HISTORY OF HANCOCK COUNTY, OHIO.

In a work of this compass, and comprehending the scope suggested by its proprietor, it could not be expected that it would embrace full detail. A fair, very ample, and authentic narration of the pioneer history of the county, and a comprehensive exhibit of its material resources, gathered from the latest official statistics, are, however, given. This presentation of the early history of the county, commencing with the first efforts to plant civilization in the midst of a wilderness crowded with Indians and wild beasts, and tracing it down to the present date, exhibiting the resources as they now exist, will constitute matter of great value to the present generation, and of yet greater worth to the ones that will succeed this.

Hancock County, with many others of Northwestern Ohio, was formed by the legislative enactment of April 1, 1820, and named from John Hancock, first President of the Revolutionary Congress. The organization of the county was made in April, 1828 - the only voting place in the county being Findlay, and seventy-two being the whole number of votes cast.

When the second war with Great Britain occurred, commencing in the Summer of 1812, the county was without a resident white inhabitant. French (and probably English) Indian traders, however, had doubtless many years previously traversed the territory. Among these was a fugitive and wandering Frenchman, from whom Blanchard's Fork derives its name. An event of importance of which we have historical record, was the establishment of Fort Finley during the first year of the War of 1812-15; and its origin is given officially in the American State Papers, as quoted below:

"From Urbana the army, on the 16th of June, 1812, moved, on its march towards the foot of the Maumee Rapids, as far as King's Creek, and from this point opened a road as far as the Scioto, where they built two blockhouses, which they called Fort McArthur, in honor of the officer whose regiment had opened the road. To this fort the whole army came on the 19th, and on the 21st Colonel Finley was ordered to open the road as far as Blanchard's Fork, whither the army, excepting a gnard left at Fort McArthur, again followed on the 22d. Here, amid rain and mud, another block-house was erected, which was called Fort Necessity. From this point the army soon after moved to another point on Blanchard's Fork, where Colonel Finley had built a block-house, which was called in honor of that officer." in honor of that officer."

The subjoined letter from the gallant Major William Oliver, whose heroism and sagacity were conspicuous throughout the War of 1812-15, was first published, together with other valuable correspondence, in Knapp's

History of the Maumee Valley:

"FORT FINLEY, April 29, 1813.

" To His Excellency Governor Meigs:

"To His Excellency Governor Meigs:

"Sir: You will observe the seal of His Excellency General Harrison has been broken. This I did to take a copy and transmit Governor Shelby, pursuant to directions from General Harrison on that subject at the moment I was setting off. General Harrison has not written you at such length as he would, could he have confidently calculated on getting through safe.

"Yesterday the British let loose a part of their savage allies from the opposite shore, whilst the former were concerting plans below. There is little doubt the enemy intends erecting batteries on the opposite shore. No force can reduce the fort. All are in fine spirits, anxiously awaiting a share of the glory to be acquired over the British and their savage allies; though one thing is certain, whilst their forces are so far superior, they cannot be driven from the opposite shore. Captain Hamilton, who was detached with a discovering party, estimated their forces at three thousand—independent of the Indians lurking in the neighborhood.

"I am now in pursuit of General Clay, and expect to come up with him to-day. Yesterday's mail had been opened before it arrived at the Rapids—from what cause to the General unknown; in consequence of which he directed that the earliest possible inquiry be made to ascertain the source; that, if treason be on foot, it may be suppressed in the bud.

"With sentiments of highest respect, I have the honor to be your obedient servant, WILLIAM OLIVER."

to be your obedient servant,

Although Hancock County was formed by the act of 1820, it was attached to Wood County for civil purposes, and not organized, as before stated, until April, 1828. At a special session of the Commissioners of Wood County, held in Perrysburg, March 19, 1823, it was ordered "that so much of the Township of Waynesfield as is included in the unorganized County of Hancock be set off and organized into a township by the name of Findlay, and that the election for township officers be held on the first day of July, A.D. 1823, at the house of Wilson Vance, in the said township."

Thus, in 1823, more than the whole surface now comprehending the boundaries of Hancock, was deemed by the Commissioners of Wood County to possess a population sufficient to be organized as a distinct township, under the name of Findlay. Prior to this, Hancock was in the Township of Waynesfield, which included, also, originally, all the present Counties of Wood, Lucas, Henry, Putnam, Fulton, Williams, Defiance, and Paulding; and firstly, Maumee City, and then Perrysburg, held not only the county seat of this immense extent of country, but at one or the other of those places both county and township business was transacted. There were, however, few law suits in those days, and little use for courts or lawyers.

Of all the counties of the Northwest formed by the General Assembly in 1820, and embracing about onefourth of the area of the whole state, only two counties-Sandusky and Wood - were organized that year. The others were attached to one or the other of these for judicial purposes. The jurisdiction of Wood County extended from Lake Eric west to the Indiana, and north to the Michigan State line, and included the counties above named.

The early records of Hancock County were very imperfect, and little of value can be derived from them. The first term of the Court of Common Pleas was held November, 1829, Ebenezer Lane, President, and Abraham Huff, Robert McKinnis, and Ebenezer Wilson, Associate Judges. Only one case appears upon the docket. The record of the first session of the Commissioners bears date March 2, 1829. At this time John Long, Charles Mc-Kinnis, and John P. Hambelton, appear to have been acting Commissioners, and the following persons filling other county offices: Assessor, Don Alonzo Hamblin; Auditor, William Hackney; Surveyor, William Taylor. The names of the other county officers is not matter of record. The first white settler in the county was a single man by the name of Thorp, who was at Findlay during the war; and after its close, with several of the garrison (whose garrison duty was of later date), engaged in the Indian trade.

Edwin F. Jones, now of Chillicothe, Illinois, communicated to the Findlay Jeffersonian, in 1872, some reminiscences of Hancock County, from which the following is gathered:

Mr. Jones visited the county in May, 1827, was a guest at the house of Wm. Hackney, and afterwards of John P. Hambelton. In company with Mr. and Mrs. Hambelton, they made a visit to the fort, one and a-half miles below, crossing Lye and Eagle Creeks on trees and tops fallen from either side. He was introduced to Wilson Vance, whom he describes as "the head center, and a gentleman in deed and truth, and chief agent of the town proprietors.' In the town Mr. J. also met John C. Wickham (school teacher), Joseph and Wm. DeWitt, and Squire Carlin. Mr. Jones adds:

"Sometime in 1828 Wm. Taylor made his appearance, and gave Mr. Riley the job of building him a house, 16 or 18 by 32 feet; Mr. Riley furnishing the materials and finishing it off in different compartments for about $330. Sometime after Mr. Taylor moved on, with his amiable wife, Margaret. Mrs. Taylor was a native of Bedford County, Pennsylvania. They were a great accession to Finlay, and were competent to adorn the best society in Washington City. Mr. Taylor brought on about $800 worth of dry goods and groceries, which he put up in one end of his house. In the Fall of 1826, Mr. Joshua Powell, and wife and sons, Eli and Nutter, and one daughter, settled on a donation lot, and built a hewed log house back in the brush. They were an honest, and industrious family. In October of that year we had a great accession to Findlay in the arrival among us of Dr. Bass Rawson, one of God's noblemen, and his kind lady and a little daughter Hattie. They took up their abode in Mr. Powell's house.

"In 1829 or 1830, we were favored with another accession of Robert L. Strother, with his mother and sister, Malinda Strother, afterwards the wife of Joseph C. Shan-

At an early day the facilities for transportation were of a limited character; excepting the rivers which were navigated by pirogues, there was but one really passable route; and this connected Bellefontaine and Perrysburg, and was generally known as "Hull's trace," having been the route he pursued in his march to Detroit. By-paths, blazed on trees through the woods, were about the only guarantees that offered safety in passing through the dark forest from cabin to cabin.

Hon. Wm. Mungen contributes the following:

"For a long time what goods were purchased and brought came via the Maumee, Auglaise and Blanchard, to Findlay, from Perrysburg, the head of navigation on the Maumee. The furs and such articles of sale and commerce as the new country furnished, went there by the same route. The vessels used in the transportation of these articles were pirogues, or the bodies of large trees hollowed out by the ax and by fire."

Referring to the old modes of travel, Judge David Higgins, who commenced his judicial service in 1830, in a circuit then embracing not only Northwestern Ohio, but an extensive territory outside, in a letter to the writer of this, dated "Washington, April 14, 1872," thus refers to an instance in his own experience:

"You inquire about our voyage in the good pirogue 'Jurisprudence.' We had been attending court at Findlay. Our circuit route from that town was first to Defiance, and from there to Perrysburg. A countryman agreed to take our horses directly through the Black Swamp to Perrysburg, and we purchased a pirogue, and taking with us our saddles, bridles, and baggage, proposed to descend Blanchard's Fork and the Auglaise Rivers to Defiance, and then to Perrysburg. Our company consisted of Rodolphus Dickinson, John C. Spink, Count Coffinberry, myself, and a countryman, whose name pany consisted of Rodolphus Dickinson, John C. Spink, Count Coffinberry, myself, and a countryman, whose name I forget. The voyage was a dismal one to Defiance, through an unsettled wilderness of some sixty miles. Its loneliness was only broken by the intervening Indian settlements at Ottawa Village, where we were hailed and cheered as lustily by the 'Tawa Indians, as would be a foreign war ship in the port of New York. From Defiance we descended the Maumee to Perrysburg, where we found all well. In descending the Maumee, we came near running into the rapids, where we should probably have running into the rapids, where we should probably have been swamped, had we not been hailed from the shore, and warned of our danger."—Knapp's History of Maumee Valley, pp. 279, 280.

After the country had become sufficiently cultivated to raise a surplus, the means of transportation were so limited and expensive that little or no profit could be realized in forwarding farm productions to market. There was small encouragement offered for raising more than sufficient for the family wants, and to sustain domestic animals and fowls. The first and only reliable routes were the rivers. A fair market at Findlay dates from the opening of the Branch Railroad in 1850 - 51, affording a connection with the Mad River Railroad at Carey. quently, in 1861, the Lake Erie and Louisville Railroad was completed from Fremont to Findlay, securing competition in freights, and otherwise materially benefiting the town. Dr. L. Q. Rawson, of Fremont, Charles W Foster, of Fostoria, Judge Cory and Squire Carlin, of Findley, were among the chief capitalists whose enterprise secured the undertaking and completion of that portion of the road between Fremont and Findlay. It is probable, however, that the real originator of the project was Henry Brown, Esq., at the time editor of the Findlay Courier, and who first called public attention to the importance and practicability of the scheme through the columns of his paper. This important enterprise, therefore, like most others of its character, was first agitated by that agency which will never receive its just reward, and poorly appreciated by the mass of the community - the newspaper press.

PIONEERS OF HANCOCK COUNTY.

Within the year the old settlers organized the "Hancock Pioneer and Historical Association." The date of its organization stands recorded July 4, 1874, and consists of the following officers: Squire Carlin, President; Peter George, Aller Wisely, James Robinsom, Richard Dukes, James Hartman and Jonathan Parker, Vice Presidents: D. B. Beardsley, Corresponding and Recording Secretary; Treasurer, Levi Taylor.

The association is yet new, but through the untiring efforts of Mr. Beardsley, promises good results in the future.

Names of many subscribers to this volume appear in their appropriate places; but a full list, so far as their names could be obtained, of those living and dead, follow: LIST OF OLD SETTLERS, AND DATES OF THEIR ARRIVAL.

18 -This year Wilson Vance and family removed to Findlay-his family then being the seventh established in the county. Mr. Vance was one of the fathers of Findlay -appearing first as representative, under a power of attorney, of the one-fifth interest of his brother, Joseph Vance.

1822-John P. Hambelton, and Robert McKinnis, and his sons Charles, Philip, James and John, and son-in-law Jacob Poe, removed to the county this year.

1825—George Shaw removed from Stark County, Ohio. and settled on Section 16, in Blanchard Township, in November of this year, and afterwards purchased of John Hunter, forty-five acres outside, but adjoining the school land upon which he had located, and when the school section came into market, he became a purchaser of two hundred and forty acres. Mr. Shaw had a family consisting of nine children when he came to the county, of whom Hon. John Shaw, of Van Wert; Louis Shaw, of Illinois; Mrs. Mary Barr, of Findlay; and Mrs. Elizabeth I. Brown, of Ottawa, are now living.

1827-On the Blanchard, below Findlay, this year, were John Fishel and his sons, Michael and John, and son-in-law, John Magee; and prior to 1830, Peter and Joseph George, also were George Shaw, and William Downing, John Richards and Lewis Duke. Near the above date, John Burns, who has been dead many years, settled upon a tract of land two and one-half miles above Findlay, on the Blanchard.

1828-This year Aquilla Gilbert became a resident of the county.

1825 to 1830 - At Findlay and neighborhood, were William Taylor, Dr. Bass Rawson, James B. Thomas, David Eghert, Squire Carlin, and Abram Huff.

1830 to 1835 - During this period the following named persons commenced settlements in the county: William Burns, Charles Thomas, William Gillespie, William Marvin. Alden Wisely, Leonard Baumgartner, Jacob Baker. John Moore, John Graham, William Roller, Cornelius Poulson, John Shoemaker, Moses McAnelly, John Huff, Aaron Swihart, George Hollenback, William S. Birkhead, John Bergman, Philip Kraemer, Charles Thomas, John Burman, John Franks, Vallentine Karns, Peter Wyant, John Edgington, and (dates being mostly uncertain,) Josiah Elder George Fahl, Godfrey Wolford, Jacob Shaffer, John Lafferty, John Rose, Nothaniel Miller, Jacob Shoemaker, Michael Misamore, Phala Brawn, Joseph Twining, Charles Van Horn, Andrew Moschert, Urigh Eglora Daniel Alsmola Stephen Lee, John Brech, Mordecai Hammond, John and Henry Orwick, Henry Treece. Robert Russell, John Vanatta, John D. and Henry Bishop. Gomer Walters, John Scothorn, Elijah Woodruff, Joshua Hartman, Robert Crawford, A. Keel, G. W. McClelland, William Cameron, William W. Hughes, Henry Oman, Nathaniel Stout, Simson Crist, Isaac Smith and Moses Elza.

In 1830, Coonrad Lyon, then a young and unmarried man, who had previously resided in Franklin County, removed to Eagle Township, purchased land, and opened a farm, upon part of which he now resides. On the 22d of September, 1831, he married Miss Catharine Cross, of Fairfield County; and on the 26th of November, having been twenty-six days on the road, commenced life upon his wilderness farm in Eagle Township. Mr. Lyon is now the only survivor of those who were residents when he removed to the township.

1830 to 1835 - Ebenezer Willson, William T. Hill (whose son, John L. Hill, was late Auditor of Hancock County,) William and John Moffit, William Birkhead, Thomas Hobbs, Jacob Bushong, Daniel Cusack, Isaac Comer, John Povenmire, John Byall, James Jones, John Fletcher, John Lytle, George Chase, Samuel Huntington, John Kemphir, John Stump, John Fenstermaker, David Thompson (September 11, 1833), Jacob Huffman (father of Samuel B., probate judge of Hancock County, October, 1832,) Price Blackford (father of Aaron Blackford, Esq.,) a hatter by trade, who began his residence in Findlay, in 1834, and during the early years of his business life had personal acquaintance with every man then in the county — the settlers being so limited in number.

And also between 1835 and 1840 appeared the following: James Jones, Absalom Hall, John Price, Thomas Cook, Solomon Lee, Richard and William Watson, Johnson and Robert Bonham, Jacob Rosenburg, who established the Hancock County Farmer and Findlay Courier, William Fountain, Robert L., Isaac, and John Strother, John Van Eman, William Ebright, Van Burton, Thomas Cook, Moses Predmore, Nathan Franks, Thomas and John Smeltzer, B. McClish, Enos Haddox, A. C. Worden, Daniel Fox, Solomon Voglesong, John Flick, John Kemphir, Samuel Huntington, John Stump and John Fenstermaker.

And subsequent to 1840 the following persons became residents: Robert Sherrard, James, John, and Amos Cooper: James Barr, Alfred, and Isaac N. Davis; John and Joseph Radabaugh; Robert Barnhill, Emanuel Longbrake, Adam Kramer, John Bergman, John Schoonover, Henry Kempf, Charles Henderson, Archibald Wilson, H. B. Thomas, Silas Leonard, Christopher and James Wiseman: Peter Glothart, Mordecai Haddox, Elihu Dennison. Frederick Duduit, Abraham W. Beales, Abraham Schoonover, Joshua Smith, Rev. George Van Eman, Joseph Johnson, Daniel Fairchild, Joseph Lash, Grafton Baker, John P. Ebersole, William Fox, Jacob Hissong, Samuel Heller, Thomas Kelley, Caleb Roller, Francis Redfern, Sr., Paul Matthias, Thomas Watkins, James McConnell and Samuel Morehead. And also at an early date came C. W. O'Neal, John Morrison, James M. and Charles Coffinberry, Parlee Carlin, M. C. Whiteley, Abel F. Parker, Robert Boyard, Jacob Ewing, John Fairchild, Phineas Mapes, George Downing, Christian Barnd (and his sons, John, Abney, Jacob, Elijah, and Gamaliel), Benjamin Huber, Dr. Jacob Carr, Jacob Crowley, and William Gassman.

John Mungen, and Margaret, his wife, removed from Carroll to Hancock County in 1842. At that date the sons and daughters consisted of William, Marietta, Robert, Oliver, Martha, Eliza, John, and Mary, John Mungen, aged ninety-two, August 18, 1874, and his wife, four and a-half years younger, are both living. The father of Mrs. Wm. Mungen was Samuel Bowman, the second settler in Jackson Township, Wood County, directly north of Phensun Township, Hanenek Const., or place he comes at in 1804.

THE FIRST MAIL CARRIER.

Joseph Gordon was the first person who carried the United States mails through Hancock County, commencing his service in 1820, and terminating it in 1840. In a notice of Mr. Gordon, published in the Findlay Courier January 23, 1847, Hon. Wm. Mungen, who was then editor of that paper, said:

"Few, indeed, have constitutions sufficiently strong to endure the labor he performed for such a period of time. To think of carrying a weekly mail uinety miles through a wilderness, under the scorehing rays of a summer's sun - through the chilling winds and rains of winter - and that, too, for a mere pittance, is enough to make a person shudder. It is to such men as Mr. G., to our hardy pioneers, who were ready to encounter all toils and privations, that Ohio owes her present state of advancement and prosperity. For such men we cannot but cherish sentiments of respect.

'Joseph Gordon was born in Aleghany County, Pennsylvania, on the 29th day of January, A.D. 1784. In the year 1801, when but seventeen years old, he commenced carrying the mail, on horse-back, from Russellville, Kentucky, via Bowling Green, to Glasgow, a distance of eighty-five miles, once in two weeks, for which he received a compensation of twelve dollars per month. In 1802 he took a contract to carry the mail from Shelbyville, Kentucky, to Nashville, Tennessee. In consequence of the route heing changed, he carried this mail only two months. From that time till October, 1804, he carried it from Shelbyville to Russellville, Kentucky. At the date last mentioned, he commenced carrying the mail on horseback from Wheeling, Virginia, to George Reymer's, in this state, semi-weekly, a distance of fifty miles, with a led horse, and a heavy mail on each. In 1805 and 1806, until the stages commenced running, he carried it from Wheeling, Virginia, through St. Clairsville, Zanesville and New Lancaster, to Chillicothe. In February, 1820, he commenced his horse-back mail service over the route from Bellefontaine, Logan County, to Perrysburg, Wood County, a distance of eighty-one miles, through a wilderness, there being but one family residing in Hardin County, and but one post-office on the route, and that at Findlay. Mr. Gordon was the only contractor on this route until December 31, 1839. Since that time he has carried the mail from Bellefontaine to this place, a distance of fifty-five miles."

Mr. Gordon built the first house in Bellefontaineoriginally a log structure, the wooden walls of which were afterwards covered with siding, and is said to be yet standing on the corner of Chillicothe and Main Streets. He is represented by all who knew him personally as a trustworthy and honest man; and it is a shame to write it that he was suffered to pass the evening of his days in the Logan County Infirmary.

PIONEER NOTES.

The Winter of 1842-43 - Reminiscences of a horse-back mail carrier .- In the early part of the Winter of 1842-43, a snow of extraordinary depth covered the whole surface of Northwestern Ohio, and remained upon the ground without being affected by a temperature that would melt, or rains that would remove it, during a period exceeding three months. The herbiage and mast, upon which wild and domestic animals and fowls had ordinarly subsisted during the winter months, was covered by the deep snow. The vigor of that Winter had no example in severity; or, at least, the oldest white inhabitant of the country had never passed through one so extremely inhospitable. Many farmers of Hancock and other wilderness counties of the Maumee Valley fell short of the roughest kind of food necessary to maintain the lives of their domestic stock, and many beasts perished for want of sustenance. In some instances the dire alternative appeared to have been forced of a choice of withholding from the family the food necessary to support life, or to permit the beasts to perish. The dread issue was between human and brute life. Herbivorous animals that survived the dismal winter were mostly got through on what was known as "browse" - that is, the buds and twigs of trees. This being about their only food, the keen instincts of cattle would detect the sound of the woodman's ax, which sound they would follow, and casting their wistful looks towards the tender branches of the tree that was being cut, would eagerly watch the moment of its fall, and crowding around while the ax was in motion, they would place themselves in imminent danger of being crushed by the falling tree, and it required much effort and vigilance to protect them against this danger. The wolf over its prey could scarcely evince a more ravenous disposition than these cattle in their greed of the "browse"of food that would "fill up," though generally it possessed but very little nourishment.

During the Winter mentioned the writer was a resident of Kalida, and had occasion to visit Van Wert. There was a weekly mail transported on horse-back, and the contractor, "Commodore" Wm. Phillips, offered me the use of his horse and saddle if I would carry the mail; which offer was accepted, and being duly sworn as United States mail carrier, I started out on the regular mail day for Van Wert. Two post-offices -- both on the Auglaise —one at Fort Jennings, and the other several miles above, were the only intermediate offices on the route. Leaving the river, it was an almost unbroken wilderness to Van Wert - no part of the road being fully cut out, and not a rod of it ditched. There was one space of eight miles between cabins, and embraced in this dreary tract is now the flourishing and busy town of Delphos.

The snow-prints bore evidence that the traveler had been either on foot or on horse-back—no marks of sleigh or other vehicle being visible. Famishing deer could be seen from the snow-path, which could have been overtaken, and readily dispatched with a club. Several deer and wild turkeys that had perished, were also within sight.

In one "clearing," about six or seven miles east of Van Wert, in the rail-fence corners, hogs had crowded to procure shelter and warmth. Other hogs, dictated by the same instincts of securing protection against the merciless wintry blasts, would overtop these, and then others over these, until the last layer nearly reached the fence top ;—all those below the upper ones being dead, and the topmost exhibiting faint signs of life. Several fence-corners were thus occupied by these poor creatures. Most of the swine, probably, belonged to the wild race of hogs that were found abundant in the forest, by the English speaking settlers—(The French having been the first Europeans who commenced settlement in the Maumee Valley in 1680.)

I would add, although not exactly germane to the subject, that, on my outward trip, the only traveler I encountered was a man on horse-back from Indiana, who informed me that he was on his way to Lima, to purchase some coffee, and a few yards of muslin and Kentucky jeans at the store of a Mr. King, merchant, who had removed from Xenia in about 1839 or 1840, and who, by means of judicious advertising, and placing his staple goods at low figures, and placing his staple goods at low figures, and selling for cash only, had attracted to that town the trade from an immense area of country, and accomplished more than any other business man in his time in the Maumee Valley, to abolish the almost unlimited credit system that had generally prevailed throughout all the towns. This man, on his way to King's, was the only one, either on my inward or outward trip, I remember to have met.

These are some of my recollections of that winter of terror to all animal life in the then wilderness region of the Northwest.

And now we have concluded the list of the oldest settlers, dead and living, of Hancock County, except the names given below, classified by townships, and of those who are subscribers to this work. It is melancholy to look over the muster roll and discover how few survive.

PROGRESS IN WEALTH.

The foregoing tables having illustrated the growth of Hancock County in population, it is proper now to measure its advance in wealth. Resort has been had to the tax duplicates to accomplish this purpose.

It is a matter of regret that the reports of the State Board of Agriculture are not readily at hand, and also that in the Auditor's office of Hancock County, prior to 1869, duplicate copies of the reports of agricultural productions as returned by the assessors of the several town ships, and by the Auditor transmitted to Columbus, ha not been retained in the home office, so that a comparativ statement of agricultural productions, corresponding with the years of population and taxable wealth, could b given; but it is only from 1869, when the first Count Auditor's term of John L. Hill, Esq., commenced, that duplicate copies have been retained at the county office Commencing with the report of that year, the followin valuable statistics are gathered, embracing only the prin said that those of Hancock County are equal to the best of any county in Northwestern Ohio. Many years ago, when Emery D. Potter was presiding judge of the large Northwest Judicial Circuit, and when most of the surface of the county was submerged by water at least one-half the year, he often predicted that Hancock County was to become the richest agricultural county in the state. It will be noticed by the census returns given above that forty-four years ago the county could scarcely be regarded as having entered upon its career of growth. The 813 settlers in 1830, and the re-enforcements to this small population made during a period of many years afterwards, were subsisted, to a large extent, by the game that abounded in the forests—the animals being killed chiefly for their furs and skins. The early white inhabitants were as far removed from the habits of a pastoral people as the Indians themselves. To open a farm of a given number of acres, and prepare it for cultivation, required great labor and time-in this heavily-timbered region, from

AGRICULTURAL RESOURCES OF HANCOCK COUNTY.

With regard to its agricultural capabilities, it may be twelve to fifteen years being required to exterminate the stumps and roots, and render the soil pleasant and profitable for purposes of tillage. The hardships and discouragements endured by the pioneers will never be known to the existing generation, for the reason that they cannot be adequately described. At first, the small amount of breadstuffs used were imported from the "settlement;" and when, at length, by severe toil and sacrifice, a little "opening" had been made in the dense forest sufficient to introduce the sun's rays to the surface of the earth, and thus coax a little growth of precious corn for the subsistence of the family, there were no mills to convert it into use for bread. It will be proper to remark here that wheat was not a staple crop in pioneer times. The flour sometimes made of the first grown productions of that cereal, as in Eastern and Central Ohio, when the soil was first used for wheat-growing, the mill product would make bread tempting to the eye and palate,—but whether man or beast or fowl, partook of it, the result within half an hour would be painful illness. This grain was known as "sick wheat." Therefore, the early settlers of Northwestern Ohio, generally directed their attention to the cultivation of corn as their bread staple; there being no water or horse mills in the country with which communication could be had, without the consumption of vast time and labor, domestic mills were improvised-and nearly every cabin has its own hominy block and rude stone mill. The settlers, though, had some compensation for the scarcity of flour, fruit, etc., in the abundant game which filled the forests, swarmed in the air, and in the fish which, in seasons of floods, would crowd the smallest tributaries of the rivers.

JACOB HOY came from Fairfield County, Ohio, in the year 1852. He has three brothers living in the county. The farm on which he now lives was bought by him in the year 1855, two years from which time he had settled upon it. It was an unimproved tract at the time of its purchase, but is now under a good state of cultivation.

T. Myres came to Jackson Township in April, 1855, and settled upon the farm where he now lives; it was then an unbroken forest. They had wiew granted, but the road was not laid out until the following Summer. Very few settless were living in the vicinity at this time. He has now a farm of 240 acres, 130 of which is under a good state of cultivation.

T. Myres came to Jackson Township in April, 1855, and settled upon the farm h with Wm. Ebright and his son Philip, starting early in the morning, in a sleigh or "jumper," and with axes cutting a roadway, and reaching the house of a Mr. Myers, within about a mile of Findlay, where, nightfall arresting their further progress, they remained until morning, the ground in front of the fire being their lodging place, there being no floor in the cabin. This place is now known as the Crouse Farm. In 1833, Henry and his brother, Jacob, went to Fremont with a load of wheat, drawn by three yoke of oxen, and owing to the bad condition or the roads were six days in making the trip. It was the custom then of the farmers in his neighborhood, to go to Fremont (or Lover Sandusky, as then known) to lay in their winter supply of salt, leather, etc. The first winter after settling in Jackson Township, Mr. C. went about a mile from home to girdle some timber. He worked until sundown and started for home; but there being no blazed trees through the woods to guide him, he hecame bewildered, and lost his way, striking the river about three miles from home, and when he reached it he was so badly scared he could searcely determine whether the water run up hill or down. There was hardly an old settler who had not, at some time in his experience, become "lost in the woods."

Edwin.

An ox-team transported the family and their household goods to what was then known in the eastern states as "the far West." Mr. Edwin Boutwell was quite young, and says that the family had little thought of the hardships that awaited them in their wilderness home. He adds that his long rifle, powder and bullet pouch were always at hand, and companions in the cabin or abroad. He was at home in the wilderness, day or night, having no fear of the howl of the wolf or the whoop of the Indian. "But we were very poor, and tolied severely to clear the heavy timber from a little ground upon which to raise small crops of corn and buckwheat. Deer, wild turkey, and coon were abundant, so that we never wanted for meat.

In November, 1838, (continues Mr. Edwin Boutwell,) I started with an ox-team, laden with wheat, for Lower Sandusky, to exchange for salt, leather and necessaries for those who dwelt in our cabin. During one night, while in camp in the woods, there came up a blinding snow-storm, and I suffered terribly, being nearly barefoot. The t-ip to the Lower Sandusky market and return consumed a week; and I now, in 1874, find myself with my wife and children, comfortably situated upon a large farm in Orange Township."

JACOS THOMAS came into this county in October, 1831, from Tyler County, Virginia (now West Virginia); was one of the twelve present and accessary for the purpose of organizing the present Township of Pleasant, taking all the "population" to carry out the statute in such case made and provided. When milling time came the neighbors held a meeting for the purpose of contributing each his share of corn to send with one of the neighbors to mill in Richland County, Ohio, for the purpose of grindling; and upon his return home, each claimed his sack of comment, less the toll taken by the miller. The wagons were made by "hand," that is, wheels sawed off of the trees of the forest, called in that day trucks. Coffee was purchased with gonseng root and coon-skins, that being the circulating medium in a good measure in those days. When, or rather before, taxpaying time came, the early settlers wended their way towards the Mannee, where the State Canal was in progress of erection, go to work and earn a few dollins in money to pay taxes with, as ginseng and coon-skins were not a legal tender for purposes of that kind. The roads were mud piles, where there were any; sometimes a road would have to be cut around in order to pass a bad place. Mr. Thomas presented the first petition to the County Commissioners for a county road in this township, running cast and west (now known as the Sand Kolge Road), about thirty-nine years ago, and was successful in having it established. As stated before, the people of each and every ingiphorhood, when they wanted a road, would meet together and track out a road in what they thought a bee line, until they struck an opening, and then changed their course until they got around it, when again they kept on their course until they got around it, when again they kept on their course until they got around it, when again they kept on their course
