HISTORICAL SKETCH OF FRANKLIN COUNTY.

THE earliest settlement of the territory now called Franklin County was in 1797, being six years prior to the organization of the present county.

The first land surveys in the Virginia Military District west of the Scioto River, were made early in 1797 by Lucas Sullivant, from Kentucky, who in August of the same year laid out the town of Franklinton, and as an inducement to its permanent settlement, donations of lots were made on a certain street, named by him "Gift Street," to those desirous of becoming actual settlers.

That this inducement to settlement was successful, is clearly attested by the immediate and constant growth of this primitive town. Among its earliest settlers were Joseph Dixon, George Skidmore, John Brickell, Robert Armstrong, John Dill, and John Blair.

At this time there were several Indian tribes in this territory, comprised principally of Delawares, Mingoes, Iroquois, and Wyandots. Some of their encampments and wigwams were located in the vicinity of the present penitentiary; others on the west side of the Scioto, near the Harrisburg bridge, and further down the river.

The next settlement after Franklinton—and perhaps in the summer of 1799—was a few families along the banks of Alum Creek, and some on Darby, near Sullivant's town, "North Liberty."

Settlements and improvements now began near the mouth of Big Walnut (then Big Belly, or Gahanna), and continued along its banks throughout the territory comprising the present county of Franklin. In this slow but constantly increasing influx of population, first along the streams, then to become general, the red man read his doom, saw his "die was cast," that his war-song must be hushed, and the camp-fire fade at the approach of the pale face.

In 1803, the "Scioto Company," numbering forty families, located near the present town of Worthington, Colonel James Kilbourn, their agent, having explored the country in the previous year. Here they purchased 8000 acres of land, being half of one township. On this land Colonel Kilbourn, in May, 1804, laid out the town of Worthington, and in the following August the entire 8000 acres were laid out into farms. They, by deed of partition, divided the same amongst themselves, and thus dissolved the company. The signers to this deed numbered thirty-seven.

At this time there was no grist or flouring mill nearer than Chillicothe. In Franklinton a hand-mill was constructed to grind corn, others boiled it, or pounded it, as they preferred, occasionally making a trip to the Chillicothe mill, a distance of 45 miles from Franklinton. A little later—perhaps in 1800—Robert Valentine erected what was called a mill, on the run, near Gay Street. Another of similar construction was erected by John D. Rush on the Scioto, a little above Franklinton. Several others, also of little value, were built. Colonel Kilbourn erected another with some improvements, in 1805, at Worthington.

The first store built in Franklinton was perhaps in 1806, by James Scott, though merchandizing was begun on a small scale as early as 1803, by Robert Russell, Esq.

During the first years of the settlement there was a vast amount of sickness in this vicinity, which retarded the settlement considerably, but being only fever and ague, was more annoying than dangerous. But the prospective advantages of the country, the fine crops of grain and vegetables, the fine range for stock, and the abundance of game of various kinds, all conspired to reanimate and encourage the wavering settler to remain still another year. Soon the attachment became so strong that it was accepted as the "home of their choice."

The act establishing Franklin County as a county was passed 30th of March, 1803, to take effect 30th of April following. Since then, however, several modifications have taken place, both in divisions and in boundaries.

The county is comprised of eighteen townships, seven of which lie on the west, and eleven on the east side of the Scioto River. It is bounded on the north by Delaware County, on the south by Pickaway and Fairfield, on the west by Madison and Union Counties, and on the east by Licking. Nine half sections, in 1857, having been added to Franklin from Licking County, occasioned the jog in the eastern line of Truro township.

Then a range of sections one mile wide and six miles long, including the town of Winchester, was added on the east side of Madison Township to Franklin County, from Fairfield, at the session of 1850-51, making the county 22½ miles in extent, north and south, and possibly a little more than that east and west, on an average, and contains four several denominations of lands, designated as follows: U. S. Military Lands, Virginia Military Lands, Refugee Lands, and Congress Lands.

The townships of Jefferson, Plain, Blendon, Mifflin, Clinton, Sharon, and Perry, comprise the U. S. Military District; the townships of Montgomery and Truro the Refugee Tract; Hamilton and Madison the Congress Land.

All the remaining townships—seven in number—being on the west of the Scioto, are made up of Virginia Military Lands. And here it may not be amiss to define these land denominations. The United States Military Lands were so called from the fact that they were appropriated by an act of Congress in 1796, to satisfy certain claims of the officers and soldiers of the Revolution.

These lands were surveyed by the government into townships five miles square, then divided into quarter townships, two and a half miles square, containing, or supposed to contain, just four thousand acres each, though most of those early surveys overrun a fraction. The southeast quarter of Plain township, and part of Perry, were laid out for convenience of soldiers in one hundred acre lots. And again, after satisfying the claims for which these four thousand acre tracts were designed, there appears to have been a surplus of land, which was then laid out by government into sections of six hundred and forty acres, and subdivided into quarter sections of one hundred and sixty acres, and disposed of as other Congress lands of this description are.

Plain, Jackson, Mifflin, Blendon, Sharon, and Clinton townships are divided into four quarters; each quarter contained four thousand acres.

It will be observed in the Virginia Military Districts in Ohio, which comprise the land between the Scioto and Little Miami Rivers, that when the State of Virginia, in 1788, ceded to the United States all her right of soil and jurisdiction to all the tract of country she then claimed northwest of the Ohio River, it was provided that the Virginia troops of the Continental establishment should be paid their legal bounties from these lands.

The patent to the soldiers or purchaser of these lands, as well as of all other Ohio lands, is derived from the general government. This district is not surveyed into ranges and townships, or any regular form, and hence the irregularity in the shapes of the townships, as established by the county commissioners for civil purposes; but any individual holding a Virginia military land warrant might locate it wherever he desired within the district, and in such shape as he pleased, wherever the land had not been previously located. In consequence of this want of regular original surveys, the irregularities with which many locations were made, and the consequent interference and encroachments of some locations upon others, far more uncertainty and litigation has arisen relative to lines and titles in this district than all the regularly surveyed districts. In conveyancing the lands in this district are not designated by sections or ranges, as is shown in the military district of this county which is west of the Scioto River, by original surveys and the numbers thereon, which will be observed by turning to the western townships.

We now give a brief description of the Refugee Tract, of which Montgomery and Truro townships are a part. It is a narrow strip of four and a half miles broad north to south, and extending eastward from the Scioto River forty-eight miles. This tract was so called from the circumstance that it was appropriated by Congress for the benefit of certain individuals from Canada and Nova Scotia, who espoused the cause of the American colonies in the Revolutionary War. The Refugee Tract was originally surveyed by government into sections of six hundred and forty acres each. After satisfying all these refugee claims, the balance of these lands were sold as other Congress lands—by the original numbers.

In February, 1834, Columbus was incorporated as a city, and on January 26, 1838, the legislature passed an act providing for the erection of a new State-house. In the spring of 1839, the commissioners appointed Wm. B. Van Hook, one of their own body, superintendent of the work; a vast amount of stone was delivered on the ground, which was obtained from Sullivant's limestone quarry, which is now owned by the State. On the 4th of July, 1839, at a suitable celebration, the corner-stone of the new edifice was laid.

The Gas Company of Columbus went into operation in 1850, and appears to have succeeded well; it has increased its capital stock to nearly $150,000. William A. Platt is president of the company.

The Columbus and Xenia Road was constructed in the years 1848 and 1849, and the first passenger train passed over it on the 26th of February, 1850. In February, 1851, the C. C. and C. Road was completed, and on the 21st of the same month an excursion party passed over the road to Cleveland, and on the 23d the party returned, highly gratified.

In the spring of 1852, the Central Road was finished as far as Zanesville. On the Columbus, Piqua, and Indiana Road, the first train passed over the road from Columbus to Urbana on the 4th day of July, 1853. Columbus has become a great railroad centre. There are now seven roads already complete, and there are three more under contemplation; in all, when complete, ten railroads.

The Ohio Penitentiary was completed, and the convicts were moved from Newark in 1834. The first building was not very substantial; they have since made large improvements, and extended the grounds.

The number of farms in Franklin County, of all sizes, is: 2848 under 3 acres; 46 over 3, and under 10 acres, 78; from 10, and under 20, 150; 20, and under 50, 781; 50, and under 100, 1022; 100, and under 500, 680; 500, and under 1000, 7; 1000 and over, 2.

Valuation of all the real estate in the county for 1870 $22,278,598
Personal property about 13,000,000

Total valuation of property, both real and personal $35,278,598

The number of new structures for the year 1871, in the county: dwellings, hotels, and depots, 354; barns and stables, 46; mills, machine shops, factories, iron furnaces, 10, cost $50,000; stores, shops, warehouses, 30, at a cost of $40,000. Total cost of new structures, during the year 1870, $569,000. Number of marriages during the year 672.

Number of sheep in the county in 1872: 32,191, valued at $65,304; hogs, 54,643, value, $261,967.

The Lunatic Asylum, which is now being built, is two and a half miles west of Columbus, on the national road. A cut representing this magnificent edifice will be found in another part of this work. This building is located on a very high elevation. The location is a very desirable one. The extent of this building is about one mile of outer wall. Due credit should be given to the superintendent, Dr. Wm. L. Peck, for the good arrangements of the building. It will be so constructed that the tramway of the basement of the principal building is to be extended through the basement and first story of this wing, bringing all its departments in direct and easy communication with the several sections of the main structure. It is to be built fire-proof. It will be one of the most magnificent structures of the kind in the world; the cost, when completed, will be about one and a half million dollars.

Franklin Township.—This is the oldest township in the county, and the only one of the four original townships that retains its name. It was laid out and organized when the county was, in 1803. It then contained about twice as much territory as the whole county now does. Its first settlement was the town of Franklinton, which has been noticed previously. Then the settlement extended down the river; and amongst the first families to settle there were those of Samuel White, John Huffman, Wm. Harrison, Sr., and a few others. The township was not reduced to its present limits until after the creation of Jackson, in 1815, and of Prairie, in 1819. The town of Franklinton has not varied much in population and business for the last forty years. It has always been, to a great extent, a town of farmers and laborers, who lived in the town and worked Mr. Sullivant's extensive prairie fields, or were engaged in stone-quarrying, hauling, etc. For the last ten or twelve years there has been an extensive business done in this township, in the raising, shipping, and curing of broom corn.

Sharon Township.—The township of Sharon consists of a small part of what was once Liberty Township. It is just five miles square, and is known on the maps as township two, in range eighteen. It was established by its present name the 4th of March, 1806. Its first settlement was commenced in the spring of 1803, by the Scioto Company.

In 1804 the town of Worthington was laid out. In 1805 the Worthington post-office was first established, and William Robe was appointed postmaster.

Montgomery Township.—This township is about equal to four and a half miles square; is the western township in the Refugee Lands, bounded by the Scioto, and in which the city of Columbus is situated. It was organized as a township in 1807; had originally been a small part of Liberty Township. The first settlements made in the present township limits were along Alum Creek, about the year 1799. On the 4th of July, 1800, Mr. William White arrived with his father, John White and family, from Pennsylvania, and settled on the farm now owned and occupied by Mr. George White. They then found living on the creek, George Turner and family, William Hamilton and family, James Johnston and family, and David Nelson (the elder) and family. In 1804, Col. Edward Livingston settled in the same neighborhood. About this time, Andrew Culbertson settled in the southwest corner of the township, near where the starch factory now stands. And as early as 1801, or 1802, John Hunter settled on Whetstone, north of Columbus, and soon after, William Shaw, John Starr (the elder), Nathaniel Hamlin and John McGown, afterward proprietor of South Columbus.

In 1812 the town of Columbus was laid out, and nearly all events worthy of note other than the ordinary improvement of farms, were connected with the town. With the exception of Mr. Nelson's and Mr. Eberly's mills, there was no manufacturing establishment in this township.

Pleasant Township.—This township was organized by its present name in 1807, though it then embraced four or five times its present area. It was reduced to its present limits by the formation of Jackson, in 1815, and of Prairie, in 1819. A settlement was commenced on Darby, near Georgesville, at an early age of the county. Amongst the settlers were Messrs. Thomas Roberts, John Bigger, James Gardiner, Samuel Dyer, Samuel Kerr, John Turner, and others. About as early as 1805, Mr. Dyer erected his mill, which was long known as "Dyer's Mill," and has been kept up by repeated repairs until the present time. It was for some years owned by James Gardiner, and bore his name; but it is now owned by William Dyer, and its former name restored. It is the only flouring mill in the township.

Hamilton Township.—The lands in this township were originally surveyed for the government in 1799, by one John Matthews, and hence the words "Matthews's Survey," which are very common, though not necessary, in deeds and conveyances of lands in this township. In 1800, these lands came into market, and in that year, or the year following, settlements commenced. Amongst the first settlers were John Dill and Michael Fisher, and soon after Percival Adams, Thomas Morris, the Weatheringtons, the Stewarts, the Johnstons, James Culbertson, the Stumbaughs, Geo. W. Williams, and Robert Shannon and his sons, Samuel, Hugh, James, John, Joseph, and William.

Washington Township.—This township was set off and organized by its present name in 1809. It then comprised all of what is now Washington, all of Perry and Norwich, and part of Brown; and was composed of parts of the original townships of Franklin, Darby, and Liberty. The first settlement in this township was commenced in the neighborhood of where Dublin now stands, about the year 1801 or 1802. Amongst the first settlers were old Mr. Ludwick Sells, from Huntingdon County, Pennsylvania, and his family of sons, Samuel, Peter, Benjamin, and William. An older brother, John Sells, also removed into the same neighborhood in 1808 or 1809. In 1818, he laid out the town of Dublin, which soon became a pleasant and healthy village, and of late years a place of considerable business, with a population of some three or four hundred; a fair proportion of stores, taverns, and mechanics, and a good mill in the immediate vicinity.

Madison Township.—Madison is the largest township in the county, being eight miles in extent north and south; and now, since the accession in 1851, is seven miles east and west, with the exception of the jog in the southeast corner. It was organized as a township in 1809; had before been part of Hamilton. Settlements commenced in 1802 or 1803. As early as 1805, John Swisher, Esq., from the State of New Jersey, settled here. He then found living in the township, Isaac Decker, Elias Decker, Charles Rarey, and his sons Adam, Benjamin, William, Charles, and George—then boys—and a few others.

The school sections appropriated by the government to the townships of Madison, Hamilton, Montgomery, and Truro were all situated in this township, adjoining each other. The three latter townships sold theirs some twenty-five or thirty years ago. Madison still retains her section (No. 16), and realizes from it a handsome school revenue.

Truro Township.—Truro Township was established and organized in 1810. In the first division of the county into townships, it was embraced in, and formed a small part of Liberty Township. Its first settlement commenced in 1805. In 1806, Robert Taylor and his sons Abiather, Vinton, Matthew, James, and David, removed from Nova Scotia to Chillicothe, and from thence to this township in 1808, where they settled on Walnut Creek.

When the township was organized in 1810, the Taylor family had the pleasure of naming it "Truro," after a township in Nova Scotia, from whence they had removed. But little more than ordinary farm improvements were made until after the location of the national road.

Plain Township.—This township was organized in 1810, and then embraced two or three times its present boundaries; but after the organization of Jefferson and Blendon, in 1815 and 1816, it was reduced to its present bounds, which is just one original surveyed township of five miles square, and is designated on all correct maps as township two, in range sixteen, of the United States Military Lands. The fourth or southeast quarter was laid out into one hundred acre lots for the benefit of Revolutionary soldiers, holding one hundred acre warrants, and the patents issued accordingly.

Mifflin Township.—The first settlement of what is now Mifflin Township was commenced about the year 1799 or 1800, by emigrants from Pennsylvania. Amongst the first settlers were William Read (afterward Judge Read), William Simmons, Frederick Agler, George Baughman, Daniel Turney, Matthias Ridenour, then Ebenezer Butler, and others. In the division of the county into townships, in 1803, this territory was included in, and formed a part of Liberty Township. In 1811, the township was established and organized with its present boundaries, and named after their old Pennsylvania governor—Mifflin. It consists of just one of the original surveyed townships, of five miles square, and is designated as township number one, in range number seventeen, of the United States Military Lands. There was nothing remarkable in the settlement of the township; the population and improvements progressed regularly.

Clinton Township.—This township consists of just one of the original surveyed townships, of five miles square, and is designated on the original plats as township one, range eighteen, United States Military Lands. Amongst the first settlers in this township were the Fultons—Hugh and Robert—John Hunter, Samuel McElvain and family, John Lisle and family, Mr. Henderson and family, and the Hesses; and about the year 1804 or 1805, David Beers and family.

Blendon Township.—This township was stricken off from Sharon, and established the 6th of March, 1815, by the name of Harrison (the original Harrison Township, having been chiefly stricken from Franklin County in the formation of Pickaway County, in 1810, and the remaining part of it being included in the townships of Hamilton and Madison). In 1825 the county commissioners changed the name from Harrison to Blendon. The township consists of just one original surveyed township, of five miles square, being township number two, in range seventeen, United States Military Lands.

Jefferson Township.—This township was established the 6th of September, 1816, by its present name and boundaries; it is just five miles square, being the first township in the sixteenth range of the United States Military Lands. It had originally been part of Liberty Township, and subsequently part of Plain. Its first settlement commenced about the year 1802 or 1803. A large proportion of the early settlers were from the State of New Jersey. The first or northeast quarter of the township was patented to Gen. Jonathan Dayton, of that State, in 1800, and he had it platted into lots of one hundred acres, and sold a number of them in New Jersey to persons who had never seen the land. It is said that those purchasing determined their locations by lot. The third or southwest quarter of the township was held by the heirs of L. Brien until 1850, when it was sold and conveyed by them to David Thayer, Esq., at ten dollars per acre. In 1858 he laid out a village on this land, erected a warehouse, sawmill, etc., and named the place Grahamsville, though it is generally known as "Taylor's Station." The great body of his purchase he sold out in suitable farm lots, at a handsome profit.

Norwich Township.—This township was laid out and organized by its present name in 1813; but it then extended across the river, including what is now the south end of Perry. In the original division of the county into townships in 1803, what is now Norwich constituted a part of Franklin Township; and when Washington was set off and established in 1809, it then constituted a part of that township, and so remained until 1813. There never was any village in this township until after the Columbus, Piqua, and Indiana Railroad was established, and then the village of Hilliard was laid out in the fall of 1853, by John R. Hilliard. The place is generally known as "Hilliard's Station." It is quite a small village of probably a dozen families, two grocery stores, and a post-office. The first post-office in this township was established in the spring of 1852, at Smiley's Corners—David Smiley, Esq., postmaster. In 1854 it was discontinued, and an office established at Hilliard, and Thomas W. Dobyns, Esq., appointed postmaster.

Jackson Township.—This township was set off and organized by its present name and boundaries in 1815. It had originally been part of Franklin Township. Amongst the early settlers in this township were William Brown, Nicholas Haun, Jonas Orders, William Badger, Woolry Conrad, William Sinnett, the Brackenridges, the Borers, the Straders, and the Goldsmiths. Until of late years, this township suffered much inconvenience from the want of direct and good roads to market; but since the construction of the Harrisburg turnpike, the Franklin turnpike, and the Cottage Mill turnpike, all passing through this township, that inconvenience has been removed, and the township is increasing in population as fast as any other in the county.

Prairie Township.—This township was set off and organized by its present name in 1819, though its bounds then extended farther north, including a considerable part of what is now Brown. It had originally been part of Franklin. Amongst the early settlers in this township were Samuel Higgins and family, Shadrick Postle and family, and William Mannion and family.

In 1813 the Clover family, originally from Virginia, but then from Ross County, Ohio, removed into Prairie Township, and formed a settlement that is still known as the "Clover Settlement." The family, beside the two old people, consisted of ten brothers—Peter, Joshua, Jacob, Solomon, Henry, Samuel, Phillip, John, William, and Aaron—and two sisters.

Perry Township.—Perry Township is composed of two fractional original surveyed townships, bounding on the Scioto, range nineteen. It is ten miles in length, north and south, and from one to three miles in width, varying with the meanders of the river. It was originally a part of Liberty Township; afterward a part of Washington; then a part of it was attached to Norwich; and in 1820, it was set off and organized by its present name and boundaries. There is no village nor post-office in this township. Part of the township receive their mail matter at the Dublin post-office, part at Worthington, and part at Columbus. Some years since Mr. Simon Shattuck, who lives near the middle of the township, having disposed of part of his farm in small lots, it brought some half dozen families in close proximity, and the place has since generally been known as "Shattucksburgh," though it was never laid out nor intended for a town.

Brown Township.—This eighteenth and last township of the county was set off and organized in the spring of 1830 by its present boundaries. It was taken from Norwich, Prairie, and Washington, and had originally been part of Franklin Township. A few improvements were made along Darby Creek about 1808 or 1810.

Amongst the first settlers were James Boyd, John Hayden, John Patterson, and Mr. Rivier. Though there were but few settlers back from the creek until from 1825 to 1830, when the Welsh commenced settling in this township, and it has of late years been filling up fast, and bids fair to make a rich and flourishing township.

DESCRIPTION OF THE DEAF AND DUMB ASYLUM.

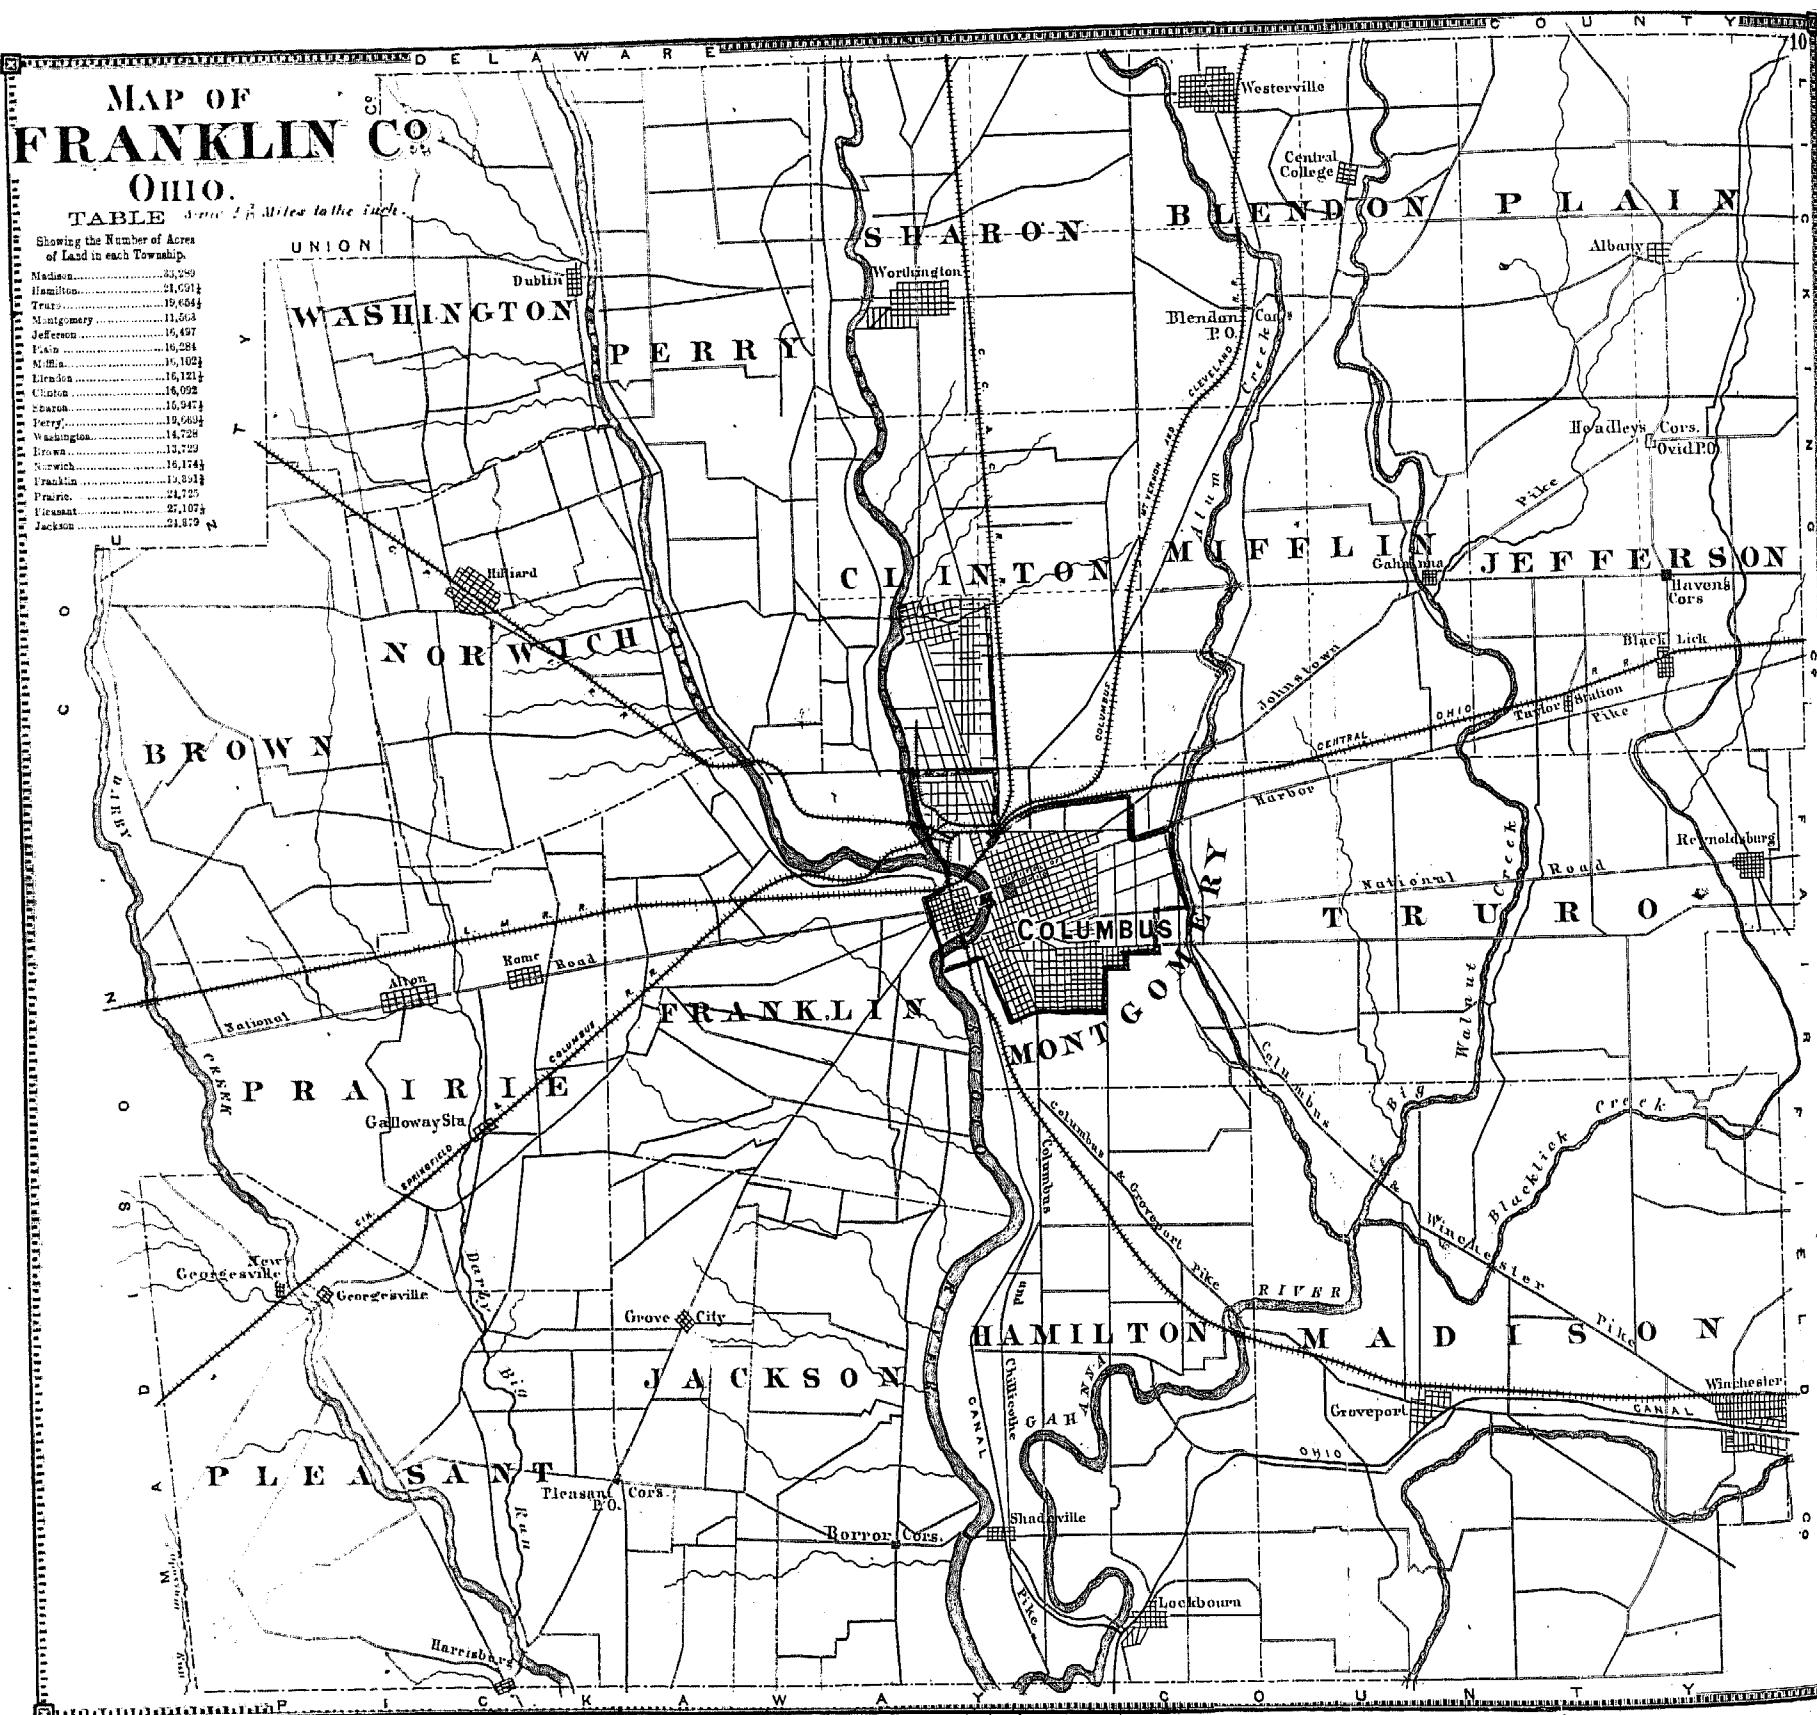

The building—which is represented in another part of this work—nominally one, really consists of seven, suitably connected, and was erected at a cost of $625,000. It is built of brick, and is elaborately trimmed with lime and sandstone. The roofing is of slate, the cornice of galvanized iron, and the balconies, pillars, railing, and floor of iron. The number of bricks required was 8,000,000; the roof cornice is 3800 feet in length; the gas pipe laid is two miles long; the interior walls and ceilings have a surface of twelve acres, and the floors a surface of four acres. The windows number 800. The front building, 270 feet in length, is surmounted by seven towers, the central one being 115 feet high, the two at its side 105 feet, and the four at the corners 97 feet. The centre tower has been finished to the top, and, ascending by a spiral staircase, visitors have a magnificent view of the city. This front building is divided by a hall ten feet wide, running its entire length, upon every story, each story above the basement being 15 feet high. The use of this building is for offices, library, museum, hospitals, parlors, sewing and store-rooms, and chambers occupied by the teachers, officers and employés, and a part of the pupils. Attached to the front building are three wings, running north, all invisible in the picture. The central wing, 90 by 40 feet, is occupied by the kitchen and adjacent storerooms, the dining room, and a chapel 23 feet in height. The two exterior wings extend north 115 feet, affording a hall the entire length, and adjacent rooms for baggage, clothing, washing, bathing, and water-closets. Attached to these exterior wings, and extending at right angles to them, 110 feet east and west, are two wings, 40 feet wide, called the boys' and girls' wings. These are the parts of the building visible at the sides of the picture. The first story is used as a play-room. The second is the sitting or study-room, and is used out of school and work hours. The two upper stories are dormitories. The very fine opportunity for light and air is obvious to the eye. These side wings return by corridors to the central wing, which continues by the bakery and storerooms in the basement, and by corridors in every story, to the school building in the rear. This building, 115 by 55 feet, is invisible in the cut. It is three stories high, and contains twenty school rooms. Still further to the rear is a building 62 feet square, from the corner of which rises the ventilating shaft, 115 feet high, and visible in the cut directly above the girls' wing. This building contains the boilers, engines, and pumps used for heating the main building, and for supplying every part with water. This is taken from a flowing well with the capacity of 150 barrels an hour. The second story is occupied by the machinery and appliances of the laundry. At the extreme right of the picture appears the barn of the premises. Between it and the boys' wing appears the east end of the shop building, which is 130 by 35 feet. Its upper story is divided between the printing office and shoe shop. The lower story, with the basement, is used by the State bindery. A weekly journal, the "Mute's Chronicle," is published in the printing office, and in the bindery is done all the book binding required by the State.
