsville citizens. The company for years has maintained extensive yards, shops and its transportation department at this point.

TOWN PLAT

In 1820 Mr. Wells platted his beautiful 304 acre river farm into town lots with the above name to the site. Mr. Wells was a man of unusual ability, and in addition to having been a Justice of North West Territory, prior to Ohio's erection to statehood, he had been County Judge of Jefferson county, at Steubenville, before Columbiana county was formed. His commission as Justice of the Territory was issued by Gen. Arthur St. Clair, Governor, in the handwriting of, and countersigned by, William H. Harrison, "Acting Secretary" in 1798. He died in 1852, aged eighty-eight years. Mr. Wells and his son James built the first saw mill in 1815 above the old county bridge on the creek. Following the mill's construction Robert S. Killinger established a boat yard and for

COMMERCE

The first store was kept by Sanford C. Hill, afterwards the famous astronomer and compiler of almanacs, in the second story of Wells' warehouse on the creek about the foot of present Second Street. Jonathan Whittaker kept the first tavern, on the river front. Allen McDonald, a close chum of Sanford Hill's, was proprietor of the first lumber business, near where the present water works pump-house now stands. Jared Long was the first blacksmith and Dr. McLean, a retired United States Army surgeon, was the earliest physician. Prior to 1840 the city was the terminus of a steamboat daily line to Pittsburgh and a daily stage line to Salem and Fairport on Lake Erie.

CIVIL WAR

At the outbreak of the Rebellion, Wellsville had a population of 1587 but she was about decimated by the large number of her citizens who volunteered to defend their country.

INCORPORATION

In 1848 the village of Wellsville was duly incorporated and Alexander McLaughlin, an eccentric and shrewd old Scotchman, was elected President or Mayor.

POST-OFFICE

The first United States Post Office was established in 1816. It was kept in Shearman and Feehan's store and J. J. Feehan was postmaster. Mr. Feehan married Margaret Simms, an aunt of Jere H. Simms of East Liverpool. Mr. Shearman married a daughter of William Wells. Both moved to the west upon the decadence of Wellsville as a river port.

RAILROADS

In 1844 a committee of business men including Alexander Wells (still living), Henry Cope, D. T. Lawson, A. G. Cattell and James Stewart went to Cleveland to boom the scheme of building a railroad from that city to the river with Wellsville as its terminus. It was to connect daily with Pittsburg by boat. The route was to be through Ravenna, Alliance, Lisbon and the creek valley to about where the rolling mill now stands. Lisbon citizens were so blinded by the possibilities of their canal scheme (then in its zenith) that they lent their influence to Salineville boomers to divert the line from Lisbon to Salineville.

Although this route lengthened the line it was adopted and the line was built to Wellsville in 1852 and a little later to Wheeling. In 1856 the division to Pittsburg was completed, and Lisbon for years was without any railroad or other large transportation facilities, the gilded canal having failed at the start. The further history of the C. and P. line has been that of steady success. James Stewart was the first President of the road. He was succeeded by J. N. McCullough, who was a capable railroad man, but possessed a vitriolic tongue and a vocabulary of strong terms rarely surpassed. He died about ten years ago worth some seven or eight millions of dollars, and was buried in Wellsville. The large shops were kept here largely by his will and they have been a potent factor in Wellsville's business life. They were built in 1857 and employed then 100 skilled workmen. Commodious "yards" surrounded the shops and a large force of train men are employed in the switching force.

The present force of shop employees numbers over 350 men. The departments are under the following foremen: F. E. Fox, machinery; A. Fisher, car building; F. E. Kerr, painting; M. Backes, boiler; W. Miles, timing; E. E. Alton, planing mill; J. J. Deagan, smithing; W. H. Scheets, engine house; J. D. Harris, master mechanic.

WELLSVILLE VILLAGE

Two well known grandchildren of Mayor J. S. McIntosh (1853), are Burr McIntosh, the famous actor and athlete, and his sister, Nancy McIntosh, prima donna of Sir Arthur Sullivan's London Opera Company. Both of these notable young folks are natives of Columbiana county.

But one child of the founder of Wellsville is yet living. He is the venerable Alexander Wells, who is enjoying a hale old age in the handsome home he built for his bride in 1832, at Sixth and Water Streets, Wellsville. Mr. Wells is ninety-five years of age, yet his faculties are as clear and his manner as alert as most men forty years his junior, and his personality is an example to those who believe in a sane conservation of energies and temperance of habits.

The Wells family is remarkable for longevity.

Mr. Wells had six brothers and sisters who passed the age of maturity and, with himself, their average age attained was ninety-three years, and Mr. Wells is daily adding to that average. One of his most treasured possessions is the commission given his father as Justice of the Northwest Territory, July 15, 1798, a transcript of which appears at the beginning of this work.

Mr. Wells recounts an anecdote of Sanford C. Hill, the famous astronomical authority. He says that while Mr. Hill kept his store in Wellsville (situated just across the run from the foot of Second Street) his closest chum was Al. McDonald who had a lumber business, near by. The twain were full of pranks and perpetrated a good many mischievous tricks on their neighbors, frequently reserving one for an irascible distiller by the name of Ryder.

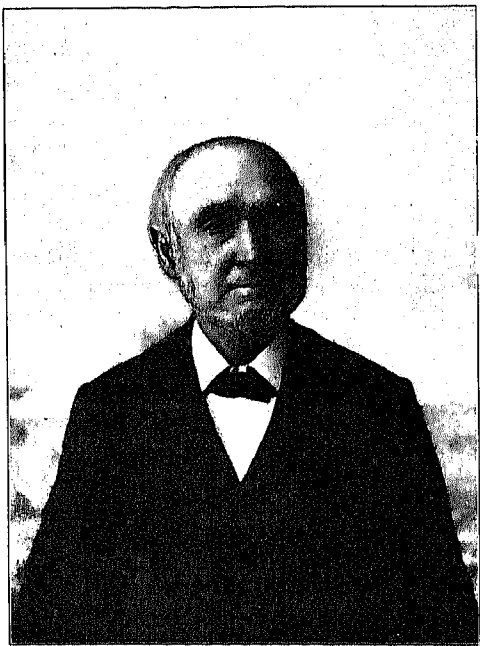

Ryder had a hound which he regarded as something unusually fine in the dog line. The hound formed a habit of taking a sun sleep every bright day in front of Hill's store. One day when the hound was enjoying his afternoon slumber he was observed by the tw jokers. Mr. Hill thereupon ascended to his garret and, with a 6 ft. ng pole, reached out a window and "poked up" a nest of hornets.

The irate insects saw nothing in sight but the luckless hound and descended upon him in force and when the dog stopped it was because the departure of life ended his ability to run further. The two conspirators were chagrined over the tragic termination of their joke and old Ryder was so angry that he threatened for some time thereafter to kill Messrs. Hill and McDonald.

Mr. Wells was for twelve years following 1828 of the firm of A. and G. Wells, forwarding merchants, in the building adjoining the present Hotel Metropole. All freight from Pittsburg for the west came through this firm and thence by wagon from Wellsville to Cleveland, Fairport, Wooster, Fort Wayne, etc. In 1840 Mr. Wells purchased his brother's interest, Mr. G. Wells removing to Steubenville and later to Wellsburg, West Virginia.

The business in Wellsville was continued by Alexander Wells until its sphere was shattered by the advent of the C. & P. R. R. which enterprise was launched largely through Mr. Wells' energy. He planned to have the line come through Lisbon and down Yellow Creek, twelve miles shorter than the present line, but he was circumvented by Lisbon people, who were commercially drunken over the to them much more brilliant financial outlook for their section from the operation of the canal, then on its top wave of popularity. Had Mr. Wells' judgment been allowed to prevail, the great Fort Wayne system would have run through Lisbon and Wellsville, instead of over the present route.

Another integral part of Wellsville's greatness is personified in Gen. James W. Reilly, banker, legislator and lawyer, as well as a gallant soldier. General Reilly won his title by conspicuous gallantry through four years' service in the army of the Union, during the Civil War. He is President of the First National Bank and Nestor of the bar of Eastern Ohio. He was born in Akron May 21, 1828, of Irish parentage, his father being a prominent contractor on public works. Young Reilly was educated at a college in Meadville and Emmetsburg, Md., and was admitted to the bar in 1851 and ten years later was elected to the State Legislature. Following his return from the army he worked steadily at his law practice and for many years has been regarded as one of the wisest of counsellors. He still maintains an office at his home, but cares little for additional practice.

ALEXANDER WELLS

Born in 1807, only surviving son of William Wells, the founder of Wellsville.

many years boat building was quite an industry. James Wells was a captain of the first ferry boat at Wellsville. His favorite boast was that he was ever a stranger to the taste of whiskey and tobacco and that he never allowed "the sun to catch him in his bed;" he died in 1885, aged ninety-six years. Mack's History states that during the period from 1830 to 1845 over 50,000 barrels of flour were annually shipped from the port of Wellsville, by river. Prior to the use of steam as a propelling power, covered keel boats were used, and were propelled up stream by poles and human strength; down stream trips were made by the force of the river's current.

WATER WORKS

The Wellsville City Water Works was established in 1882 and at the time of the construction, was considered a very superior plant. The growing consumption, however, has diminished its usefulness, until it is now totally inadequate to the demands upon its capacity.

This trouble will be soon overcome, inasmuch as steps are already being taken to make an addition to the present plant, to cost not to exceed $75,000.

The original plant cost $66,000 and comprises a pumping station, in which a Worthington horizontal pump is installed, having a capacity of one and a half million gallons. The reservoir 320 feet above, on the hill top, has a storage capacity of two and one-half million gallons.

The system embraces, also, twelve miles of street mains. The new improvements to be installed have not yet had their character determined upon, but a committee is now investigating as to whether gravity or direct pressure is more feasible and work will begin immediately upon a decision being rendered. By the summer of 1902 the city will have a system of water service equal to any in the Ohio Valley. William Perkins is the present Superintendent. The initial occupant of that position was Andrew S. Fogo.

INDUSTRIAL FINANCIAL

Among the more prominent manufacturing industries should be mentioned the following: One large plate rolling mill, two of the largest sewer-pipe plants in the world, three paving brick factories, two machine and engine factories, one steel boiler factory, four china potteries, railroad shops. Two strong, conservative banks take care of financial affairs in this city, the First National, of which Gen. J. W. Reilly is President, the other a private company of which T. H. Silver is President.

Two strong building and loan associations are also a potent factor in financial affairs.

SCHOOLS

The "Union School," built in Wellsville in 1850, was one of the first in the State. It was a seven-room brick structure, with facilities for nearly six hundred pupils. This building was replaced in 1880 with the present handsome and well appointed building costing $50,000. Prof. J. L. McDonald became Superintendent of Schools in 1870, and to his intelligent efforts principally is due the fact that Wellsville schools are unsurpassed in the state. He is still filling the position, despite the efforts of envious neighboring cities to lure him away. The following figures show the present average attendance in the respective schools in Prof. McDonald's jurisdiction:

School.	Teachers.	Pupils.
High School.....	1 Asst. Teacher. 1 Principal.	111
Central School.....	3 Teachers.	601
Eighteenth Street School.....	4 Teachers	220
First Ward School.....	2 Teachers	87
Total .....	23	1019

WELLSVILLE CHURCHES—PRESBYTERIAN

The First Presbyterian Church was organized in 1831, and in 1833 occupied its brick building on the old McGregor saw mill site. Their second building was erected in 1852 on the present site. It was completely destroyed by fire in 1869, but it was promptly replaced by their present fine structure. The first regular Presbyterian minister was Rev. Thomas E. Hughes. The church is now in charge of Rev. F. Lavery since 1898, and under his pastorate the membership has increased from less than 500 to 544. The present value of the church property is close to $20,000.

SECOND PRESBYTERIAN

The present Second Presbyterian Church is in a most prosperous condition under the efficient ministry of Rev. C. L. V. McKee. The church is but five years old and Rev. McKee preached his initial sermon in 1896 to a congregation of 100 members. The church rolls now show over twice that many communicants and possesses a live Sabbath school of over 250 members, and Christian Endeavor societies of 120 workers.

METHODIST

The First M. E. Church grew from a class gathered by Rev. John Callakan in 1800, at the house of William Wells. In 1833 Mr. Wells gave a lot to the society upon which a small church was erected and Rev. Alcimus Young was the first regular pastor. The church's second building was dedicated October 25, 1877, by Rev. Dr. Barrows of Pittsburg. A live healthy tone is evident in the workings of the church, under the ministry of Rev. Dr. Earl D. Holtz; the congregation numbers 580 and is steadily gaining in size, the rolls showing but 500 when Mr. Wells took charge in 1898.

METHODIST PROTESTANT CHURCH

The First M. P. Church was organized at the home of Joseph Wells by Rev. George Brown, in 1829. In 1833 they erected their first building which was used for thirty-seven years. In 1891 it was destroyed by fire. The present building was promptly built and dedicated October 9, 1892, but the original structure has been enlarged several times since Rev. L. C. Wells became the pastor in 1900 when less than 200 were enrolled. The present member of communicants is 230. The building is valued at $10,000.

DISCIPLES, NOW THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH

The Disciples Church removed from the township to Wellsville in 1845, erecting a brick building, which was replaced in 1874 by the present structure. Rev. Israel Belton was the first pastor. The church was taken in charge by Rev. W. T. Barnes in October, 1889, with 245 members. The present congregation numbers 300. The church property is valued at $12,000.

UNITED PRESBYTERIAN

The First United Presbyterian Church was organized in 1848 in the auditorium of the First M. P. Church. The organizers were Rev. John M. Galloway, Thomas Warren, John Crawford and D. D. McIntosh. The first regular pastor was Rev. J. C. Campbell. In 1850 their first church was completed, but by 1873 it had become entirely inadequate to the needs of the increasing congregation and a new structure was erected, at a cost of $15,000. The present pastor, Rev. W. Melancthon, Glasgow, was installed October 31, 1899, the membership then was 218. The list of communicants now shows 264 and the church spirit is strong and thoroughly awake.

EPISCOPAL

The Protestant Episcopal Church in Wellsville was organized in 1863. The first rector was Rev. John Lee of Steubenville. Their first church was erected in 1871 and the debt of the church was cleared off by the receipts of a railroad excursion to Cleveland, which enterprise netted about $2500. Rev. J. H. Edwards is the present rector.

CATHOLIC

The Church of Immaculate Conception was erected in 1867 by Father P. J. McGuire, although masses were celebrated with fair regularity since the first one, at the home of Patrick Butler in 1834. Rev. James Conlon, for many years held services whenever he could come to Mr. Butler's home. After 1876 Rev. McGuire preached both here and at St. Aloysius Church in East Liverpool for a number of years until he was finally transferred to the rapidly growing East Liverpool parish. The parish here was never in a more flourishing condition than now. Rev. J. H. Halligan assumed charge in 1893 and is highly regarded both in and out of his denomination. A prosperous school is also under his supervision, in the immediate charge of the Sisters of Loretto of Kentucky.

The Evangelical Church, under the pastorate of Rev. G. F. Speng is enjoying merited prosperity, and is slowly but steadily gaining in numbers.

LISBON

LISBON, county seat of Columbiana, is located in Centre township, ten miles from Salem, eighteen miles from East Liverpool and sixteen miles from Wellsville.

Its population is practically 4000 souls, and, during sessions of Court, several hundred people additional temporarily reside here.

The town lies in a beautiful valley, surrounded by wooded hills and drained by the middle fork of Beaver Creek.

In summer the little city is a charming place, but in winter the universal use of soft coal as fuel pervades the atmosphere with a gloom which tends to droop the spirits and smut the countenance.

The village of (New) Lisbon was incorporated February 7, 1825, with Dr. George McCook as President of the Board.

In January, 1828, a new charter for the town was secured voiding, and of a wider scope than, the original one. "In May, 1832, George Graham made application for a liquor license for his grocery at the corner of the public square and Market Street. The Council, satisfied of his moral character, granted him a license for one year in consideration of the payment of a fee of $10. Council then adjourned after adopting a resolution that their next meeting should be held in the back room of George Graham's grocery." (Mack's History.)

Drs. Horace Pottet, Leonard Hanna, Mr. David Begges, Ira Dibble, John Watt and W. E. Russell composed the first Board of Health.

The original plat of Lisbon was recorded by Lewis Kinney in 1803. He was proprietor of all the present site by a patent from the United States Government, and was the builder of the first Court House on land donated by himself for the purpose. To his generous liberality Lisbon owes the fine Public Square.

All the early buildings in the village were log structures until Christian Smith erected his stone hotel building, still standing on Washington Street east of Market, about 1808. Washington Street at that period was the principal street of the village.

The first bank in the county was the "Columbiana Bank of New Lisbon," established in 1814. Martin Helman was its first President and Elderkin Potter, Cashier. The bank thrived for a while, but finally began to droop. After several years of financial slumber a reorganization was effected in 1835 with A. W. Loomis, President, and B. W. Snodgrass, Cashier, the business being opened at the corner of Walnut and Beaver Streets. For eight years the institution did well, but it, too, struck a dull streak and finally ceased business in 1845.

William Harbaugh, saddler and postmaster, held Lisbon's first post-office in his shop in Washington Street in 1809-1811.

The first lawyer in Lisbon and the first Prosecuting Attorney as well of the county, was Obadiah Jennings, whose home was in Steubenville. He practised in both courts from 1803 on.

Fisher A. Blockson was the first resident attorney. He came to Lisbon in 1805, became Prosecuting Attorney, entered the Legislature for several terms, and was a very prominent man for years. He died in 1876 at the age of ninety-five.

David E. Harbaugh practised from 1828 to 1834, when he removed to Detroit and was later elevated to the bench.

E. T. Merrick practised here for nine years, until 1839. He removed to Louisiana that year and afterwards became Chief Justice of that state.

Andrew W. Loomis was a prominent legal and financial light from 1825 until 1840 when he removed to Pittsburg and for years was in the front rank in the Allegheny bar.

FIRE DEPARTMENT AND WATER WORKS

The fire department dates from 1830, the equipment provided being a hand engine which required sixteen men to operate it and thirty-three feet of hose.

Five years later a new "machine" was purchased and a fire company formed of which Henry Janney and Mahlon Briggs were the officers.

The lot in the corner of the square, still in use, was leased in 1837 for the purpose from Benjamin Hanna.

The first reservoir was built about this time at the head of Market Street; it had stone walls, was forty feet square with a depth of ten feet.

The present reservoir is on the creek hill south of town; its area is fifty feet square with a depth of twenty-three feet. It is supplied by an inadequate pumping plant at the creek, erected in 1878 at a cost of $2000. This plant, however, was replaced during the summer of 1901 by a modern and adequate pumping station.

The water works system is under the supervision of A. A. Ramsey.

The present fire department consists of two forces of eight volunteer firemen each, under the direction of Bert Hollinger and A. M. Walters, respectively, and the apparatus consists of one hose reel, housed on "the hill," and a hose reel and hook and ladder truck at the house on the Public Square. The water is thrown by gravity exclusively which is fully adequate to all needs.

FINANCIAL

The First National Bank was established in 1874 with John McDonald, President; R. B. Pritchard, Vice-President, and O. W. Kyle, Cashier.

In January, 1878, M. J. Child was appointed Cashier, vice Kyle, resigning. Twenty years later Mr. Child "turned up missing" and an examination of the books showed most of the bank's assets to be similarly absent.

The bank was closed and I. B. Cameron was made receiver. His election to the State Treasurership caused him to be succeeded by L. C. Laylin, who on his election as Secretary of State of Ohio was followed in office by Judge J. G. Moore. Nothing was ever heard of Mr. Child by the parties interested. The affairs of the institution are now practically closed.

In 1879 Firestone Bros. established a private bank which is still in successful operation.

In 1900 the "Lisbon Banking Co." was established. It is also a private institution of which former County Auditor George B. Harvey is Cashier and Manager. It occupies the ground floor of the Court House and is equipped in the latest burglar proof style. Fine safe deposit vaults are one of the features.

The People's Saving and Loan Association was organized in 1889. A. A. Ramsey is Secretary and Manager. The Association is capitalized at half a million dollars; over $250,000 is now paid in.

The Columbiana County Mutual Fire Insurance Co. of New Lisbon was incorporated in 1837 with John Armstrong as President and George Endley, Treasurer. The Company is still in successful operation and William M. Hostetter is Secretary and Treasurer.

INDUSTRIAL

Lisbon in recent years has manifested a desire to be something more than the county seat, and has advanced industrially to a notable degree.

At present the town possesses a large tin and rolling mill, the largest harness factory in the state, cement mills, an immense sewer pipe and brick plant, a chimney top and terra cotta plant, a large carriage factory and a new six-kiln china pottery.

A charter has recently been secured for an electric railroad connecting Lisbon, Salem and East Liverpool, and the town now has two good steam railroads, viz., the P. L. and W. Ry. from Lisbon to New Galilee, Pa., there connecting with the Pennsylvania line, and the Niles and Lisbon branch of the Erie system.

About five miles of Lisbon's streets are now paved with vitrified brick and several other streets are macadamized.

SCHOOLS

The site of the Market Street school building was a gift from Lewis Kinney to the village, in 1803, for school purposes.

It was at that time a white oak grove, and the first building erected on the site was partly composed of logs cut from the tract, for the purpose.

David Wilson was the first "master."

Forty years later this house was declared unfit for use and under the "Union school law" of 1849, premises more desirable were rented and William Travis was put in charge of Lisbon's first "Union school" at a salary of $450 per annum.

In 1857 the present building in Market Street was opened to school uses under the superintendency of David Anderson with nearly 500 pupils enrolled.

The building is a three-story substantial brick, with four rooms on each floor.

In 1897 the congested condition of this building compelled the erection of another school building.

This building, in east Chestnut Street, contains eight rooms, strictly modern in arrangement, is of pressed brick and with its site cost $25,000. Considering the amount involved the structure is unsurpassed in the county.

The committee having the construction of the building in charge, was composed of D. S. Gailey, I. P. Farmer, Ed. F. Moore and Ed. A. King.

The present superintendent is Prof. W. H. Van Fossan. Under his supervision are eleven teachers and 520 pupils in the Market Street building, and five teachers and 250 pupils in the Chestnut Street School.

Prof. Van Fossan took charge of the schools in 1885.

Previous superintendents of more than scholastic prominence were Prof. I. P. Hole, Henry C. McCook, D.D. and our present representative in Congress, Robert W. Tayler.

RELIGIOUS

The Presbyterians were the pioneers of religious societies in Lisbon, Rev. Clement L. Vallandigham regularly preaching to a congregation of that denomination here from 1807 to 1839 inclusive.

The first regular church was erected in 1814 west of the present jail. Prior to that time preaching took place in groves in summer and residences in winter.

In 1841 the present church site was occupied by a building, which, completed, cost nearly $8000, Rev. A. O. Patterson being the first pastor.

The present handsome structure was dedicated in 1897. It was erected under the pastorate of Rev. J. P. Anderson, the present minister, and cost, completed, over $15,000.

Mr. Anderson has a congregation of 525 and the church is most prosperous.

A large Sabbath school tests the capacity of the Sunday school rooms.

The United Presbyterian Church was incorporated in 1850 and its building was erected in 1860, on the corner of Walnut and Vine Streets. Rev. S. F. Herron was the pastor at that time, with a congregation of about one hundred. The present minister is Rev. A. W. Lytle and his congregation numbers one hundred and thirty communicants.

The Disciples Church of Lisbon has the proud distinction of being the mother church of that denomination in the entire world.

In 1827 the Mahoning Baptist Association met here, and from the deep interest aroused at that convention sprang the efforts of Alexander Campbell and Walter Scott.

These men were so inspired by the spirit of the occasion that their exhortations led almost the entire assemblage to their conception of the true doctrine, and the name "Baptist" was thereupon discarded and the church renamed the "Disciples of Christ."

Their present building was erected in 1841.

Rev. George Fowler ministers to a congregation of over 350. Methodist Episcopal doctrines were first expounded in 1822 by Rev. Martin Ruter in a small frame building near the creek.

In 1826 a brick structure was built by the Methodists on the hill near Market Street and in this building a Rev. Miss Miller drew crowds to hear her sermons.

In 1838 they built the building in the rear of the present Court House, now used as a livery stable and Rev. George McCaskey was the first pastor.

The present complete structure at Market and Washington Streets was built in 1888 and cost over $16,000.

Rev. J. A. Ulman here preaches to a live congregation of almost 500 communicants.

St. George's Catholic Church is a part of the charge of Rev. Albert Audsauer, of Dunganon. Its present membership is about sixty-five.

THE MCCOOKS

Maj. Daniel McCook, born June 20, 1798, Canonsburg, Pa.

Martha Latimer, born March 8, 1802, and married August 28, 1817, at Washington, Pa.

Daniel came to Lisbon 1826, afterwards moved to Carrollton, stationed at Cincinnati 1863, killed at Bullington, Idaho, July 21, 1893, trying to intercept Morgan's raid.

Mrs. McCook died November 10, 1879, Lisbon.

Robert Latimer McCook, born Lisbon, December 28, 1827. Assassinated August 6, 1862, Salem, Ala., by guerrillas. Major-General in Union Army.

Alexander McDowell McCook, born April 22, 1831, on farm near Lisbon. Graduated at West Point, 1852. Major-General for gallantry at Shiloh 1862. Colonel Sixth Infantry U. S. A., 1890. Retired as Brigadier-General.

John McCook, M. D., born Canonsburg, Pa. Married Catherine Julia Sheldon, born Hartford, Conn. Practiced medicine many years in Lisbon, whence he removed to Steubenville. Died Washington, D. C., 1865, while visiting his son Maj.-Gen. Anson G. McCook. His six children were all baptised at Lisbon the same Sabbath by Dr. A. O. Patterson.

Maj.-Gen. Anson George McCook, now of New York City, was educated in Lisbon public schools. Represented the Eighth New York District in Congress six years. Also Secretary of United States Senate.

Rev. Henry C. McCook, D.D., born Lisbon, July 3, 1837. Married Emma C. Harter at Lisbon. Enlisted 1861 in forty-first Illinois Regiment as First-Lieutenant. Afterwards made its Chaplain. Author of theological works and authority on insects and their habits. Pastor of Second Presbyterian Church, Market Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Captain Rhoderick Sheldon McCook, United States Navy. Born Lisbon, March 10, 1839. Performed conspicuous deeds in command of monitors during Civil War. Killed in 1885 by being thrown from buggy at Vineland, N. J.

Rev. Prof. John J. McCook, born at Lisbon, February 4, 1843. Served as first lieutenant in First West Virginia Volunteers. Rector of St. John's Episcopal Church and Professor of Modern Language, Hartford, Conn., Trinity College.

Clement Laird Vallandigham, born Allegheny county, Pa., 1818. His father, Clement Vallandigham, was an old school Presbyterian preacher and came to Lisbon in 1807. His ancestors were from Flanders, France. They settled in Stafford county, Va., in 1690. Originally the family name was Van Lendegham, but for easier pronunciation was anglicized as above by some of the earlier members of the family. Rev. Vallandigham's salary being small he established a classical school and many of the prominent professional and military men of the state and the nation, during its past forty years' history, received their inspiration from the teachings of this gifted man. His son Clement, one of the most unique figures in the drama of the Civil War began his education here. He graduated at Jefferson College, Canonsburg, Pa., unusually young and was noted in College for his rapid absorption of the gist of books. In 1845 he became the youngest member of the Ohio Legislature, and quickly assumed the leadership of the Democracy. In 1847 he removed to Dayton and established The Western Empire, a journal advocating "free trade, state rights and a fixed tenure of office in every position under the Federal Government that will properly admit it." He also declared for "the Constitution of the United States in its whole integrity," "to protect and defend the Union" and "maintain the doctrine of strict construction." In the light of recent National developments the foregoing ingredients prescribed by Mr. Vallandigham were decidedly incompatible with the production of a nation such as ours to-day. In 1856 he abandoned journalistic effort and was sent to Congress after contesting the elections, where he continued until March, 1863. Returning home he increased his radical utterances against Lincoln's administration, defying "Dave Tod, Abe Lincoln or Burnside to prevent him speaking as he had or was doing." In May, 1863, he was banished to Canada, Lincoln's order creating a profound sensation over the country and having a distinct moral effect. "The 17th of September, 1863, was a proud day for the inmates of the Lisbon Mansion," says the Wellsville Patriot of that week, according to Howe's History of Ohio, "when was witnessed that wild enthusiastic outpouring of the Democracy to greet their candidate for Governor, returning from exile." Over the gateway was a plain white muslin, bearing the simple legend "Vallandigham's Birthplace." Upon the grassy lawn, now rendered dear to every freeman, stood the aged mother of Hon. C. L. Vallandigham, the great Apostle of human rights during the reign of terror and high handed usurpations of the Lincoln administration, etc." He died from a pistol wound in a room at a hotel in Lebanon, Ohio, in June, 1871. Disappointed of all his ambitions, he died as he had lived, a sensational figure in contemporaneous history.

Dr. Horace Potter came to Lisbon permanently in 1807. He practiced pretty much all over the country with great success. In 1811 he was elected Clerk of the Court and held the office until 1837, continuing his practice until his death in 1841.

Dr. John Thompson also came to Lisbon in 1807. He served his patients well, and established a sufficient number of them to send him to Congress four terms in succession, 1830 to 1837. He died in 1852.

Dr. George McCook was another famous physician practicing from 1817 to 1843, when he removed to Pittsburg. His exceptional qualifications gained him the chair of Theory and Practice at Baltimore Medical College. He died in 1850.

Dr. Leonard Hanna was an excellent Lisbon physician from 1836 to 1851 when he removed to Cleveland where he also gained a high place in the profession.

EAST PALESTINE

SCHOOLS

In September, 1875, the Union School was erected at a cost of $30,000. It contained six large rooms and a recitation hall 33 x 80 feet in size. It was formally opened for school purposes by Prof. A. Y. Taylor in the fall of 1876. The present superintendent is C. E. Oliver, who has an efficient corps of eleven teachers under his direction, including Prof. C. L. Merwin, principal of the High School.

The average daily enrollment is 540 in the Union School and thirty-five in the high schools. The Board of Education for 1900 is as follows, viz., George Gould, H. P. Sutherin, D. W. Moore, John B. Meek, J. W. Smith, W. S. Lewis.

CHURCHES

The earliest church in the settlement was the old school Presbyterians who were organized in 1842 by the efforts of the Hassan, Hamilton, Curry and Martin families. The church was incorporated in 1876 and has steadily grown, one of its most popular pastors being Rev. D. H. Lavery, who also preached at Enon.

The congregation now numbers some 150 members and owns a fine brick structure, with a frame parsonage, the property being worth $15,000. Rev. George F. Swezey has been pastor since early in 1900.

The United Presbyterians possess a fine property consisting of a large brick church, built in 1900, and parsonage, worth $18,000. Rev. Samuel Patterson was the first regular minister in 1849. Rev. E. E. Douglas is the present pastor with a congregation of 150 members.

The Methodist Episcopal Church was organized in 1868 and at present has over four hundred members. The building is a frame structure and, with the site, is worth $16,000. Dr. Harvey Webb is the incumbent pastor and under his care the congregation is growing in numbers.

The Church of the United Brethren was organized by Rev. George Fast in 1855 and their first building was erected two years later on a lot donated by Thomas McCalla. The present building was built in 1879 on a lot donated by L. A. Paxson. It is a frame structure and the property is valued at $1500. Rev. S. E. Racy ministers here to a congregation of about 100 persons.

The Disciple Church is a new structure of frame. It is as yet ministered to by a stated supply, the congregation scarcely aggregating 100.

The Catholic Church of East Palestine is one of the most prosperous, and one of the largest in the town. The congregation numbers over three hundred and is growing rapidly under the able ministrations of Rev. Father Barth.

Their present structure is a frame building worth about $3,000, but preparations are now under way to erect a fine large brick church more suitable to the needs of the congregation.

LEETONIA

LEETONIA was platted in 1867 and received the name it bears as an honor to the memory of William Lee, one of the founders of the iron and coal works.

It is in the centre of a rich farming section and was located at the junction of the Niles division of the Erie Railway with the main line of the P. F. W. and C. Ry.

Lying under the town, and all the adjacent territory, are large beds of excellent bituminous coal.

After the building of the Port Wayne Railroad station at this point in 1865 Joseph Meek opened the first hotel in John Yoder's farm house, calling it the "Leetonia House."

In 1869 M. E. Taggart headed a formal petition for the incorporation of the village and in August of that year an election was held, naming A. F. Hill as the first Mayor.

The post-office was established before the town was laid out, in 1866, with J. G. Chamberlain in charge.

Not until 1870 did the village possess a school house; in that year one was erected with Allan Smith as principal. The building cost $800 and its dimensions were 26 x 36 feet.

In September, 1874, a fine new school building was opened to public use, costing, with its site, nearly $35,000.

The present Superintendent of Schools is Prof. J. W. Moore.

He has thirteen teachers and nearly six hundred pupils in his care in the two buildings.

The present Board of Education is as follows: T. S. Arnold, President; C. W. Lodge, Clerk; J. O. Hoffert, Treasurer; James Craver, L. F. Siegle, Jno. Floding.

The present city officials of Leetonia are, viz., Mayor, Joseph Gottschalk; Clerk, Jacob Kuegle; Marshal, E. D. Lanaghan; City Council, J. R. Stratton, John Selfridge, Stephen Shepherd, A. F. Rauch, William Jacques, Jesse Scattergood; Board of Health, T. S. Arnold, J. O. Hoffert, David Betz, Charles Spatholt, J. L. Truesdale, John McKeefrey.

The financial affairs of the populace are cared for mainly by the First National Bank, of which C. N. Schmick is President.

The main manufacturing industries of the town are two large blast furnaces which produce vast quantities of pig iron yearly, the coal of the vicinity being well adapted to that use.

Spiritual affairs are not neglected, there being five large and well attended churches in the town. The largest congregation is the Catholic, under the fatherly care of Rev. E. J. Murphy. This congregation possesses a brick building, worth $8000, with a large parochial school and the priests' and sisters' residences.

The most pretentious structure is the new Presbyterian Church recently dedicated. It is valued at $10,000 and has 150 communicants. Rev. A. D. Collins is the pastor.

The M. E. congregation has over one hundred members who meet in a comfortable brick church valued at $5000. Rev. A. B. Jones has been the pastor here for more than three years.

The Evangelical Lutheran Church is a neat frame building the pulpit of which has been occupied by Rev. J. B. Umberger for a year past. He has a growing congregation of about one hundred.

The German Lutheran congregation meets in a frame house of worship valued at $2500 under the pastorate of Rev. H. E. Stuehm, who is in his second year here. The congregation is small in numbers, but is strong in church spirit.

The society of Mennonites has a brick meeting house built by them many years since, just east of town, in which a small congregation still regularly meets. An old and scarcely used cemetery surrounds the church.

The Catholic cemetery, south of town is improving rapidly, considerable care being expended upon it.

Oakdale cemetery, also south of town, is beautifully located and is rapidly being beautified by landscape gardening.

SALINEVILLE

THIS town owes its existence to John and James Farmer, who laid it out in 1839.

In 1848 they formally incorporated the village with John Tasker, later of East Liverpool, as the first Mayor.

The discovery of the salt wells in the township drew the first settlers to Salineville and laid the foundation for the fortune of the incorporators.

Salineville's importance increased decidedly with the advent of the C. and P. R. R. in 1852, which gave a great impetus to the coal industry of the section.

James Penrose was the pioneer coal miner in a "bank" at the upper end of the village in the late "forties." John Thompson and Jehu Milner both opened good tracts of coal in 1853.

In 1867 a genuine boom to the coal fields was experienced when the Ohio and Pennsylvania Coal Co. opened up a series of drift mines by direct entry into the hill slopes, with veins of good coal from three and a half to six feet in thickness. They are still in practical ascendancy in the field.

In 1845 James Farmer established a flaxseed oil mill which he ran until 1853 when he refitted the plant as a woolen mill and ran it until 1856, at which time it was purchased by John Montgomery.

On Mr. Montgomery's death in 1877 the operation of the business fell to his two sons R. and J. R. Montgomery.

The Cope Bros. ran a foundry and machine shop from 1849 until the breaking out of the war. It was again started up after the cessation of hostilities until 1869 when they sold out and retired.

The first bank in Salineville was organized in 1873 with J. G. Lacock, President, and W. T. Cope, Cashier, and a capital of $30,000.

The capital was reduced in 1877 to $20,000. The present bank is owned by H. A. Thompson & Co. It is a continuation of the original firm under a more modern policy.

The first postmaster was James Farmer in 1835, the office being in Mr. Farmer's store.

J. G. Lacock entered Mr. Farmer's employ in 1840 and looked after the postal business for several years.

Miss Helen M. Nixon, who was appointed to succeed her father early in 1902, is now in charge of the office.

NEWSPAPERS

"THE OHIO PATRIOT" OF LISBON.

The Ohio Patriot, instituted by William D. Lepper in 1808, is edited by W. S. Potts and is aggressively Democratic in politics with both daily and semi-weekly editions.

THE "BUCKEYE STATE" OF LISBON.

The Western Palladium, first published in 1828, was merged with the Buckeye State. The paper was owned and edited by Edward F. Moore from 1874 until 1901, when it was purchased by the present company. In August of 1901 the Buckeye State absorbed the Lisbon Journal, and is now managed by Edwin M. Crosser and edited by H. M. Crooks.

THE "SALEM NEWS" AND "REPUBLICAN ERA."

The Republican was first published in Salem in 1854, and was sold in 1890 to the Salem Publishing Company who controlled the Era which was merged with it. The same company publishes the Evening News which is edited by the veteran, W. B. McCord, and managed by L. H. Brush.

THE SALEM "HERALD."

The Daily Herald is published by Kirby & Co. of Salem. George H. Gee is its editor.

THE EAST LIVERPOOL "TRIBUNE."

The Record, of East Liverpool, was succeeded by the Democrat, the plant of which was purchased by Jere H. Simms since 1875. For a number of years the Tribune was the only Republican newspaper in East Liverpool. J. H. Simms is the present editor.

THE "EAST LIVERPOOL CRISIS."

James C. Deidrick established the East Liverpool Crisis in 1884. Since that time it has been aggressively conducted as a Democratic daily and weekly. R. G. Collier is the present editor.

THE EAST LIVERPOOL "NEWS REVIEW."

William B. McCord established the Saturday Review in 1879 and changed it to an evening daily in 1884. Mr. McCord later founded the Daily News, which was purchased by the Review Company. L. H. Brush headed a new company which took hold of the News-Review in 1901. The paper is now edited by G. W. Barther.

"THE OPERATIVE POTTER."

F. Leslie Trump began the publication of The Operative Potter in January, 1901, in the interest of union labor in general and union potters in particular. At first a monthly the journal is now issued as a weekly by its incorporated company.

THE "HANOVERTON RECORD."

The Hanoverton Weekly Record was launched by L. R. Benjamin, its present editor and publisher, in 1901.

THE WELLSVILLE "UNION."

The Union was established in 1866 by G. W. Foster. Since that time the Union has changed ownership several times and is now conducted as an evening daily by James McQueen.

THE WELLSVILLE "RECORD."

John Nicholson established the Record in 1899, as an evening daily. James Nolan is editor.

THE "SALINEVILLE BANNER."

The weekly Salineville Banner is owned and edited by J. H. Dodds and is Salineville's only newspaper.

THE "LEETONIA REPORTER."

Since 1871 the Leetonia Reporter has been conducted as the sole newspaper of that city. T. S. Arnold, the present editor, has conducted affairs for over twenty-five years.

THE EAST PALESTINE "REVEILLE-ECHO."

The weekly Echo, of East Palestine, established in 1878, was consolidated in 1894 with the Republican Reveille, managed by S. K. Todd, with the present name Reveille-Echo. Mr. Todd is now editor and manager of the paper.

THE "COLUMBIANA LEDGER."

The Columbiana Ledger was first published in 1830 by George M. Laughlin. H. O. Newell, the present editor, has been in charge since 1895.

"THE COLUMBIANA INDEPENDENT."

The Independent was established in 1898 by Wilson Edgerton and is now conducted by Edgerton and Morlan.

THE "NEW WATERFORD MAGNET."

The New Waterford Magnet has been in existence since 18-- and is edited and managed by W. T. Cuthall.

THE ROGERS "NOON-TIDE."

Noon-tide is a weekly journal managed and edited by Harry Reed and founded by him in 1888.

INDEX TO MAPS IN THE 1902

ATLAS OF SURVEYS OF COLUMBIANA COUNTY

(A separate index to the "Historical Section" in this Atlas may be found at the end of the "Historical Section")

Compiled by Robert W. Audretsch
Salem Public Library, 1975

Reprinted by The Salem Historical Society in Cooperation with Unigraphic, Inc.

This index includes all the names on the maps but not subdivision names. Business firms, etc. are indexed whether they contain a surname or not. Firms with multiple surnames are listed under all surnames, e.g., SMITH, JONES & Co. is indexed under SMITH, JONES & Co. and JONES, SMITH, & Co. Land owned by more than one person is indexed under each person, e.g. John and Nancy SMITH is indexed under SMITH, John & Nancy and SMITH, Nancy, John &. Land bearing only initials is indexed, e.g., A.B.Q. is indexed under Q., A.B. Land owned by schools, granges, cemeteries and churches is indexed under each of these general headings in the index, e.g. Friends School is indexed SCHOOL, Friends.

CHECK CAREFULLY for a given surname. Variant spellings abound for MANY surnames. Where adjacent landowners were obviously the same surname but with variant spellings and do not follow each other in the index all landowners are indexed under all variants, e.g., see AMON/EMMONS in the index. Where adjacent landowners were obviously the same surname but with variant spellings and follow each other in the index landowners are indexed only under the respective surnames, e.g., see SHIVELEY and SHIVELY in the index.

Land owned by an executor, an estate, etc. is not indexed differently, e.g., see BOYLE, F.S. Etal. in index.

Abbreviations:

Dec.	. . . . .	.Deceased
Est.	. . . . .	.Estate of
Etal.	. . . . .	.And others
Ex.	. . . . .	.Executor
Gd.	. . . . .	.Guardian
Hrs.	. . . . .	.Heirs of
Les.	. . . . .	.Lessee
Trus.	. . . . .	.Trustee

Abbreviations for Townships:

BUT.....Butler	KNX.....Knox	STC.....St. Clair
CEN.....Centre	LIV.....Liverpool	UNI.....Unity
ELK.....Elk Run	MAD.....Madison	WAS.....Washington
FAI.....Fairfield	MID.....Middleton	WAY.....Wayne
FRA.....Franklin	PER.....Perry	WES.....WEST
HAN.....Hanover	SAL.....SALEM	YCR.....Yellow Creek

Abbreviations for Cities:

Dam.....Damascus	Lis.....Lisbon	Sli.....Salineville
Efa.....East Fairfield	Mil.....Millport	Sum.....Summitville
Eli.....East Liverpool	Neg.....Negley	Uni.....Unity
Epa.....East Palestine	Nga.....New Garden	Was...Washingtonville
Han.....Hanover	Nwa.....New Waterford	Wel.....Wellsville
Hom.....Homeworth	Roc.....Rochester	Win.....Winona

* After a page number indicates there is more than one tract in that section owned by that landowner, e.g., see BYE, Saml., Centre Twp., Section 16, Page 37.

CAUTION: Liverpool and Washington townships have, in some cases, two sections with the same section number as they were formed from other pre-existing townships, e.g., Section 36, Liverpool township. No attempt has been made to differentiate these similarly numbered townships in the index. Therefore if a landowner in Liverpool or Washington township cannot be found easily check for the same numbered section in another part of the township.
