NORTHWESTERN OHIO.

THE historic material of Northwestern Ohio is too voluminous to be given in detail in a work of this kind. Rather than present a dry chronologic table, we prefer to briefly review and discuss the causes which have made the country what it is

To understand more clearly its physical characteristics, we first consider some of the facts and theories of the science of geology, which teaches us that "the sea is the mother of continents," that "what we know as terra firma is a type of instability, that all lands are constantly undergoing changes of level," that "over all the continents the sea has rolled, not once, but many times." Geology teaches us that during each period of submergence the primitive rocks were overlaid with a series of stratified rocks composed mainly of the sediment of the ocean. As the southeastern part of North America emerged the second time from the great Silurian Sea, which had extended west to the Rocky Mountains, and north to the primitive hills of British America, the retiring flood left immense rock-bound lakes of salt water, covering a large portion of the continent. As those "dead seas" evaporated, their mineral and organic matter solidified, and formed a thick stratum of rock, which geologists have named the "water-line" stratum. This is now the topmost layer of rock underlying a large portion of the west half of Ohio. It is the "bed-rock" of Northwestern Ohio, excepting only a narrow strip along its eastern boundary, where an older stratum is exposed, and the northwestern corner, where the edges of the strata of a later formation appear.

stratum is exposed, and the northwestern corner, where the edges of the strata of a later formation appear.

After the water-lime rock was deposited, the continent was again repeatedly deluged, but it is supposed that the subsequent formations in this region were comparatively thin, for an upheaval of the crust of the earth had occurred, forming a low mountain range stretching from the highlands of Canada to the southern boundary of Tennessee. This bulge was caused by the contraction attending the cooling of the earth, and the pressure of the oceans on either side of the continent. This ancient ridge is known among geologists as the "Cincinnati Arch," the "anti-clinal" which separates the coal-beds of the Alleghanies from those of Illinois. The axis of the Cincinnati Arch was over Sandusky County, or a little east of Wood County, from which the rocky strata sloped to the east and west.

Passing the age of fishes, the age of amphibians (during which the coal-beds

Passing the age of fishes, the age of amphibians (during which the coal-beds were formed), the age of reptiles, and the first period of the age of mammals, we come to the "glacial" epoch, the beginning of a geological period in which the topography of the continent, especially of this region, was materially modified. Geologically, this period is one of the latest; but, compared with human history, it is immeasurably remote.

Many theories are advanced byte.

Gradually the temperature of the frigid zone crept southward until the entire continent, from the north pole to the constant cold of an Arctic winter. Gradually the temperature of the frigid zone crept southward until the entire continent, from the north pole to the flow of the St. Lawrence River, and turned the surplus water of the great lake basin into the Ohio and Mississippi, and even after attaining its most expected the flow of the St. Lawrence River, and turned the surplus water of the great lake basin into the Ohio and Mississippi, and even after attaining its most epoch, which move forward ten or twelve inches every day, it had some of the properties of both a fluid and a solid. In its slow, but constant and irresistible motion toward the equator, it ground mountains to powder, and socoped out great basins and valleys. Its southern margin was not a straight line, but, becoming thinner as it advanced southward, it was modified by the ancient topography, and presented a soolloped edge. Separating into distinct streams, one glacier, striking the watershed north of the Orio River, moved westerly, scooping out the basin of Lake Erie, and graining down the apex of the Cincinnati Arch, which at this point was never much elevated above the general level. Thence, turning southward again, it swept, with a regular curve, through the Manume and Miami Valleys to the Ohio River. As the southern degen of the lakes was drained in another direction."

Next in importance is the ridge north of the Blanchard Fork of Auglaize. West of the Maumee its general course is parallel with the first beach. Crossing the river at Defiance, it curves eastward in at least three separate ridges, one of which gives direction to the flow of the Blanchard and forms the watershed between that stream and the several branches of the Portage. (The nucleus of this ridge is probably a moraine. One of these ridges traverses a part of Wood County, crosses the south part, and thence in a northeast direction through the center.) Another branch of this ridge leaves the principal ridge east of Defiance, and passing southeast around the headwaters of Turkey Foot and Beaver Creeks, turns northwest, separating the drainage of those streams from that of the Portage, and giving direction to the north branch of the Portage, passes diagonally across Wood County.

Wood County has other superficial ridges, knolls, mounds, etc., the origin of which may be easily accounted for by any one familiar with the effects of winds, currents, and waves in our lakes.

But, comparatively, these accumulations of sand and gravel are recent,

But, comparatively, these accumulations of sand and gravel are recent.

Underlying them, and above the coarse gravel resting upon the bed-rock, is a thick stratum of fine clay, which is the foundation of the agricultural resources of the Black Swamp region. Immediately following the iceberg deposits, and when the waters of Lake Erie extended over the entire Maumee Valley, to the depth of two hundred feet, this bed of clay began to accumulate in the form of fine sediment.

The great glacier, which "flowed" downward (now upward) through the basin of Lake Erie and the Valley of the Maumee, rasped down the topmost layers of the solid rock, exposing on the eastern edge of Wood County and in the western part of Seneca and Sandusky Counties, a stratum of "Niagara" limestone. This exposure lies under the axis of the Cincinnati Arch. Wood County is on the westward slope of the arch or ridge, and is, therefore, on the cut ridge—the beveled edge—of the next higher stratum, the waterlime rock. In the western part of Wood County is left exposed the edge of the next stratum, called the Oriskany sandstone, which at this point is thin. This stratum crosses the Maumee above Perrysburg, and after a southerly course towards the center of the county, turns southwest between the Portage and Beacon Creek, and leaves the county at the southwest corner. Between this and the Maumee is the broad edge, or "outcrop," of the corniferous stratum of limestone, and along the river is the thin edge of the Hamilton limestone and shale. All these strata "dip," or slope, northwest.

But the glacier did not leave the Maunee Valley as we now see it—with a plane surface, gently inclined toward the northeast. The sheet of 'ce occasionally came in contact with an obdurate point or strip of rock harder than that surrounding it. Bearing in mind that glaciers possess some of the properties of both fluid and solid substances, it is readily understood how such obstacles produced temporary digressions of the principal current, cross currents, and even counter currents and eddies. Were the superincumbent "drift" removed, we would behold the bed-rock—the surface as moulded by glacial action—presenting a very irregular and fantastic aspect. We would see broad plateaus as smooth as a floor, with occasional valleys into which the descent, from one side, would be gentle and easy, and on the other would be bounded by a perpendicular or overhanging cliff. Projecting high above the general level are ragged knobs, pinnacles, and irregular ridges.

These inequalities of the surface were partially "leveled up" with glacial debris and iceberg drift; but the work was finished during the succeeding period by the deposit of clay from the deep and quiet waters of the great inland sea. Slowly and gently it settled in the form of sediment, impalpably fine, but none the less substantial, gathering at the bottom, at first as slimy ooze, but gradually compressed, by constant accumulations of the same material, into a compact bed of clay. Year after year, ages, centuries, millennium succeeding millennium, the work went slowly on to perfect completion; and when, like a deep and gentle fall of snow, all inequalities of surface were leveled, all rough and forbidding features hidden as with the mantle of charity, the waters retired to other tasks.

It is to this bed of clay, then, that the topography of Northwestern Ohio owes its chief characteristic—its plain, almost level surface.

After the peace between France and England, which lasted nearly thirty years, "King George's War" began in 1744, and terminated in 1748 by the treaty at Aix-la-Chapelle, which still left undecided the boundary between the American possessions of those two great nations. But, whether the parent nations were at war or peace, appeared to matter little to their colonies in this contest, which continued with varying success in the form of petty campaigns on the frontiers, instigated on either side by those engaged in trading with the savages. The various tribes were arrayed on one side or the other. Sometimes the conflict would be among the Indians almost exclusively, at other times the Indians, in sympathy with the French, would make a raid on the frontier English settlements, and occasionally the pioneers and English traders would retaliate by advancing into the Indian territory.

The English colonies, which at first had been struggling for bare existence with the surrounding savages, and which had joined in England's campaigns against Canada on compulsion or in self-defense, had by this time increased in population and wealth, and began to look westward, with some concern, upon the encroachments of the French. The emigration from Europe to the English colonies had greatly exceeded that to Canada; and this population was concentrated, with the consequent advantages of education, religious culture and wealth. The French colonists were widely distributed, fewer in number, and being almost exclusively devoted to commerce with the Indians, had given but little attention to popular education, had few towns, or centers of opinion, and had, in fact, been rapidly deteriorating under their peculiar surroundings. The ver justice in the colonies and the European states. Many of these had joined the Indian tribes, and by their superior intelligence, became dangerous agents of reckless, mercenary traders.

As the inevitable, final conflict approached, every trading post, fortification or settlement started by either party on the ground between the Alleghenies and Maumee, was soon destroyed by the other, or by Indians instigated by the opposite party. This constant turmoil and strife for possession of the disputed territory, served as a school for the hardy frontiersmen, preparing them for the terrible war which soon followed. The topography of the country was well understood. The French laid out a road from Detroit to the Ohio River by the way of the foot of the lower rapids of the Sandusky—fifty years before Anthony Wayne exacted from the conquered Indians the right of way over the same route for a military road.

The Ohio Company, composed of influential men of London and Virginia, obtained a charter from the English Government, with a grant of 6,000 acres of land on the Ohio River, to carry on the fur trade with the Indians. By virtue of the discoveries of the Cabots, the English Government claimed all the land between the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans, limited only by the parallels of latitude bounding their colonies on the Atlantic coast. France claimed all west of the Allegheny Mountains—all the region drained by the Mississippi, which stream they had first explored, and all the territory drained by the upper lakes, for the same reason.

When the Ohio Company began its preliminary surveys, the Governor of Canada protested, and commenced the construction of a line of military posts from the south shore of Lake Erie to the confluence of the Allegheny and Monongahela Rivers,—beginning at Erie and terminating at Pittsburgh. The names of these forts were Presque Isle, Le Bœuf, Venango, Kittaning, and Du Quesne. The last named had been commenced by the Ohio Company, but before it was finished a party of French and Indians took posse before it was finished a party of French and Indians took possession, completed and occupied it.

The French, now in possession of the entire territory north and west of the Ohio River, and all negotiations failing, the French and Indian war began late in the year 1753. Until May, 1756, it was confined to America, and although assisted by their respective home governments, it was conducted mainly by and between the French and English colonies. During the first four years of the war, the French were generally successful; but, when, in 1758, the elder Pitt was placed at the head of the English administration, under his wise and vigorous management of the war, the tide of success immediately turned, the English achieving one victory after another, until the whole of Canada fell into their possession. The war closed in 1763, when, by the treaty of peace, made at Paris, France ceded to England all her American possessions east of the Mississippi. By this treaty, the beautiful Maumee, which had been so profitable to her subjects in time of peace, and such a source of strength in war, passed forever from her dominion. Thus ended French jurisdiction in Western Ohio.

Western Ohio.

During the French and Indian War the Maumee River, in connection with the Wabash, was an important military route for the French. These rivers, with the Lower Ohio, formed a short, safe, and easy passage from the Mississippi to Lake Ene. The route by the Upper Ohio River and the Allegheny to Presque Isle (Erie) was longer, more difficult, and too near the frontier settlements of Pennsylvania and Virginis to be safe at all eleme (Pittsburgh), was in between the two in that the control of the control of the lower rapids, there through the swamp, on the dryets land, to the Portage at several convenient points below Woodville, thence to the ford at the foot of the lower rapids, there through the swamp, on the dryets land, to the Portage at several convenient points below Woodville, thence to the ford at the foot of the lower rapids of the Sandusky, whence the trail led on the high land near the headwaters of the small streams to the headwaters of the Muskingum. Another route followed the Portage or the Sandusky River to the rocky point of the peninsula north of Sandusky Bay, crossed the narrow strait between the bay and Lake Erie, and followed the late shore to the Cuyahoga. There is a tradition that the entrance to Sandusky Bay was formerly fordable. The Maumee and Western Reserve Road is therefore natural highest the variety of the same of the same and railroads, and especially before the streams were bridged and the roads improved, it was of great importance as a military and commercial route at that time, is seen by a glance at the map. The head of Lake Erie extends so far southward as to compel a detour from the general course; but the closer the road huges the lake before the less deflection from a straight line. Between the Maumee and Sandusky, however, the ground near the lake is low and wet, and the momentum straight line. Between the Maumee and Sandusky, however, the ground near the lake is low and wet, and the numerous small streams, as they near the lake is low and wet, and the numerous small streams, as they near the lake is low and wet, and the numerous small streams, as they near the lake is low and wet, and the numerous small streams, as they near the lake, expand into wide marshy estoaries. The object, therefore, assistance from the garrison, but Major Campbell, the British commander, prudently closed his gates, and, from the parapet, with apparent composure, viewed their rout.

Colonel McKee, the British Indian agent, and Captain Elliott, his assistant, were Pennsylvanians. Being tories, that State became too warm for them during the Revolutionary war, and they field to the Indians. Joining the Shawnee tribe, and marrying Indian wives, they soon obtained so much influence with the savages, that they were appointed agents for Indian affairs by the British Government, and continued as such until their death. McKee's residence and official post was, for a time, at the foot of the Rapids, and that point was often designated "McKee's" or "McKee's Station." It has been established beyond dispute, that while the Indians were gathering on the Maumee River and awaiting the onslaught of Wayne's army, they were regularly supplied with ammunition and subsistence from the English fort, and by McKee, from the government stores in his charge. McKee's residence and store-houses were destivoyed by Wayne in the general devastation which he made along the river after the battle of the Fallen Timber.

A few days after the battle Wayne leisurely marched back to Grand Glaise (Fort Defiance), "laying waste on his route the villages and cornfields of the enemy for about fifty miles, on both sides of the river." The crops in the immediate vicinity of the post were preserved. Fort Defiance was strengthened, after which the army proceeded to the upper fork, and on the site of the old Miami villages, crected another fort, which was named "Fort Wayne." In November, the army arrived at Camp Greenville, and went into winter quarters. This old Indian boundary line has always been a prominent land-mark in the history of Ohio, and may yet be traced on the map of the State, forming a part of the southern boundary of the counties of Stark, Ashland, Richland, and Marion, and part of the northern boundary of Tuscarawas and Knox. Fort Recovery was in Mercer

Lucas, was wholly within the limits of Wood County. The tract was laid out "square with compass," its northeast corner being in the heart of the city of Toledo, and its southeast corner corresponding with the present southeast corner of Perrysburg Township. The other tract was surveyed parallel with the river near the bay, the most southerly corner of the tract cutting into the northeast corner of Wood County. The military right-of-way, between the posts thus obtained, at the foot of the rapids of the Maumee and at the lower rapids of the Sandusky River, is now the Maumee and Western Reserve Road.

the posts thus obtained, at the foot of the rapids of the Maumee and at the lower rapids of the Sandusky River, is now the Maumee and Western Reserve Road.

Early in 1796, Jay's treaty having been ratified by our government, England surrendered to the United States certain military posts within our territory, of which she had to that time unjustly retained possession. Among them were Fort Mackinaw, on the strait connecting Lakes Michigan and Huron; Fort Miami, on Maumee River, and the fortified town of Detroit. The posts were delivered to General Wayne, as the authorized representative of the United States. General Arthur St. Clair accompanied General Wayne to Detroit, and immediately after the possession of the posts was obtained, established a new county, to which he gave the name of Wayne, and made Detroit its seat of justice. Wayne was the fifth county erected in the Northwest Territory, in all the region north of the Ohio River. Of these, only two lay wholly within the State of Ohio. Washington County was the first organized, with Marietta as the seat of justice. Next, Hamilton County, with Cincinnati as its county seat. Washington included all the eastern part of the State as far west as the Scioto River, or so much of it as the Indians had ceded by the treaty of Fort MoIntosh. Hamilton County at first included only the tract between the two Miamis (of the Ohio), as far up from the Ohio as an east and west line drawn through the Standing Stone fork of the Big Miami. The boundaries of Wayne County were as follows: "Beginning at the mouth of the Cuyahoga River, upon Lake Erie, and with the said river to the Portage between it and the Tuscarwas branch of the Muskingum; thence down the said branch to the forks at the carrying place above Fort Lawrence [Laurens]; thence by a west line to the eastern boundary of Hamilton County (which is a due north line from the lower Shawnees town upon the Sciota River); thence by a line west, northerly to the southern part of the portage between the Wabash and the Miamis of the incipient State in which the Indian title had not been extinguished by the treaty of Greenville.

Wayne County, as organized in 1796, under the first form of our territorial government, may be briefly described as including about twenty-six of the present counties in the northwest quarter of Ohio (about one-fourth of the State), the northern part of Indiana, and all of the southern peninsula of Michigan. What is now this county, was then comparatively a very small part of Wayne County, and Detroit was our first county seat.

We find, then, that eight years after the settlement at the mouth of the Muskingum, and the establishment of a government north of the Ohio, that government extended its jurisdiction over this county. It was entirely natural and proper to include the Maumee country in Wayne County, and make the old town of Detroit the seat of justice. The few white inhabitants in this region were, like those in and about Detroit, Canadian French, Indian traders, or renegade tories. For more than a hundred years Detroit had been the center and headquarters of all military and commercial affairs about the head of Lake Erie and the foot of Lake Huron. The Maumee River was merely an outpost or province of Detroit. Communication with the civilized world was by the way of Detroit and Canada. A majority of the whites in the lake region were French, of Canadian origin, and still holding Canadian prejudices, and retaining their Canadian connections in all matters of religion, politics, friendship and commerce. Between the Detroit settlements and the settlements on the Ohio River there existed no bond of sympathy; in fact, until 1796, they had always been the bitterest enemies, and both retained much of the old prejudice engendered during the French and the Revolutionary wars. Between the Maumee and the Ohio lay an almost trackless wilderness—"over the whole vast extent there stretched a mighty and unbroken forest yet ignorant of the woodman's steel," effectually preventing communication between the two regions.

Detroit was a garrisoned town, completely enclosed by strong pickets, and defended by a fort on the north, and by batteries on the bank of the river. The "citadel," for the accommodation of the commandant and his suite, was "a spacious edifice within the pickets, with an esplanade in front of sufficient dimensions to manœuver a regiment of troops." The town was compactly built, on very marrow streets, most of them not exceeding one rod in width. It was entirely destroyed by fire in 1805, and is rebuilt on a more convenient plan. Detroit is the oldest town on the lakes above Niagara Falls, and until 1796 was the capital of Upper Canada.

When General Wayne took possession for the United States, of Detroit, Mackinaw, and Fort Miami, he constructed Fort Industry, on the left bank of the Maumee, just below the mouth of Swan Creek, and very near the northeast corner of the cession of twelve miles square. It was garrisoned for ten or twelve years, and is distinguished as the location of an important treaty with the Indians, in 1805.

The ordinance of 1787 provided for a change in the form of territorial coverage.

twelve years, and is distinguished as the location of an important treaty with the Indians, in 1805.

The ordinance of 1787 provided for a change in the form of territorial government when the number of free white male inhabitants, of full age, should reach five thousand. Accordingly, in the fall of 1799, the first territorial legislature convened at Cincinnati. The representatives from Wayne county were Solomon Sibley, Jacob Visgar, and Charles F. Chobart de Joncaire.

In 1800 the North-Western Territory was divided into two governments, by a line drawn from the mouth of Kentucky River to Fort Recovery, and thence northward to the territorial line, leaving the Detroit settlement in the eastern division, under the old government. This created a vacancy in the Council—the "upper house" of the territorial legislature—to which vacancy Mr. Sibley was appointed; and Mr. Sibley's seat in the lower house was filled by the election of Mr. Scheifflein, of Detroit.

Early in 1802 a census was taken in the Eastern Division, which was found to contain over 45,000 persons. By authority of an act of Congress, a convention was elected to form a constitution for the proposed new State, to be composed of the southern part of the Eastern Division. The convention assembled November 1, 1802, and agreed upon the first constitution of the State of Ohio, before the end of the same month. Wayne county was excluded from representation in this convention which caused great dissatisfaction at the time.

Besides this exclusion from the constitutional convention the act of Congress, above referred to, reserved the right to attach the northern part of the Eastern Division to Indiana territory; whereas the ordinance of 1787 contemplated its continuance as a part of the new State (Ohio) until it (Michigan) should have sufficient population of its own to entitle it to admission as a State. This increased the dissatisfaction, for it was the desire of the better class of the people of Wayne county to remain attached to the new State. It was suggested that this county elect delegates to the convention and demand the right of representation therein. To this suggestion, in a letter to a friend at Cincinnati, Mr. Sibley replied:

people of wayne county to remain attached to the new State. It was suggested that this county elect delegates to the convention and demand the right of representation therein. To this suggestion, in a letter to a friend at Cincinnati, Mr. Sibley replied:

"But, sir, supposing the county of Wayne should elect delegates and send them forward to the convention, what security would they have of a bare protection? Would they not feel the mortification of personal insults? From the temper of a majority of the citizens of that place [Chillicothe] last winter, I really believe that their persons would be in danger. At all events I am not personally disposed to make the experiment. Yet I will do everything in my power to stir up the citizens of Wayne, to claim their violated rights. I have conversed with a number of leading characters, most of whom disapprove of the law, and are desirous of becoming a part of the new State, if possible. But nothing frightens the Canadians like taxes. They would prefer to be treated like dogs, and kennelled under the whip of a tyrant, than contribute to the support of a free government."

One reason of the objection of Detroit to becoming a part of Indiana territory was the erroneous opinion that the northern boundary of Ohio, as proposed by the law of Congress, would pass north of the rich settlement at the River Raisin, and thus cut off one of the best portions of Wayne county.

At a public meeting held at Dayton, a series of resolutions was adopted, one of which we append:—

"We feel for our fellow citizens in the county of Wayne, who have relinquished their allegiance to the crown of Great Britain, and become American citizens, firmly attached to the interests of this territory; and we hope they may not be transferred against their wishes to the Indiana territory, at the moment they had expected with us to enter into an independent State government, and to enjoy the privileges of a free people."

But expostulations and petitions were in vain. The Detroit settlements were attached to the Reserve.

Nor had the Maumee County any voice in the election of the first State Legislature, which convened at Chillicothe on the 1st day of March, 1803. During the same month, however, the Legislature created a number of new counties, to which was apportioned all that part of the territorial County of Wayne lying within the State. Montgomery, Green, and Franklin at first extended "north to the State line," and Montgomery extended west to the State line. What was afterwards Wood County, then lay partly in Greene, and the remainder in Franklin.

What was afterwards Wood County, then lay partly in Greene, and the remainder in Franklin.

The first constitution placed the Supreme Court of the State "on wheels,"—or rather on horseback—by Section 10, of the Third Article: "The Supreme Court shall be held once a year in each county," etc. This provision originated in the local rivalries of the time, and the opposition to Chillicothe as the capital of the State. A contemporary writer, a prominent lawyer of those days, thus refers to this feature of the old judiciary: "One evil arising from that scheme is that the Supreme Judges are required to be on horseback half the year, and are compelled to decide important questions of law, in great haste; and often in frontier counties, where access to law books can not be had; and, as the same judges are not always present, it sometimes happens that the same point is decided differently in different counties." The first session of the Supreme Court in Greene County was held in October, 1803; the first session in Franklin County was held in November, 1803. There were three common pleas circuits in the State, each having one president and three associate judges. The first term of the Court of Common Pleas in Greene County was held in August, 1803; in Franklin County in May, 1803. The former was in the First Circuit; the latter in the Second. The State was at first entitled to but one representative in Congress, who was elected in October, 1804. In the State Legislature, Ross and Franklin had four representatives and two senators. Greene had one representative; and, with Warren, Butler, and Montgomery, two senators.

March 1, 1805, Champaign County was organized. It was made up of all the northern part of Greene County, and a part of Franklin, and included the territory afterwards occupied by Wood County. Urbana was the seat of justice. By the treaty of Fort Industry, made in July of the same year, the Indians ceded all their lands within 120 miles west of the western boundary of the State of Pennsylvania. In other words, all their lands in this State lying east of the meridian which forms the eastern boundary of Sandusky and Seneca Counties. The principal object of this treaty was to obtain the title of the land in the Connecticut Reserve, sometimes called the Western Reserve; but as that alone would have left a narrow, wedge-shaped strip south of the Reserve was produced southward until it intersected the old Indian boundary, and all the land east of that line was purchased. The Commissioners of the United States had much trouble in making this treaty, as Canadian emissaries were again at work southward until it intersected the old Indian boundary, and all the land east of that line was purchased. The Commissioners of the United States had much trouble in making this treaty, as Canadian emissaries were again at work among the Indians, exciting their hatred, jealousy, and fear of the "Yankees." This treaty reduced the Indian possessions in this State to a square tract in the northwest corner, bounded on the west by Indiana Territory, on the north by Michigan Territory, on the east by the western line of the Connecticut Reserve, and on the south by the boundary established by the treaty of Greenville, still known as the "old Indian boundary." This tract, including the entire Maumee Valley, was for many years known as the Indian Territory—about twenty counties, as at present organized.

In November, 1807, General William Hull, the first governor of Michigan Territory—he, who, five years later, ingloriously surrendered Detroit—by a treaty at Detroit, secured to the United States the title to a large tract of land lying partly in Michigan Territory and partly in Ohio. It included all the land in this State north of the Maumee and east of a line extended north from the mouth of the Auglaize River, excepting the following tracts reserved by the Indians: "One tract of land six miles square, on the Miami of Lake Erie, above Roche de Beuf, to include the village where Tondaganie (or the Dog) now lives. Also, three miles square on the said river (above the twelve miles square ceded to the United States by the treaty of Greenville), including what is called Presque Isle; also, four miles square on the Miami bay, including the villages where Meshkeman and Waugan now live."

One year later, by the treaty of Brownstown (Mich.), made by Governor Hull, the United States acquired: "A tract of land for a road, of 120 feet in width, from the foot of the rapids of the River Miami of Lake Erie to the western line of the Connecticut Reserve, and all the land within one mile of the said road on each side thereof, for the purpose of establishing settlements along the same;" also, the right-of-way for a road to run southwardly from Lower Sandusky to the Indian boundary. This was the second step toward the establishing of the Maumee and Western Reserve road.

The crew of the frigate was then mustered, and four of them forcibly carried off, on the pretense that they were British deserters. Both nations had for some time been drifting towards unfriendly relations; but from this time the enmity was rapidly aggravated, until in 1812 it culminated in open,war During this period, preceding the war of 1812, the Canadians were not ridle. The Indians of the Maumee and Wabash Valleys were again visited by British agents, who engouraged the Indians to begin another war upon the western settlements south of the lakes, by pledging, semi-officially, the assistance of their old ally. The old idea, of compelling the Americans to abandon the territory north of the Ohio River—of making that river forewar the boundary between the whites and the Indians—was secretly revyend another was a constant of the Canadians were inder no restraint. Although our Territorial and State Legislature had ensected stringent laws forbidding the sale of liquor to the savages, the was almost wholly disregarded, especially by the Canadians. It is undeniable that the free use of intoxicating liquors by the Indians, which began here soon after the Revolutionary war, caused a rapid deterioration of the best traits of Indian character. Another cause of the increasing unfriendliness of the savages, it was almost wholly disregarded, especially by the Canadians. It is undeniable that the frontiers—the most afforcible and mirror of the savages with a min

Although defeated in the battle of Tippecance, in the fall of 1811, the Indians were not subdued, but began to plot with the English for an invasion of Ohio and Michigan, from Canada, in case of war between Great Britain and the United States. As a defense of the northern frontier against the Indians, and as a precautionary measure in case of war with England, an army was raised in Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana Territory and Michigan Territory. As soon as it was organized and equipped, this army, under command of General William Hull, marched from its rendezvous in the southwestern part of this State, directly north through Champaign County to the foot of the rapids of Maumee River, traversing the present counties of Champaign, Logan, Hardin, Hancock and Wood, cutting a road through the wilderness and establishing a number of military posts along the route, which route was for many years afterward known as "Hull's Trace." Crossing the Maumee on the strategetic point of the campaign. After a disgraceful inactivity of a few weeks, on the 28th of August Hull surrendered Detroit, with all the military force under his command, to General Brock, the British commander.

Another army was promptly raised, and placed under the command of General William H. Harrison, which advanced by three routes to the foot of the rapids, with the design of making that a base for the recovery of Michigan and the conquest of Canada. General Harrison, with the right wing, marched by the way of Upper Sandusky, which he made his depot of supplies. General Tupper had command of the center, with Fort McArthur, in Hardin County, as a base, and was to advance by Hull's route. General Winchester marched from Fort Defiance down the Maumee to the foot of the rapids. Without waiting to be joined by Harrison, Winchester moved on to the River Raisin, where he was little was accomplished.

On the 27th of April, the British and Indians, under Proctor and Tecumseh, invested the fort, and on the 9th of May raised the siege. It was during this siege that a regiment of Kentuckians, under Colonel Dudley, was terribly defeated on the north side of the river. Harrison left the fort under command of General Green Clay, and went to the interior of the State to organize new levies of troops. On the 20th of July, the enemy again laid siege to Fort Meigs, but on the 29th again decamped and proceeded to Fort Stephenson (Fremont), and began an attack on the 1st of August. But there they were repulsed by the gallant Croghan. On the 10th of September, Commodore Perry captured the British fleet at Put-in-Bay, on Lake Erie, soon after which Harrison's army was transported to Malden by Perry's vessels. On the 5th of October the British and Indians were defeated in the battle on the Thames, where Tecumseh was killed. The territory and posts surrendered by Hull were speedily recovered, and the war in the Northwest was virtually ended.

Soon after this, General Harrison entered into an armistice with the hostile. Indians, followed by the second treaty of Greenville. Still, few ventured to settle on the Maumee until after the treaty of Ghent and the battle of New Orleans. Those who returned built temporary cabins out of the "arks" which had been used as transports by the army, and of the pickets and block-houses: of Fort Meigs. Congress made an appropriation for the partial reimbursement, of those whose property had been destroyed during the war.

At first the settlement of this side of the river was confined to the immediate vicinity of Fort Meigs, or the foot of the rapids, on the twelve miles square, the center of which was on the large island in front of Perrysburg; and even after the Indian title was extinguished in all northwestern Ohio, the improvements for many years were limited to a narrow strip along the river bank up to the head of the rapids.

In 1815 a town was started near the fort, which was at first called Fort Meigs, afterwards Orleans. At the same time Maumee was started. In the summer of the Indian title was extinguished in all northwestern Ohio, the improvements for many years were limited to a narrow strip along the river bank up to the head of the rapids.

In 1815 a town was started near the fort, which was at first called Fort Meigs, afterwards Orleans. At the same time Maumee was started. In the summer of 1815 three large vessels came up to Fort Meigs after the government stores left here at the close of the war. Of these Mr. Hosmer says: "With the exception of a few light vessels used by the British as transports during the war, these were the first vessels of ordinary draft that ever ascended to the foot of the rapids."

"Upon the close of the war of 1812 the foot of the rapids became an important point in the commercial business of the country. Large quantities of the produce of the western part of Ohio and Northeastern Indiana was brought down the river in flatboats and transferred to the shipping of the lakes. The Indian trader was large. The quantity of furs and peltry collected here by the Indian traders, and that of the sugar made by the Indians from the sap of the sugar maple, and put up by them in cases made of bark, each weighing sixty or eighty pounds, and called "mococks"—these and other like objects of trade and commerce made up a considerable business. The fisheries of the river also constituted a large item in the then business of the place. The quantity of corn even then raised on the Maumee, was very large, and was exported in large quantities to Detroit and other parts of the upper lakes. This was so much the case that it was called "coming to Egypt for corn." These objects, and other minor subjects of commerce and traffic, rendered the business of the place far larger than that which would be indicated by the population of the place, and the amount of lake shipping that came up there to meet this commercial demand was quite considerable."

In September, 1817, at the foot of the rapids, Lewis Cass and Duncan McArthur, Commissioners of the United States purchased all the

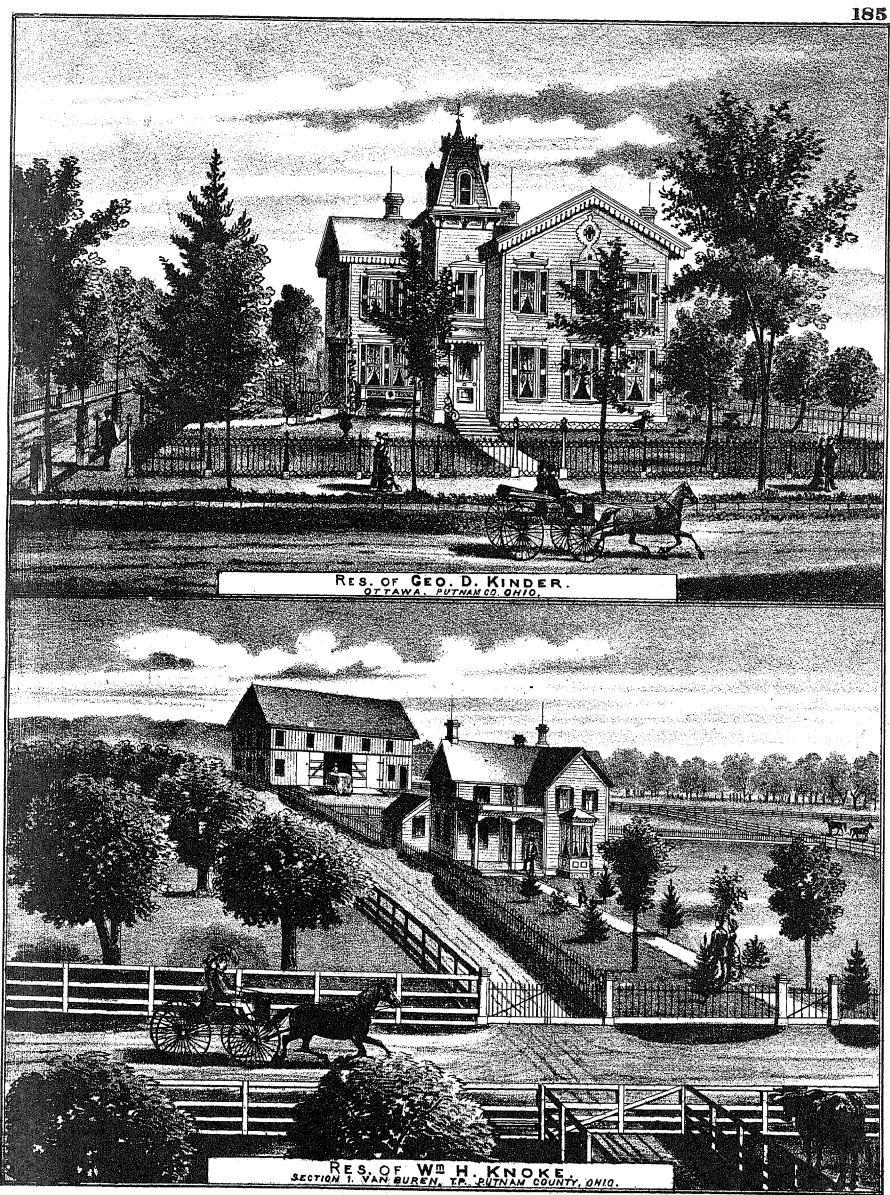

In 1818 an agent, appointed by the government, selected the site and surveyed the town of Perrysburg, and the next year the lots were offered for sale at the land office at Wooster.

"From Wooster I traveled on horseback, by way of the place where Ashland now is, New Haven, Lower Sandusky, to the Maumee. The country through which I passed was very new—here and there a settlement. From Lower Sandusky to the Maumee, it was an entire wilderness (1820), and known as the Black Swamp, through which there was no road, except a mere trail through the woods. I arrived at Perrysburg in the afternoon of a fine day, about the middls of September, and upon arriving on the high bank near Fort Meigs, I was most favorably struck with the magnificent scenery and beauty of the valley. Along the rapids, the intervals from hill to hill were originally prairies, and even these were mostly covered with the finest fields of corn."

The Indians still lingered in their old homes, retaining almost undisturbed possession of their sugar camps and hunting grounds; although the whites were rapidly appropriating the sites of their villages and their favorite fishing grounds. The following description of the Indians of the vicinity, as they were from 1825 to 1840, was written by the late Colistor Haskins:

"Some four or five hundred friendly Indians of the Ottawa tribe, camped in the vicinity of Portage, until their removal by the Government; they were kind neighbors and punctual to pay debts when trusted; they subsisted mostly on flesh; they were fond of venison, turkeys, bear's meat, and blue crane; they also ate porcupines, polecats, and musk rats; they were fond also of hominy, which they obtained by pounding corn in a wooden mortar with a pestle attached to a spring pole; they also made bean soup as a special luxury; they had fields on the Maumee bottoms, where they raised corn and beans in the summer; they would hunt for game in the fall on the Portage and about the neighboring prairies, and in the winter they would camp further south i

"The dress of the Indians was, for the most part, of their own manufacture. They dressed deer skins in the best manner. These they used for moccasins, leggings, mittens and shirts; and in cold weather they were woolen blankets which they received as presents from the British Government."

HISTORY OF PUTNAM COUNTY.

By GEORGE SKINNER, C. E.

County has a starting point. Where shall we fix that time? Shall we begin in 1847, when its present boundary was established? or in 1834, when Putnam County was organized? or in 1820, when the County was established and attached to Wood County for judicial purposes? or in 1796, when our territory was embraced within the limits of the Territorial County of Wayne, with the county seat at Detroit? or in 1778, when Virginia organized the County of Illinois, embracing all the territory owned by Virginia west of the Ohio River? or in 1760, when the House of Burgesses, of the Colony of Virginia, established the County of Botetourt, with the Mississippi River as its western boundary?

Thus have we had county jurisdiction covering our territory for over one hundred years. This takes us back to a time before the organization of our government, when England and France both claimed an ownership in the territory northwest of the Ohio River, and which was finally settled by the treaty of Paris in 1783, when it came fully into the possession of the United States.

It might be interesting to go still further back and inquire as to the tribes of Indians found here by the whites; and, still to a more remote period in the past, and ask: Who were here before the Indians? who were

who have left with us so many of their mysterious works? Who were they? Where did they come from? What became of them? These are questions much easier asked than answered. That they were an intelligent, industrious people, their works left with us all testify; that their history is as yet hidden in mystery, appears to be conceded by all. The works left by them in our county consists of mounds, pottery, stone implements, and ornaments, made of granite, flint, and slate, and many of them very fine in construction.

The largest mound in the county is on Section 16, Perry township. This was about eight feet high and about fifty feet in diameter, beautifully situated on the Auglaize River. When this mound was examined, by a shaft sunk at the center, the first two feet were found to be a sandy loam; thence to the bottom it was a fine yellow sand, as clear of muck as if it had been burned. At a depth of four feet from the surface was the skeleton of a full-sized person, badly decayed, and which fell to pieces on exposure to the air. It was evidently the remains of some one deposited there since the erection of the mound. At a depth even with the surface of the surrounding lands were quantities of broken pottery, the pieces indicating vessels that would have held ten gallons; several arrow points of flint, of the leaf-shaped pattern; and a fine piece of flint in the shape of a knife-blade, about three inches long, half-an-inch in width, and the sixteenth-of-an-inch in thickness, sharp on one end and edge. Occasional pieces of charcoal were found through the sand, from the top to the bottom.

One mile northwest of this mound, and in sight of it, was another one on the high bank of the Auglaize River. This one was never examined, and the river has gradually encroached upon it until it has almost entirely disappeared.

A third one, on the farm of Mr. Ayers, not so large, has never been examined. This is on the Blanchard River. Another was on the Agner farm, one mile east of Ottawa, on the Blanchard. This one was noted for the large amount of broken pottery around it. Also, one on the farm of Mr. Collett, on Hog Creek, noted for the large quantity of pottery.

Fine specimens of stone axes, grooved hammers, perforated balls, pestles, flat perforated slate stones, badges or wands, tubes, etc., are found scattered over the county, and, until within a few years, have excited but little interest, having been regarded merely as something odd, and then cast aside. This indifference, however, is becoming changed, and greater care is taken of them, as several cabinets of these curiosities are being formed in the county.

AN ACT OF THE BRITISH PARLIAMENT.

The British Parliament, in the year 1774, passed an act, making the Ohio River the southwestern boundary of Canada, and the Mississippi River the western boundary, thereby attaching the Northwest to the province of Quebec, as it was called, thus placing what now constitutes the State of Ohio under the local administration of said province.

THE INDIANS.

The Algonquin and Iroquois tribes of Indians appear to have been the possessors of our soil about 1750. The Wyandottes, the Delawares, and the Shawnees, were of the Algonquin family. The Miamis, Ottawas, and Chippewas, were of the Iroquois family. By the treaty of Fort McIntosh, in 1785, the Ottawas, with the Wyandottes and Delawares, were assigned to the northern section of what is now the State of Ohio, and west of the Cuyahoga River; and, by treaty and purchase, in 1805, 1818, 1829, and 1842, the last remnant of those tribes sold the last acre they owned within the limits of Ohio, and retired the following year to the Far West, settling at and near the mouth of Kansas River.

EARLY LAW.

The first law proclaimed by the Governor and Judges of the Northwest Territory, July 25, 1788, was entitled, "An Act for regulating and establishing the militia," in which it was provided that "all able-bodied male inhabitants, between the ages of eighteen and fifty years, should provide themselves with a rifle or musket, shot-pouch and powder-horn, four pounds of bullets, one pound of powder, wiping-stick, six flints and priming wire, and to be and appear fully armed and equipped on every Sunday, at 10 A. M., at the usual place of holding public worship."

PUTNAM COUNTY.

February 12, 1820, the Legislature of Ohio proceeded to divide that part of the lands, a short time previously ceded by the Indians to the United States, into fourteen separate counties. The first was Van Wert; second, Mercer, and the third, to include townships one and two, south, and one and two, north, in the fifth, sixth, seventh, and eighth ranges, and to be known by the name of Putnam; and that the counties of Hancock, Henry, Putnam, Paulding, and Williams, shall be attached to the county of Wood.

February 2, 1824, the county of Williams was organized, and Henry, Putnam, and Paulding Counties attached for judicial purposes. In 1834, Putnam was organized as a separate county; and, in 1847, the Legislature reduced its boundary lines to the present form, adding on the west eighteen sections of land, and taking from it on the south one hundred and fourteen sections, or a loss of over thirty thousand acres of land on the duplicate.

SOME OF THE EARLY COUNTY OFFICIALS.

Illinois County was bounded on the east by Pennsylvania; on the southeast by the Ohio River; on the west by the Mississippi River, and on the north by the northern lakes, thus making the territory now constituting Putnam County an integral portion of it. John Todd, Esq., was appointed County Lieutenant and Civil Commandant of Illinois County. He was killed in the battle of Blue Licks, August 18, 1782, and was succeeded by Timothy de Montbrun.

Wayne County was organized by the Territorial Officers of the Northwest Territory, August 15, 1795, with the county-seat at Detroit. On the 29th day of October, 1798, the Governor, Arthur St. Clair, issued his proclamation, directing an election to be held on the third Monday of December, 1798, to elect members of a Territorial Legislature, under which Solomon Sibley, Jacob Visgar, and Charles F. Chabert de Joncaire, of Wayne County, were elected members of said Legislature. On November 28, 1801, the second Legislature of the Territory met at Chillicothe, when Solomon Sibley, of Detroit, Wayne County, was elected President of the Council, and Francis Joncaire Cabert, George McDougal, and Jonathan Schieffelin, took their seats as members of the Legislature from the same county*. In 1802 the present boundary of Ohio was established, which left this part of Wayne County without a county-seat.

In 1884, Putnam County was organized as a separate county, and William Cochran, Henry Morris, and Silas McClish were, by the Governor, duly commissioned as Associate Judges. A Commission was also appointed by the Legislature, February 12, 1829, to select a suitable place for the county-seat. That Commission, in performance of its duties, selected the southwest quarter of section 5, town 1 south, range 6 east, and gave it the name of "Kalida."

ciate Judges, met at the house of Abraham Sarber, and, after being duly sworn, completed their organization by the election of Daniel W. Gray, as Clerk, and Amos Evens, as Prosecuting Attorney; and, in pursuance of their duties, they appointed Abraham Sarber, Town Director; Thomas Gray, William Priddy, and Samuel Myers, County Commissioners; F. C. Fitch, County Surveyor; Samuel Myers, John Cochran, Isaac Owens, A. E. Martin, James Nicholas, Daniel W. Gray, School Examiners. They further ordered that an election be held at the house of Abraham Sarber, on the 31st day of May, to elect one Sheriff and one Coroner for the county.

August 18, 1884, court met at the house of Abraham Sarber. Present: William Cochran, Henry Morris, and Silas McClish, Associate Judges, and Daniel W. Gray, Clerk. When it appearing that no election had been held on the 31st day of May, as directed, the court appointed William Cochran, Sheriff, and William Turner, Coroner.

November 20, 1835, court met at the house of Sheldon Guthrie, in Kalida. Present: Messrs. Cochran, Morris, and McClish, Associate Judges, and D. W. Gray, Clerk. The bond of William Turner, as Coroner, being presented and approved, he was duly installed as Coroner.

April 30, 1835, court met. Present: George B. Holt, President Judge; William Cochran, Henry Morris, and Silas McClish, Associates. The Grand Jury consisted of John Guffy, James Turner, Peter Bussart, James D. Wamsley, William Ramsey, Moses Sutton, Caleb Gaskill, Obed Martin, John Hand, McDaniel Osborn, Benjamin Clevinger, Isaac McCracken, Robert McCracken, John Lisk, and John Ridenour, with Benjamin Clevinger as Foreman, and James M. Lee, Constable.

At the fall election, held October 15, 1834, William Priddy, Benjamin Clevenger, and Sheldon Guthrie, were elected Commissioners; F. C. Fitch, Auditor; John M. Cochran, Treasurer; William Cochran, Sheriff; James Taylor, Coroner; Moses Lee, Recorder; Samuel Ramsey, Assessor; F. C. Fitch, Surveyor. At this election there were 163 votes cast in the county, as follows: Jennings, 17; Sugar Creek, 34; Union, 23; Perry, 27; Ottawa, 22; Blanchard, 22; Riley, 18.

The organization of the county having been completed, the Commissioners, in its behalf, purchased the balance of section five; had the whole laid off in lots, and, through the Town Director, sold. The proceeds, after paying the cost of land, expenses of survey, sale, etc., were applied to the erection of a Court House and Jail. The first Court House was a temporary frame building, but in 1838–39, brick structures were erected.

In 1847, the county of Auglaize was created, reducing our county to its present size and shape. At the session of the Legislature for 1864-65, an enabling act was obtained allowing a vote to be taken for or against a removal of the county-seat to Ottawa. In the winter of 1864-65, the Court House burned down, destroying many of the records entirely, and damaging many more. In 1866, a vote on the removal of the county-seat resulted in a majority of 485 in its favor, and the same was removed to Ottawa, where suitable buildings were erected.

PUBLIC SURVEYS OF LAND.

Sylvanus Bourne established the base line in May, 1819, and from this line as a base, all surveys in the county are made. In 1819 and 1820, township lines were established by Alexander Holmes, Samuel Holmes, S. Carpenter, Jr., and others. In 1819, 1820, 1821, and 1822, the townships were subdivided into sections by Nathan Beaseley, James W. Riley, P. F. Kellogg, James Heaton, and Ambrose Rice. The Ottawa Reservation was surveyed by James Watson Riley, for Ambrose Rice, in 1883.

NAMES OF STREAMS.

Au Glaise and Grand Glaise were names given by the French to the present Auglaize River, and especially at its junction with the Maumee.

Ottawa River, or Hog Creek, was so called from the Ottawa tribe of Indians, and derived its soubriquet of Hog Creek from this circumstance: While the English held possession of Fort Miami, on the Maumee River, parties on the Miami River undertook to supply them with pork. In driving a lot of hogs through, when they reached this stream, which happened to be very high, and becoming much alarmed at what they deemed hostile demonstrations on the part of the Indians, they drove their hogs into the river, some of which reached the opposite side, some returned to the side they had left, and many were drowned. The owners abandoned all and went home. Hence the name.

Jennings Creek was named after Colonel Jennings, who built the stockade in 1812 at its junction with the Auglaize, Leatherwood Creek was so called on account of the abundance of the shrubs of that name along its banks.

Sugar Creek derived its name from the fact that the Indians, having their camps on the Auglaize, had a trail along this stream to their sugar camps at Sugar Level, north of Lima.

Plum Creek was so named on account of the large amount of wild plums found on its banks.

Cranberry Creek was thus named from the marsh on its banks, where many cranberries grew.

Riley Creek was named Deer Creek by the surveyors in 1820, from the great number of deer on its banks. The name, however, was changed by the Surveyor General to that of Riley, complimentary to the Surveyor, James Watson Riley.

Blanchard River was so named from the fact that a man named Blanchard, was the first white man who traded along that stream with the Indians.

WHITE PEOPLE IN THE COUNTY.

The first white family in the county was that of Henry Leaf, who built a cabin on the south side of the Blanchard River, on section ten, Greensburg Township, where he remained some time. He removed from that point and built another cabin on the Auglaize River, at the junction of the Blanchard with the Auglaize, where he was in 1824. This mar could hardly be considered a resident of the county, as he lived with the Indians, moved when they did, and when they were removed to the West, he went with them, and ended his days there.

In 1824, David Murphy, with his family, came down the Blanchard River in a cance from Fort Findlay, landed at the mouth of the Blanchard, built a cabin of poles, and became the first permanent white settler in the county. His wife was the first person buried in the cemetery at Kalida, and at her side the remains of her husband were deposited. During the year 1824, Silas McClish, Thomas McClish, and Jack McClish settled a nile below Murphy, on the west side of the Auglaize. William Bowen settled three miles south, and William Patton fourteen miles south.

In 1825, there came Henry Wing, Daniel Sullivan, William Craig, Daniel Pelke, Sepastian Sroufe, and Thaddeus Harris.

In 1826, John Ridenour and his sons, Michael, Daniel, and Jacob; Demmitt Mackerell, Frederick and William Stevens, William H. Harris. and Samuel Washburne.

1827—Josiah Clawson, Joel Wilcox, William Bishop, William Cochran, Cephas Cary, John Cary, Philip Comer, William Scott.

1828—William Frasee, David Sroufe, Henry Comer, A. E. Martin, Robert Martin, Solomon Sprague.

1829-S. L. Norris, Ellison Ladd, Jonathan Wiland.

1830—William Clevenger, Nutter and Joshua Powell Isaac Owens, Joseph, Samuel, Jacob, and George Clevenger.

1831—Peter Rhodes, Abraham Sarber, O. W. Crawfis, Samuel Hall, John Guffy.

1882—Jacob Rimer, Abraham Hardm, J. R. Rimer, John Myers, Sr., Abraham and James Crow, Obed Martin, Samuel Hall, H. M. Crawfis.

1833—J. Y. Sackett, John Sigofoos, Stansbury Sutton, Hiram Sarber, Frederick Brower, John B. Bogart, Adam Sarber, William Guffy, James Nicholas, Thomas Watkins, Henry Wellman, C. Raabe.

1884—William Galbreath, Enoch Wicks, John Crawfis, Moses Lee, Hugh Crawford, Robert and Isaac McCracken, Sheldon Guthrie, and many others.

ROADS AND MAIL ROUTES.

The first road in the county was the one cut through from Fort Recovery to Defiance, by Anthony Wayne, in 1794. This passed along the west side of the Auglaize River, and has ever since, with few variations, been used as a public road. At the intersection of Jennings Creek with the Auglaize, on this road, Colonel Jennings erected, in 1812, a stockade for the protection of supplies between Fort Recovery and Fort Defiance; and, on this road, the first mail route was established and the mail carried between Piqua and Defiance, once a week, on horseback, supplying between the termini the offices of Hardin, Wappeconnatta, and Sugar Grove (this was at the house of Sebastian Sroufe, near Hover's Mills), the only office in the county. The mail was carried by a boy, C. C. Marshall, from September, 1829, to December, 31, 1831. And here, permit me to say, that the boy, C. C. Marshall, has since then filled the office of Justice of the Peace for twenty-three years; Mayor of the town of Delphos for ten years; Commissioner of Allen County for three years; Superintendent of the Miami and Erie Canal for seven years; and was a member of the House of Representatives, as well as of the Senate, of the State of Ohio.

THE FIRST MINISTER.

Rev. J. J. Hill was the first minister that had regular work. This was in 1830 and 1831. He was a Methodist, and took a circuit commencing at St. Marys; thence to Wilshire, Shane's Crossings, Fort Amanda, Hog Creek, near Elida; Cochran's, on the Auglaize; Defiance, Antwerp; thence down the Maumee to Florida; thence back to St. Marys—a distance of three hundred miles—making the circuit once in four weeks, at a salary of one hundred and fifty dollars per annum.

BUILDING IMPROVEMENTS.

The first school-house was built on the high ground, on the west side of the Auglaize River, at the mouth of the Blanchard, in 1829, with Lewis Sroufe, Teacher.

In 1831 or 1832, Benjamin Clevenger built a mill on Sugar Creek, and Jacob Ridenour a horse mill, on the Blanchard. The first was a wet weather mill; the other could grind about a bushel of corn an hour. In 1836, Guthrie & Sarber erected a mill at Kalida; and, in 1837, Elisha. Stout built one at Gilboa.

AN INCIDENT.

At the burning of the Court House, in Kalida, the Treasurer of the County was at home in bed when the alarm was given. He secured his pantaloons and boots, and left without further delay. On reaching his office he found the fire had made such progress that it would be impossible to remove the safe, which was one more in name than reality, and in which was all the funds of the county, as well as many private deposits. He stood for a moment perplexed, when his wife, who had as hastily followed him, without bonnet of apron, and comprehending the situation, quickly gathered the skirt of her dress around her waist, made a depository for the funds, which were at once transferred thereto, and as speedily carried through the streets to her home, where all was found safe to the last dollar.

KALIDA.

From 1848 to 1848, quite a number of young men settled at Kalida for the purpose of making a start in life; and, perhaps it would be difficult to find an equal number of young men starting together who have made a better record. To enumerate:—

John Morris, attorney, removed to Indiana, when, in 1852, he was elected Judge of the Court of Common Pleas, a position he held for many years.

Alonzo A. Skinner, attorney, removed to Oregon, where he received the appointment of Territorial Judge, an office that he held until Oregon became a State.

William H. Ball, attorney, removed to Zanesville, O., where he became distinguished in his profession. During the War of the Rebellion he was Colonel of the One Hundred and Twenty-Second Regiment, Ohio Volunteers Infantry. Became a member of the Legislature of Ohio, and is now Judge of the Court in Muskingum County.

Benjamin F. Metcalf, attorney, became a member of the State Legislature, and for fourteen years, until his death, was Judge of the Court of Common Pleas. He died at Lima, O., February 27, 1865, and, at the time of his death, had held the position of Judge longer than any one in the State.

James McKensie, attorney, also became a member of the State Legislature and Judge of the Court of Common Pleas for fourteen years.

- R. W. Thrift, physician, became eminent as a physician; was surgeon in the army during the War of the Rebellion, holding the positions of of Regimental, Brigade, and Division Surgeon, in the Army of the Cumberland, and, at the close of the war, removed to Lima, O., and was selected as Professor of Gynecology in the Medical College at Fort Wayne, Ind.
- C. M. Godfrev. physician, held the office of County Treasurer for four years; was elected and served as Senator in the State Legislature; was Trustee of the Insane Asylum, at Newburg, from 1852 to 1856, and Trustee of the Asylum, at Dayton, from 1876, a position he still holds.
- A. V. Rice, banker, Ottawa, O., at the outbreak of the Rebellion, went into the service from Kalida, and remained during the war, serving with distinction in the Western armies, and holding the positions of Second Lieutenant, Captain, Lieutenant Colonel, Colonel, and Brigadier General, in the Volunteer service; he was a member of the Forty-fourth and Forty-fifth Congresses of the United States, and was candidate for Lieutenant Governor of Ohio, on the Democratic ticket, in the fall of 1879.
- T. E. Cunningham, attorney, became prominent as an attorney; was a leading member of the Constitutional Convention for Ohio in 1872-78; was Assessor of Internal Revenue for the Fifth District, and Commissioner of the Board of Enrollment for the same district.

Levi Rice, attorney, removed to Oregon, where he was elected and served as Judge of the Court for several years before his death.

John McClure, attorney, went into the army during the Rebellion, as Quartermaster, and, at the expiration of four years, having been promoted through the several grades to that of Major, at the close of the war, was appointed Associate Justice, and afterwards Chief Justice of the State of Arkansas

COURTS.

George B. Holt served as President Judge at the April and November terms of the Court of Common Pleas in 1835; William L. Halfenstine at the March term, 1836.

In May, 1834, the courts ordered that Justices of the Peace be elected in Union, Sugar Creek, and Blanchard Townships.

In April, 1835, it was ordered that Justices of the Peace be elected in Monroe, Riley, Ottawa, Greensburg, Pleasant, and Richland Townships, and under this order the following gentlemen were duly elected and qualified, to-wit:—

James Martin, July 29, 1834; James Nicholas, August 1, 1834; James Cochran, August 6, 1834; Henry N. Myers, August 11, 1834; Andrew McClure, October 11, 1834; Daniel W. Gray, May 28, 1835; Luke Tipton, July 16, 1835; William Clevenger, July 20, 1835; Thomas Gray, July 25, 1835; John Cox, August 26, 1835.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The first marriage on record in the county was that of George Mell and Mary Ord, Sunday, June 15, 1834. The second was that of John Tegardin and Diana Ord, Thursday, October 2, 1834.

The first bond (except official bonds) on file in the county was given by Daniel L. Goble, with Ebenezer Goble as surety, in the penal sum of five hundred dollars, the conditions of which were that a negro girl, named Rachel, whom he had brought into the State of Ohio, should not become a public charge.

The first naturalization papers were granted to John Francis Kahley, a native of the Kingdom of Hanover; and to James Watkins, a native of Wales, November, 1835.

The first order of notice by publication, made by the courts, was at the May term, 1835, in a case between Joshua Waggonseller vs. Jacob Dewees, when the court ordered that "notice of the pendency of this suit, and the substance of the bill and the prayer thereof, be published for four consecutive weeks in the Saturday Evening Post, a newspaper published in Philadelphia; the first publication to be two months previous to the next term of this court, and a copy of the same to be posted on the door of the Court House four months previous to the next term of this court."

MIXING THE RECORDS.

In Volume I., page 8, of the Journal of the Court of Common Pleas, 1836, may be found this entry:—

"The Court appoint James Taylor, Clerk pro tem., of this Court, on the resignation of Daniel W. Gray, who thereupon gave bond, approved by Court, and the oath required by law. On application of William Phillips, for a renewal of his tayern license, which was granted by the Court. Him, the said Taylor, gave bond and took the oath of office as Clerk."

There may also be found, on page 30, of the marriage record, the following certificate:—

"STATE OF OHIO, "PUTNAM COUNTY, ss.

"I do hereby certify that I solemnized the marriages between David Sloufer and Elizabeth Nicewarner, one part, on the 1st day of June, 1837; more yet, John Armstrong and Elizabeth Strain, second part, on the 5th day of August, 1837; more yet, Christian Lugabill and Catharine Sloufer, third part, on the 5th day of October, 1837.

ORGANIZATION OF TOWNSHIPS.

VAN BUREN TOWNSHIP.

THIS township was known as North Blanchard, and, prior to its organization, was attached to Blanchard township, and for many years was the common hunting-grounds for the "Nimrods" of this and the adjoining counties. The Leipsic, Campbell, and Belmore ridges cross this township from west to east. What it was originally is better described by James Heaton, who surveyed it in 1821, and in his notes he says: "While surveying this township, I dug five wells, twenty inches deep, for water, the swamp water being unfit for use. At some future day this swamp will probably be drained, as it may be in four or five different directions. The soil in this township averages as good second rate; but at present the land is so wet and miry, and there are such masses of fallen timbers, that there appears to be nothing inviting to the agriculturist to settle it."

The first settler in this township was Abraham Baughman, in 1835. A few others came about the same time; among them, Hiram Hull, Ludwick Hull, Elvington A. Hull, William Killpatrick, James Reed, James Davis, and John Broadsword. Several attempts were made to organize the township, but failed for want of voters. Finally Abraham Baughman gave his bond to secure the county against loss, and then on the order of the Commissioners, the township was organized, and the first election held February 18, 1848, at the house of Abraham Baughman. Twelve votes were cast, nine resident and three imported for the occasion. The officers elected and qualified were: Trustees-Abraham Baughman, Elvington A. Hull, and John Davis; Clerk, Marcus L. Thrapp; Treasurer, Elvington A. Hull; Overseers of Poor, Jacob Nemire and Adam Krites; Fence Viewers, Abraham Baughman and David Tyner; Constable, Lemuel Hickerson. March 6, 1843, the trustees met and organized the township into two school districts -- No. 1 being the east half, and No. 2 the west half of the township. At an election held April 3, 1843, a full board of officers were elected, and the township divided into two road districts, being the same as the school districts, with Burdett Hull and John Davis, Supervisors. A special election was held May 20, 1843, and Elvington A. Hull elected the first Justice of the Peace. Leipsic Station was laid out by J. B. Swartz, in 1859, and Montgomeryville—now Belmore—was laid out by W. G. Montgomery, in 1862. As an evidence of the rapid development of this township, we find that at the October election, in 1848, nineteen votes were east for Governor, and at the October election, in 1879, four hundred and seventy-six votes were cast.

LIBERTY TOWNSHIP.

THE first settler in this township was Alexander Montooth, in 1835; later in the same year came Charles Hoffsteater, Nicolas and J. R. McConnell, Samuel James, James and John Irvin, John Krebbs and O. C. Pomeroy, in 1836; other settlers who came among them were H. S. Rausey, Jacob Sigler, Henry Knopp, James Woodell, Robert Lowry and perhaps a few other families. The records being lost, a full list of the names of the first officers could not be obtained. This township was organized in April, 1837. Nicolas McConnell was elected the first Justice of the Peace; J. R. McConnell, Constable. The first settlements were made on what is known as the Ridge. Owing to the many swamps and ponds it was at first very unhealthy and prevented the rapid development of the township; but since 1860 a number of drains and ditches have been made and the health has been improved, and much good land has been brought into cultivation. The first town was Medary, laid out, in 1845, by the late Judge Palmer, who erected a mill and kept a small store. This mill was quite a curiosity, built for a grist and saw-mill, with the grist mill above. The town of Leipsic was laid out by John Peckingaugh, in 1853 or 1854, and for a time was quite a thriving village. Its present growth is more gradual.

PALMER TOWNSHIP.

This township was for many years known as North Greensburg. It was the last township organized in the county, and named in honor of the late Judge Palmer. By order of the Commissioners, it was organized in the winter of 1854, and the first election was held at Kerns' school house, January 1, 1855. Thirteen votes were cast. Officers elected were: Trustees—John Frazee, John Kerns, and John S. Welch; Treasurer, John Hamilton; Clerk, David Caldwell; Justice of the Peace, John Kerns; Constable, David Caldwell. This township lies in the Black Swamp, and was considered the wettest township in the county, prior to the enactment of the ditch laws. North and South Powells Creek are the principal outlets for drainage. These streams were the abodes of Nature's first engineersthe beavers. They constructed extensive dams across these creeks, and overflowed thousands of acres of land from one to eight feet deep. These extensive tracts of marsh have gradually filled up with decayed grasses and vegetation, forming a large area of rich muck land. The first attempt to reclaim and drain this land was made by Michael Williams, in 1860, which was a partial success. Since that time many ditches have been located and constructed (this being the main work of the township), and some of the richest lands in the county have been reclaimed, and larger crops of onions and potatoes per acre are raised in Palmer township than in any other in the State. In a few years, when these outlets are enlarged so that the lands can be thoroughly drained, they may justly be considered the garden of Northwestern Ohio. This township was of slow growth at first, but since 1858 has rapidly increased in population, and at the election in 1879, one hundred and seventy-six votes were polled. There are two villages in the township — Kieferville, on the line of the old proposed Continental Railroad; and North Creck, laid out in 1879, by William Schafer, on the line of the Toledo, Delphos & Burlington Railroad.

PERRY TOWNSHIP.

This township originally embraced the entire county and was organized in 1828 and called Perry township in honor of Commodore Perry. The township now contains thirty sections, the south tier of sections having been added to Jackson township in 1848. The first settlement made in the county is said to have been made on the Aughaize river, near the mouth of the Blanchard. The precise dates cannot be obtained, but from the recollections of some of the oldest citizens we record the following settlers, heads of families: Robert Wallen, in 1819; David Murphy, Thos. McClish, Silas McClish and Sebastian Shroufe, in 1821. In this year Sebastian Shroufe planted the first nursery in the county, on what is now the Andrews' farm, and from it all the old orchards in this part of the county were started. In 1823 Andrew Craig, — Cavanaw, Daniel Sullivan and William Bowen; in 1825, William Harrell; in 1826, John Pidenour and Dimmit Mackrill; in 1827, William Bishop, Joseph Frazee and Joel Wilcox, Abel Crossley, and perhaps a few others, came about this time.

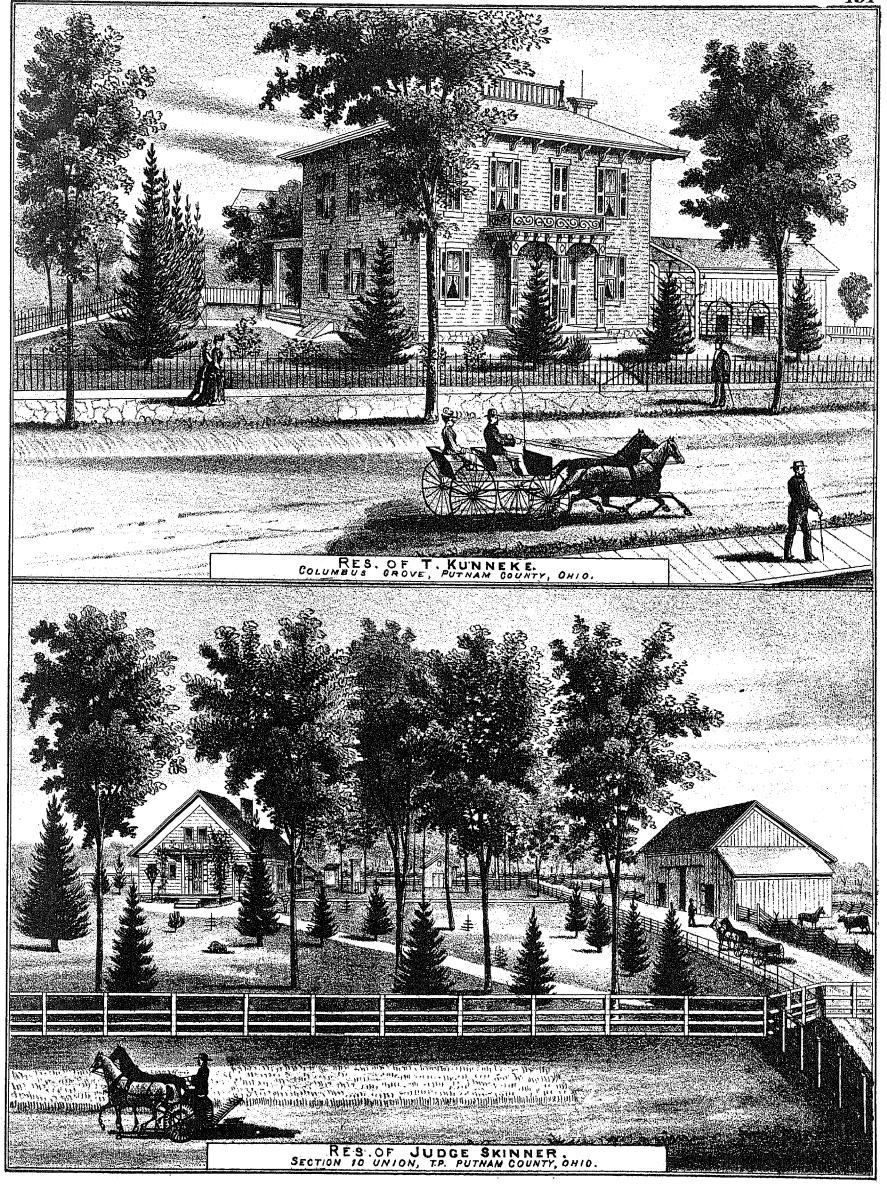

The first election was held in 1828 at the house of Sebastian Shroufe. The officers elected were: Trustees, William Harrell, Abel Crossley and John Ridenour; Clerk, Silas McClish; Treasurer, Joel Wilcox; Supervisor, William Bishop; Justice of the Peace, Sebastian Shroufe; Constable, Dimmit Mackrill.

This township, although the oldest in the county, has improved slower than any other, the early settlements having been made along the rivers, where there is much good bottom lands and now many valuable farms. Franconia was laid out by Amos Kendall, in 1837, and at one time was quite a noted point of trade. Here was the noted "Home in the Wilderness," presented in Howe's History of Ohio. The double log cabin was built by Sebastian Shroufe, and later kept as a tavern by P. B. Holden. The first store in this place was kept by Parlee Carlin. This town is now "deceased." Dupont, on the north side of the river, and on the line of the Toledo, Delphos & Burlington Railroad, is quite a thriving village, and a good point of trade. The first road opened in this township was on the south side of the Aughaize River.

A good story is told of Dimmit Mackrill, who was Road Supervisor in 1832. He thought that his road district embraced the entire county. He mounted his horse and notified all the men that were then living along the Blanchard, from the mouth of the river to the Hancock County line, to be and appear on a certain day to work on the road on the south side of the Aughaize River. Some of the settlers obeyed the summons and went the distance of twelve miles to perform labor on the highways; the others did not appear.

MONROE TOWNSHIP.

THE first settler was Adam Perrine, in 1849; the next was John Grant in 1851. They were followed later by John and Eli Fickle, Hiram Madden, William Moore, D. D. Barnes, James Early, Samuel Birge, and D. D. Murphy. The township was organized and the first election held April 5, 1852. Officers: Trustees—William Moore, John and Eli Fickle; Clerk, James Early; Treasurer, John Grant; Supervisor, Solomon McCullough. Twelve votes were cast. The township was then one road and one school district. The first school was taught by George Krites, in a cabin on Section 5. There are now six school and six road districts. The expenses of the first year were $39; of the last year, $300. Prior to its organization this township was known as North Perry, and attached to Perry township.

GREENSBURG TOWNSHIP.

This township was organized and the first election held in April, 1835. Officers elected were: Trustees, Wm. Bell, Abraham Crow and Joshua Powell: Clerk, Fredric Brower; Treasurer, Nutter Powell; Justice of the Peace, Fredric Brower. The township was named by Henry Wing, who built the first cabin, and occupied it with his family in 1825. He was a representative man of the early pioneers of the Maumee Valley, having been employed in 1814 to guard a boat-load of supplies near the mouth of the Blanchard for the army, and later, 1819 to 1822, was employed by Captain Riley, to assist in the surveys made in Northwestern Ohio. He was killed in 1844 by the falling of a tree, at the time of the opening of the Ottawa and Defiance free turnpike road.

The next settlers were Isaac Owen and John Myers, in 1832; Fredric Brower, Nutter Powell, Levi Grove and John F. Kahle, in 1833—(he was the first foreigner naturalized in the county); Nicholas Prynne, Abraham Crow, Christian Bear and Alex. Berryhill, in 1834; Joshua Powell, Wm Bell, James Crow, Wm. Phillips and John Neill, in 1835.

This township was of slow growth. At the first election eight votes were cast, and for Governor, in 1879, one hundred and ninety-six votes were polled. The south tier of sections were attached to Union Township in 1848. There are now along the Blanchard many valuable bottom farms, and since the era of ditches much of the swamp lands have been drained, and many excellent farms have been developed in this township where a few years ago it was thought the land was worthless. When properly drained this soil has been found to be as productive as any other in the county.

OTTAWA TOWNSHIP.

Ottawa Township, organized the first Monday of March, 1885, held the first election at Michael Row's, April 6, 1885. The first officers were: Trustees—George Agner, William Galbreath, and James Adgate; Treasurer, Michael Row; Clerk, William Sackett; Constable, William Rowman; Supervisors, Michael Row and William Galbreath; Overseers of Poor, Merideth Parrish and Samuel Clark; Fence Viewers, Michael Row and Samuel Runyon; and, on the order of Court for an election, held May 3, 1885, John Cox and William Williams were chosen as the first Justices of the Peace for the township.

The town of Ottawa was laid out by Aughinbaugh and Barnett, in June, 1834, and was the site of the old Indian town of Lower Tawa, named after the tribe of Indians who had a reserve of about twenty-eight sections of land in this township, which they sold to the United States in 1832, and then left for the Indian Territory, beyond the Missouri (now Kansas). Pomeroy's addition to the town was laid out in 1854; Hubbard's, in 1856; Ewing & Son, in 1859; Slauson & Ewing's first addition, in 1866; their second addition in 1868.

The first hewed log-house in Ottawa was built by Michael Row, and the first frame-house by William Williams, the siding being made of clap-boards neatly shaved and jointed. Father John W. Horstman, William Guelker, and John F. Kahle were the first pioneers of Glandorf, in 1833, followed, in 1834, by the Ellerbrocks, Schierlohs, Duling, Moorman, and others, in all nine families.

BLANCHARD TOWNSHIP.

This township embraced originally the townships of Van Buren, Riley, Blanchard and Richland (now in Allen county), and was then known as Blanchard township, Williams county, with the county seat at Fort Defiance, and was organized in the fall of 1833, on the order of court. There were then but eight voters living within the present limits of the township.

The first settler in this then extensive township was Otho W. Crawfis.

sen. (now 81 years old), and his wife, Sarah (Agner) Crawfis (now 66 years old). They came from Fairfield County, Ohio, and settled October 17, 1831, where he now resides. He was the pioneer settler of the east half of Putnam County, and was followed in 1832 by Samuel Hall, Joseph Hickerson and H. M. Crawfis, who built the fourth cabin in the township.

In 1833 there was an addition of the families of Abram Hardin, Hezekiah Bonham, Wm. Prickett, Calvin and Alex. Morehead. The first sermon preached in the east half of this county was at the cabin of Samuel Hall, by the Rev. Elam Day, of the M. E. Church, in the fall of 1832. The first white child born in the township was Martin Hickerson, in 1833.

In 1834 there was a further addition of the families of Charles Guysinger, Andrew McClure, Thomas McClure, Geo. Shoemaker, Joseph Bowen, Samuel Hickerson, Joseph Wade, Henry Pope and Wm. Patrick. The first marriage was Samuel Myers and Margaret Hardin, December 25, 1833; and in the same year occurred the first death, a Miss Killpatrick.

In 1835 other families came, among them George Stewart, John Stewart, George Bacon and Azariah Smith. The town of Gilboa was laid out, and the first grist mill built, by Elisha Stout. in 1837. The first tavern in Gilboa was kept by Benjamin Stewart, the first store by Edward Mercer, and the first frame house in the village was built by Nelson McCallister.

The first election was held at the house of Otho W. Crawfis, sen., and the officers elected were: Trustees: Otho W. Crawfis, sen., Samuel Hall and Abram Hardin; Clerk, Joseph Hickerson; Justice of the Peace, Otho W. Crawfis, sen. Mr. Hickerson carried the returns to Defiance and was sworn in as Clerk, and on his return the other officers were sworn by him. This township was then organized into one road district, with Otho W. Crawfis as supervisor, with but seven or eight men in the four townships to perform labor on the roads. The Findlay and Defiance road was the first opened.

Otho W. Crawfis, sen., says that when he received his commission as Justice of the Peace from Defiance, signed by Governor Lucas, for Blanchard township, Williams county, that he returned it, believing that he then lived in Putnam county. In due time it was returned to him with the official information that his commission was correct.

Owing to the fact that the early records of this township were burned, a fuller sketch of its history could not be obtained.

RILEY TOWNSHIP.

RILEY TOWNSHIP was temporarily organized in 1834, and then embraced what afterwards was Richland Township (now in Allen County). The first election was held at the house of Thomas Gray, in April, 1834. Officers elected were: Trustees—Thomas Gray, Joseph DeFord, and John Stout; Clerk, William Hand; Supervisor, Bildad Hubbard; Justice of the Peace, Thomas Gray; Constable, George Farnum. In April, 1835, the township was permanently organized, and the following officers elected: Trustees—John Stout, Moses Rice, and George Wilson; Clerk, N. H. Bagley; Supervisor, Bildad Hubbard; second Justice of the Peace, J. D. Wamsley; Constable, George Farnum. In 1847, the south tier of sections of this township were attached to Allen County.

The first settler in the township was Thomas Gray, in 1832, followed, in 1833, by John Sigafoose, Adam Stout, John Stout, Bildad Hubbard, Moses Rice, B. F. Dunning. In 1834, George Bushong, Thomas Lake, James Bunn, J. D. Wamsley, William Hand John Hand, Jacob Clover, George Farnum, Myron Rice, Isaiah Cook. W. H. Bagley, Peter Rice, William Thrapp, George Blackburn, George Alkire, Stephen Cortright, and George Wilson; in 1835, Jesse Hall and a few others came. These were known as the English or Yankee settlers.

Of the German Manoese, the first settlers were in 1833—Daniel Nicewander and Dorse Amstutz; in 1834, Christian Suter, Christian Basinger, and Christian Bucher (who died in 1879 at the age of one hundred years and seven months; his wife died in 1835, and was the first death in this settlement); in 1835, Christian Shoemaker, John Shoemaker, John Basinger, Ulric Basinger, John Musser, and Christian Steiner; in 1836, John Diller, Christian Amstutz, Christian Lugabill, John Geiger, John Lugabill, Christian Basinger, and David Staufer. This settlement has gradually increased, and now embraces nearly one-half of the township, and here are some of the best improved farms in the county. Their first preacher was Christian Steiner; Deacon, Christian Basinger; and the first church (hewed log) was built in 1840. Previous to this, services were held in the cabins and barns of the settlers.

The first school was taught in this township by William J. Wilson, in 1836-37, in a house built on what is now the Grismore farm; the next school-house was on Moses Rice's farm, built the same year. The first road located through the township was the Williamstown road; the next was the Findlay and Van Wert road; and, on the authority of N. H. Bagley, who was one of the Viewers, with B. F. Dunning, Surveyor, we relate the following: The order was for the survey of the road east from Adam Turner's, in Pleasant Township, to the county line. Land was cheap and settlers few, and the ridge was the only dry ground. The Viewers started out in the forest, one of them carrying a large cow-bell, and, having determined, as near as they could, the center of the ridge, would leave one of their number with the bell, which he was to ring. The Surveyor would then take the course and steer for the bell. On arriving at the station, the bell-carrier would make another advance in the forest and repeat as before; in this way the best and most crooked road in the county was run.

The town of Columbia (now Pendleton) was laid out by John Stout in 1837. He built his mills in 1835. The first house was built by John Sigafoose, and the first tavern and store was kept by Joseph Patterson. The village now contains about one hundred and fifty inhabitants, and has two churches—Methodist and United Brethren.

PLEASANT TOWNSHIP.

The first settlement in what is now Pleasant Township was made in 1832, and the earliest residents were William Turner, Eckless Ney, McDonald Osborn, Henry Morris, James Porter and Wm. McComb. In November, 1833, John Featheringill came in with his family, a wife and a young babe, getting lodging in an Indian camp until he could erect a cabin. That same year John B. Bogart purchased land, and moved on it in March, 1834. Soon after followed Adam and James Turner.

John B. Bogart and six others, the only voters in the township at the time, organized the township in 1894. The other six were, Wm. Turner, Adam Turner, John Featheringill, Nobam Smith, Abe Fuller and Wm. Casebolt. The public road, leading from Wapakoneta to Perrysburg, was then laid out, but not opened. Five years later the township contained about one hundred inhabitants, and fifteen to twenty voters.

The first births in the township were the twin girls, Martha and Rebecca, of Wm. Turner, in 1833. They both lived to be grown and married. The first death among these settlers was a child, six or eight months old, of McDonald Osborn, which died about December, 1833, and it was the first burial in the grave-yard at Truro Church. A log school-house was built in 1836, half a mile northeast of Columbus Grove, and here the first public school was taught in the winter of 1836-87, by John Wamsley. The postoffice was established in 1844, with Adam Turner as postmaster. The first manufacturing interest established here was an ashery and a clay pottery factory, by a man named Durfee. Soon after this a store of supplies was opened by Sheldon Guthrie. The principal trade was exchange of goods for furs, there being very little money in the country. A good hunting hound was worth $100, and the settlers would eccive from the Government $3 or $4 for a wolf scalp. They depended chiefly on this resource to get money to pay their taxes.

The first gospel sermon in the township was in John B. Bogart's cabin, in 1834, by a young man named Cutler, of the Methodist Episcopal Church. The same year there came a Rev. Mr. Morris, of the Protestant Methodist Church; then the "boy preacher," Michael Long, of the United Brethren Church. Two years later came a Presbyterian minister named Poge or Page, and organized a church of that order. At an early day the Baptists held services at the house of James Turner. The town of Columbus Grove was laid out in the winter of 1842, by Frederick Fruchey. It was incorporated in 1864; with David Jones as Mayor. The railroad was built through the township in 1858.

UNION TOWNSHIP.

THE first settlers (heads of families) were Abram Sarber and John Guffey in 1831, followed in 1832 by Geo. Clevenger and Joseph Clevenger, and in 1833 with an addition of seven families, viz.: Adam Sarber, Jacob Clevenger, Samuel Clevenger, Jenkin Hughs, Wm. Clevenger, Samuel Gander and Daniel Rimer. In 1834 there was a further addition to the township of the families of Moses Lee, Robert McCracken, Isaac McCracken, Wm. Phillips Sheldon Guthrie, Arthur E. Martin and Joseph Miller.

The first sale of lots in Kalida occurred June 24, 1834. Moses Lee bought the first lot and built the first cabin; his son, H. G. Lee (still living), cut the first log. During the same year Sheldon Guthrie built the first frame house, with clapboard siding, which is now standing as a relic of the past. In this building he established the first store in Kalida in the same year.

At this time the township was temporarily organized, the officers being appointed by court, and the township organized into one road district, with John Guffey as supervisor. The temporary officers met Murch 2, 1835, consisting of Moses Lee, Wm. Clevenger and Adam Sarber as Trustees, and Abram Sarber as Clerk. It was ordered that the township be divided into three road districts, and that the electors be notified by advertisement by the Clerk "of the town meeting" for the election of township officers, "as required by law." They also issued orders of $1.50 each for services as Trustees; also an order to Abram Sarber for 75 cents for his services as Clerk for the past year.

April 2, 1885, the electors met at the house of Wm. Phillips and the following officers were elected and sworn in the same day: Trustees, William Clevinger, Adam Sarber and Richard Lee; Clerk, Abram Sarber; Treasurer, Wm. Clevenger; Supervisors, John Guffey, Geo. Clevenger and Johnston Crawford; Overseers of Poor, Moses Lee and Winchton Risley; Fence Viewers, Winchton Risley and F. C. Fitch; Justices of the Peace, Wm. Clevenger and Moses Lee; Constables, James M. Lee and Henry Guffey.

The first tax levied was one mill on the dollar, March 7, 1836, and the expenditures for the year 1836 were $15.40. Receipts from taxes, etc., were $4.40.

On the 10th day of September, 1836, the Trustees met and divided the township into two school districts; District No. 1 being the south part of township, two and a-half miles wide by six miles long; District No. 2, three and a-half miles wide by six miles long.

JACKSON TOWNSHIP.

This township was of slow growth at first, the settlements having been made along the Auglaize River, where there is some excellent bottom land and valuable quarries of limestone, which will at some future day afford the materials for making roads in this and the adjoining townships. The want of good roads is now the principal hindrance to the rapid development of this township. The Canal, the Toledo, Delphos & Burlington Railroad, and River, are the outlets for trade. This township now contains twenty-six sections of land; twenty of these it originally contained, and an addition of six sections from Perry was made in 1848.

The early records being lost, the date of the organization and names of the first officers cannot be obtained. The first Justice of the Peace was Thaddeus Harris; first Constable, William H. Harris. The first family that settled in the township was that of Elias Wallen, in 1822; Rufus Carey, John Horter, in 1823; Thaddeus Harris, in 1825; Thomas Carder, in 1830; Philip, Joseph, and George Comer, Edward Ladd, and John Hedrick, in 1833. Others came later. When drained, the soil of this township is as good as any in the county, and on Leatherwood Creek and the Auglaize are many productive farms.

MONTEREY TOWNSHIP.

This township was formed from the west tier of sections of Jackson township as it was originally, with the addition on the west from Van Wert County of eighteen sections. This was at the time when the new county of Auglaize was made, in 1848. The farms are generally small, and but few large tracts of land are held by non-residents. It is settled principally by Germans. The first settlers in this township were Henry Schroeder and Henry Unland, in 1845, Joseph Gruver in 1846, and in 1847 John Livingston, Jonas Dash, Conrad Henry, Bernard Esch, and Matthias Schroeder in 1849. This township was organized on the order of the Commissioners, and the first election held at the house of Joseph Gruver, January 19, 1850. Eleven votes were polled. Officers elected and qualified were: Trustees, Bernard Esch, Henry Schroeder, and Joseph Gruver; Clerk, Jonas Dash. The board met March 7, 1850, and organized the township into two road and two school districts. District No. 1 constituted the north half, and No. 2 the south half of the township—the school districts being the same as the road districts. The expenses of the township for the first year were $5.25; expenses for 1878, $169.15. At the April election, 1851, a full board of efficers were elected, and the trustees were the same as the year before; Treasurer, B. Esch; Assessor, Henry Schroeder; Supervisors, John Livingston and Matthias Schroeder. Bernard Esch was the first Justice of the Peace, and was elected May 18, 1850. The first Constable was Harvey Pacon, elected in April, 1851. As an evidence of the thrift and rapid growth of this township, we find that at the last election for Governor, October, 1879, two hundred and thirty votes were cast. The town of Ottoville was laid out in 1850 by Father Broedike, of Delphos, and is now a thriving village, with a population of about two hundred and fifty.

JENNINGS TOWNSHIP.

This township as now constituted embraces twenty-eight sections of land. The south half of the original township having been attached to Allen County, there was then added ten sections from Jackson township—and in giving its history we shall consider it as it was originally. The first actual settler who bought land and improved it was Samuel Washburn, who came in 1825 or 1826. He cleared two farms, and sold the first to Isaiah Clawson and the second to William Cochran, in 1827 or 1828. About this time came James Thatcher and William Scott, and perhaps a few others, who settled on the river. The first white child born to actual settlers was Thomas A. Washburn (now of Spencerville, Ohio), August 9, 1828. These were followed by John and James Cochran.

There was a temporary organization of the township in 1832 or 1833. William Cochran was the first Justice of the Peace. The records being lost it is difficult to get the true history of this township, or the date of its permanent organization. In 1833 there were several families, who came from Germany, who bought land and settled; among these were John Disher, Henry Wellman, C. Raabe, Henry Raabe, John Raate, and, in 1834, H. J. Bæhmer, V. D. Emse, Geo. Cavalage, Mrs. —— Cavalage and Godfried Steirns. Others followed later. The returns show that at the fall election in 1834 there were but seventeen voters in the township.

The town of Fort Jennings was laid out by H. J. Beehmer and takes its name, as well as the township, from Colonel Jennings, who was the commandant of the fort—a small stockade, enclosing about one acre of ground, on the west bank of the river, and below the bridge. There was then a fine spring on the river within the enclosure, which was occupied in the war of 1812 as a military post.

On the authority of James Nicolas, sen., of Gomer, the following incidents are related: Colonel Jennings sent a detachment of troops under Captain Wm. D. Jones on a foraging expedition to the Indian towns of Upper and Lower Tawa on the Blanchard. Among the soldiers who came were Knowles Shaw, Aaron Howard, James Howard, Henry and Thomas Montgomery. They came in from the west and crossed the river near the Glandorf bridge. This was in the month of August, 1813 or 1814. They found the towns deserted and feasted on roasting-ears, chickens and fat hogs for about one week, when they burned the Indian towns and destroyed all the growing corn.

SUGAR CREEK TOWNSHIP.

This township originally embraced thirty-six sections of land, and was surveyed in 1820 by James Riley. When Auglaize County was formed, in 1848, the south half of this township was attached to Allen County, and to compensate for the loss, two tiers of sections were added on the north from Union Township, which now contains thirty sections of land. Sugar Creek, from which the township was named, runs north through the center. On the west Hog Creek crosses the township in the same direction. This township, as originally constituted, contained more good land than any other in the county, being well watered. The streams affording a good outlet for drainage, made it a desirable township to settle in. The first settlement was made on Hog Creek, near Gomer, by Robert Martin and Solomon Sprague, in 1828, followed in 1829 by Benjamin Parker and - McCoy; in 1830, William Clevenger, and in the same year the next settlement was made near Vaughnsville by Benjamin, Jacob, Joseph, George, and Samuel Clevenger. In 1831, they built the Clevenger Mill, the first grist mill in the county. The same year John Ensley and Peter Rhodes came, and, in 1832, Rhodes built the first saw mill in the county. In this year came the families of James Ramsey, Selah Bennum, Obed Martin, and Isaac Guffy. In 1833, there was a further addition of the families of Samuel Ramsey, James Nicholas, Thomas Watkins, David Roberts, Jackson Miller, Samuel McMullens, John Tegarden, Joseph Tegarden, and Henry Tegarden; in 1834, William Guffy, John Watkins, Henry Davis, John R. Jones, Richard Richards, David Crabill, and Joseph Ford; and, in 1835, John Deffenbaugh, and perhaps a few others.

This township was temporarily organized in 1832 or 1833, and then embraced what afterwards was Monroe, Pleasant, Union, and Sugar Creek Townships. The first Justice of the Peace was Obed Martin; the second, James Nicholas; first Constable, Samuel Ramsey; Trustees, George Niell, William Patrick, and Jackson Miller; Treasurer, Benjamin Clevenger; Clerk, James Nicholas.

At the election in October, 1834, for Governor, 34 votes were cast, and for Governor in 1879, two hundred and eighty-one votes were cast. Of the early settlers of the township but few are now living. William Guffy, now 73 years old, is living on the west bank of Hog Creek, on the same farm on which he built his first cabin, forty-seven years ago.

The town was named by him, and the proceeds of the sale of lots were donated for the erection of the church. He continued the mission up to the time of his death in 1858. He was succeeded by Father Westerholt, and in 1860 the foundation was laid, 40x80, and completed by his successor, Father Goebbels, in 1862. He was followed in 1863 by Father Abel, who was the first resident priest. In 1865, Father Best took charge. He was succeeded by the present pastor, Father Moeller. The mission commenced with five families, and the congregation numbers now one hundred and fifty families. Address, Dog Creek, Ohio.

GLANDORF CHURCH.—In April, 1833, Rev. Prof. William Horstmann resigned his chair in the Gynasium Carolinum, at Osnabruck, Germany, for the purpose of founding a colony in America. He left Germany, August 28, 1838, accompanied by the following persons: John F. Kahle, Aton Tburg, Christian Strop, Wishmann F. Brodeik, Martin Bockrath, and W. Gulker. After ten weeks tedious voyage and travel, they arrived at Detroit, Leaving his companions there, Father Horstmann, with Mr. Kahle, traveled on foot through the sparsely-settled northwestern part of Ohio, in search of a suitable place for the intended colony. Finally, they selected the present site of Glandorf.

In January, 1848, the colony located on the lands bought by Father Horstmann. The nearest market was seventy miles distant, and the means of travel ox teams. A substitute for a mill, primitive and simple, was invented by means of two stones turned by their own hands. Little log huts were built for their comfort, and among the first was one destined to serve as a church and pastoral residence. On Easter Sunday, March 30, 1834, the first mass was celebrated therein by Father Horstmann. In 1836, the congregation increased by more emigrants, a commencement was made for building a proper church. This building was primitive in style, as was also the furniture. A hollow sycamore formed the pulpit, with a piece cut out for a door. The Indians, with whom the pioneers managed to be on good terms, assisted with willing hands in the building. The church was finished and dedicated in 1837. Soon after a school was established. Father Horstmann was the first teacher, and was afterward followed by lay-teachers. The good Father continued to be a guide to the colonists, encouraging them in their privations and difficulties, and directing them by his wise counsels. He labored among them until 1844, when God called him to his reward. His memory is and will ever be revered in this congregation.

His successor, Rev. George Boehne, was pastor from 1844 to 1848. Owing to the rapid increase of the members of the congregation, he saw the necessity of a larger church to accommodate them, and commenced its erection. This was the third one, a brick building, 90x50 feet. The corner stone was laid in 1846, and in 1848 the church was finished. In building this church the cash cost was reduced to a minimum by an admirable system of gratis labor. Each member had his appointed days when he was expected to come and give his work gratis, and such was the harmony and good will, that all submitted willingly to this arrangement. The church was dedicated in honor of St. John the Baptist, by Rt. Rev. Rappe, in the year 1849. It was a grand day for the brave pioneers, when, after toiling for sixteen years, of untold difficu was now given in charge of the Fathers of the Congregation of the Precious was now given in charge of the Fathers of the Congregation of the Precious Blood.

Although, in the course of time, three now flourishing congregations were formed from the Glandorf congregation, it nevertheless went on steadily increasing to such an extent that the church, built in 1848, was getting uncomfortably small. After much talk on the subject, the erection of a new edifice was undertaken in 1874 by the present pastor, Rector Rev. B. Dickmann, ably assisted by Rev. James Marte, Alphons Laux, and Sebastian Eisenring, whose latter place, on account of sickness, is at present occupied pro tem. by Rev. B. Russ. This was the fourth Catholic Church edifice. In August, 1874, a subscription was taken up for its construction, amounting to $25,000. The foundation stones were quarried and hauled in 1874. In 1875 the foundation was finished. In 1876 the corner stone was laid, and the building put under roof. The tower was finished in 1877, the spire of which was built a second time, the first one having been destroyed by lightning. In 1878 the church was finished inside, plastered, beautifully frescoed and decorated with paintings, and furnished with handsomely stained windows. The edifice is a brick building, with cut stone ornamentation, a slate roof, in pure Gothic style in cruciform, 175x70 feet, and eighty feet in the transept. The tower is two hundred and twenty-five feet high. The cost of the building was $50,000.

The church, admired by all, was dedicated by Rt. Rev. Bishop Gilmour, on the 15th of December, 1878.

The harmony, good will, and free labor given by their fathers in building the church of 1848, were not forgotten by the present members in erecting this beautiful edifice, and they thus reduced the cost of the building at least $10,000. The congregation has now a church which rivals any in the State, one of which they may well feel proud. They have also seven schools in a flourishing condition, and, although some debt is yet resting on the same, there is every reason to believe that in a few years
