HISTORY OF BROWN COUNTY, OHIO.

THE claims of the different European monarchs to large portions of the Western Continent were based upon the first discoveries made by their subjects. The territory now comprised within the limits of Ohio was formerly a part of that vast region claimed by France, and known under the name of Louisiana. In the year 1748, a company of Frenchmen, calling themselves the "Ohio Company," established a few fur trading posts along the Maumee, although the title to the land of the State was yet unsettled between them and the English. In 1749, the English built a trading house on the Great Miami, at a place called Lorin's Store. Christopher Giot, an agent of this company appointed to examine Western lands, also made a visit to this river during the same year, and called on the Twigtrees tribes.

The French, hearing of the English settlers among these tribes, in 1752 sent a force to rout them, in which transaction the first white blood was shed in Ohio. The tribes of the Shawnees and Delawares being hostile, Col. Boquet, in 1764, marched from Fort Pitt, Pennsylvania, into the heart of the State, and by prudence and skill effected an honorable treaty with the savages. The next war with the Indians, in 1774, is commonly called Lord Dunmore's war. A severe battle was fought at Wapatomico, above Zanesville, on the Muskingum, and one at Point Pleasant, on the Ohio, which ended the war. In 1779, an expedition was planned against the native Shawnees, and their village, Chillicothe, on the Little Miami, near the site of Xenia, burned. The "Coshocton Campaign" was an unimportant demonstration on the Muskingum, in 1780. There were several other invasions of unimportance about this time. In 1786 that of Col. Logan, Edwards in 1787, and Todd in 1789.

Moravian missionaries were in Ohio as early as 1762. Ninety-four of the Moravian Indians were murdered within the limits of Tuscarawas County, in 1782, by a party of Americans under Col. Williamson. By an Act of Parliament, in 1774, all this territory, known as the "Northwestern Territory," was made a part of the province of Quebec. In 1783, the claims of England to the Northwestern Territory were assigned to the United States. The first purchase of land and settlement in Ohio of a permanent character was in 1788, at Marietta. Previous to this there had been an attempt for settlement at the mouth of the Scioto, by four families from Pennsylvania; but difficulties with the Indians defeated their enterprise. The same year that Marietta was settled, Congress appointed Gen. St. Clair governor of the territory. The second settlement in the State was at the mouth of Little Miami, five miles above Cincinnati. A third settlement was made on the celebrated French grant, at Gallipolis, early in 1792. The Cincinnati reservation along the Cuyahoga, the Connecticut reservation along the Cuyahoga, were partially settled in the year 1800 by about one thousand inhabitants. General Harmer's unsuccessful expedition against the Indians, undertaken from Fort Washington, now in the limits of Cincinnati, occurred in the year 1790. This was followed by St. Clair's still more disastrous defeat in 1791. Gen. Wayne, in 1794, wiped out these disgraceful defeats, by a successful attack upon the Indians at the Rapids of the Maumee. This victory was speedily followed by the peace honorable to the whites. July the 27th, 1788, Washington County was formed; this being the first county organized within the limits of Ohio. Hamilton was the second county established in the Northwest Territory, organized January 2d, 1790, by proclamation of Gov. St. Clair. Wayne County was established Aug. 25, 1796, being the third county organized in the territory. In 1797 Adams County was organized by proclamation of Gov. St. Clair, and covered a large tract of country, including that of which Clermont and Brown are now composed. December 9th, 1800, Clermont County was organized, which with Adams embraced all the territory now within the limits of Brown, except a small portion in the northeast corner, taken from Highland County.

The first meeting of the territorial legislature was on the 24th of September, 1799. Number of acts passed, thirty-seven. The convention to form a constitution assembled in Chillicothe Nov. 1st, 1802. Under this constitution the first general assembly met March 1st, 1803.

ORGANIZATION OF BROWN COUNTY.

Brown County was organized in the year 1817, and contains 496 square miles, or 317,440 acres of land. It is bounded on the north by Clinton, on the east by Highland and Adams, on the south by the Ohio River, and on the west by Clermont County. The principal streams flowing into the Ohio River are Eagle, Red, White Oak, and Straight Creeks. The soil, being formed upon alternating strata of clay and limestone, partakes chiefly of those two earths. Prior to the organization of Brown County, in 1817, the territory now embraced in it formed parts of Adams and Clermont, including a small portion of Highland.

According to the old constitution of the State of Ohio, counties should include not less than 400 square miles of territory. Adams and Clermont Counties, having more territory than desirable, petitioned the general assembly to strike off a part from each, and form a new county. John Pollock, from Clermont, and Abram Shepherd, from Adams, were members of the senate at the time, and through them the division was effected. Chapman, from Clermont, and Middleton, of Adams, were at the time members of the house of representatives, the last-named gentlemen being strongly in favor of the division.

In the spring of 1817, Richard Cross, then county-surveyor of Adams County, and James Pilson—now of Brown—surveyed the line dividing Adams and Brown Counties, beginning at a point eight miles due west of the town of West Union, the county seat of Adams County, and from that point south to the Ohio River, and north from that point to the Highland County line. James Pilson and George Light, then county-surveyors of Clermont, surveyed the line dividing Clermont and Brown Counties, beginning at a point on the Ohio River two miles above the mouth of Bullskin Creek, thence north to the Clinton County line. The county was named Brown, in honor of Gen. Jacob Brown, an officer of the war of 1812. The first court of Brown County was held in Ripley, in the month of April, 1818, by Joshua Collett, presiding judge, and James Moore, William Anderson, and James Campbell, associate judges. Abraham Shepherd was at the same time appointed clerk of the court for the term of seven years. George W. King was appointed prosecuting attorney for the same length of time. William White and John Lindsay were the first commissioners of the county, appointed April 15, 1818. William Humphries was at the same time appointed treasurer to serve until the first of June. William Butt was the first sheriff, he being chosen at a special election held during the following May. The following persons composed the first grand jury: Jeptha Beasley, George Bingem, John T. Parker, William Purdam, Samuel Pickerel, James Ross, James Henry, Duncan Evans, Edward Shaladay, Valentine McDaniel, Lyons Pangburn, Douglas Shaladay, Henry Newkirk, Isaac Ellis, James Monroe, met at the July term of court, 1818.

At an election held October 1st, 1818, John Evans, James Wells, and Walter Wall were elected commissioners of the county; they constituting the first regularly elected board of the county. They then cast lots for the respective terms of office, Evans continuing for one year, Wells two, and Wall three years. The county now being organized, the courts established, it became necessary that the county seat should be located permanently at some point. On this question the people of the county, as well as the commissioners, were divided in opinion, some favoring one point and some another. The commissioners failing to locate the same agreeable to the minds of the people, the legislature appointed a special board of commissioners for this purpose, consisting of William McFarland, Philip Good, and Isaac Cook of Ross County, who were instructed to select a site, and locate the county seat of Brown County. In the year 1819, the above-named commissioners purchased of John Thompson and James Ponge fifty acres of land on Straight Creek (land now owned by Charles Abbot) and proceeded to lay out a town for the seat of justice of Brown County, Bridgewater being the name applied to it. Upon the site of this prospective town was built a double log court house, in which two terms of court were held during the year 1819, when it was then ascertained that the title of the property was imperfect on the part of Thompson—consequently the enterprise was abandoned, and the county seat located at Ripley during the latter part of the year 1819. The commissioners after giving the notice required proceeded to sell (Jan. 7th, 1820), to the lowest bidder, the contract for building a court-house in the town of Ripley. George Poage became the purchaser for the sum of two thousand nine hundred and ninety-nine dollars; the sale being conducted by Ebenezer Sutherland. In order to lessen the expense of the county in building a court-house, the several citizens of Ripley subscribed a large amount of money for this purpose. When the new building was but partially completed, a difficulty again occurred between the contending parties in regard to the location of the county seat, when the legislature again appointed a board of commissioners to locate the same, who proceeded to locate it permanently at Georgetown, during the year 1820, the citizens of that place paying into the county treasury the amount of money previously subscribed for the building of a court-house by the citizens of Ripley. After the removal of the county seat to Georgetown, a temporary building was erected in which the courts were held for some time. In the absence of a jail, a room for this purpose was furnished by Samuel Stitt. August 1st, 1823, the commissioners contracted for the building of a court-house in the village of Georgetown; the contractors being T. L. Hamer, Thomas L. Hauck, William White, Michael Weaver, William Butt, and David Johnson. The commissioners were William Clark, Walter Wall, and Robert Brackenridge. The sum agreed upon with said contractors for the building was $3999.99, said sum to be paid out of the proceeds of certain lands donated to Brown County by James Woods, Abel Reese, and Henry Newkirk, and laid off in lots at Georgetown; the amount to be paid them out of the balance remaining over and above the purchase money—money due the aforesaid doners—and provided the proceeds aforesaid, after paying the purchase money, should not amount to three thousand nine hundred and nine-nine dollars and ninety-nine cents, the contractors were to have no other lien upon the county of Brown by virtue of said contract. The sale of said building was conducted by William Butt, the same being built according to agreement and received by the commissioners August 2, 1824.

June the 7th, 1825, by virtue of a decision of the Supreme Court of Ohio, the commissioners of Brown County settled the amount of George Poage for building a court-house in the town of Ripley, and allowed him for the same; the sum of three thousand three hundred and fifty dollars, with interest thereon from the first day of August, 1821, at the rate of six per cent. per annum, amounting in all to four thousand one hundred and twenty dollars and fifty cents, done agreeably to an Act entitled "An Act for the relief of George Poage, passed February 6th, 1824." Whereupon the said George Poage filed in the commissioners' office a relinquishment in the following words: "I, George Poage, of the county of Brown, and State of Ohio, do hereby release to the commissioners of said county of Brown, for the use of said county, all my right to any sum or sums of money, or other property or thing heretofore subscribed by any person or persons to the commissioners of said county, for the purpose of building a court-house in the town of Ripley, in the county of Brown.

"I do this in compliance to and in the true intent and meaning of an Act for the relief of George Poage, by the legislature of Ohio, passed February 6th, 1824." Agreeably to an Act of the legislature, authorizing the commissioners of Brown County to dispose of the public property in the town of Ripley to the highest bidder, the same was offered August 20th, 1825, the commissioners reserving a bid for the use of the county. The highest bid made being considered too small a price for the property, the same was not stricken off, and consequently remained unsold for want of a bid to justify the sale; the same being afterwards disposed of at public sale for a small sum of money, the building being removed for other purposes.

April 18th, 1827, the building of auditor's and clerk's offices were contracted for by the commissioners, with John Walker, for $390, Thos. L. Hamer and Jesse R. Grant as sureties for his performance of the same. Said buildings were completed and received by the commissioners on the 4th of December following.

January 14th, 1828, the commissioners met at their office in Georgetown, and, pursuant to a notice published in the Western Argus, sold the "old clerk's office" to James Baker, for the sum of three dollars and fifty cents, he being the highest bidder. At the same time the old jail was received from the contractors.

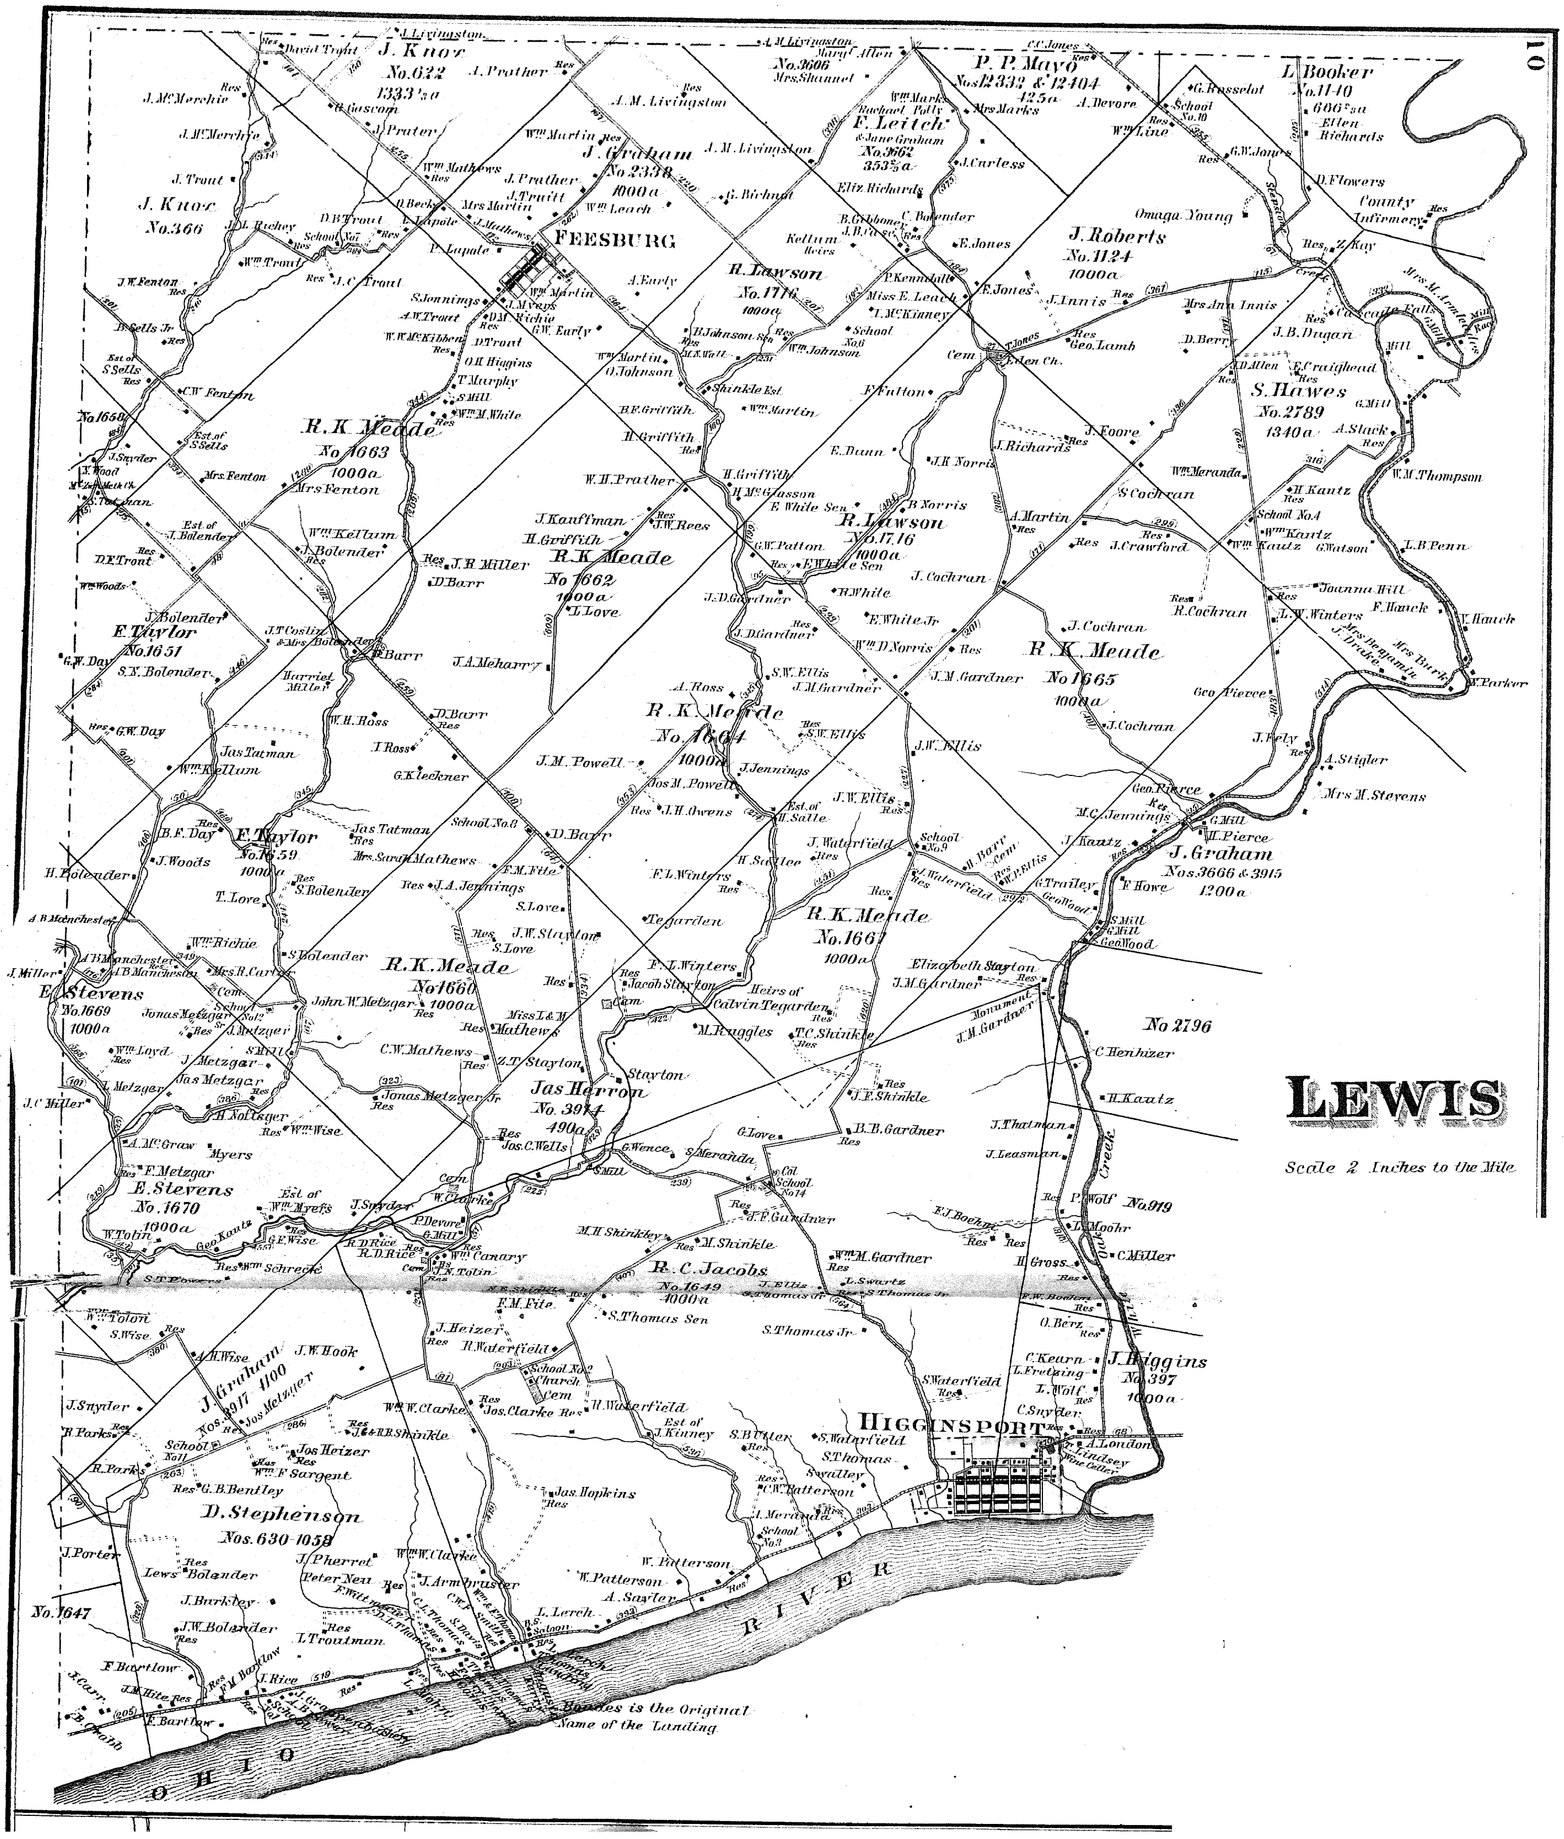

January 16th, 1829, the commissioners purchased of Michael Weaver a farm for the use of the county, for which they paid $522; Edward Thompson, Job Egbert, and Noah Ellis being appointed directors of said farm.

March the 7th, 1849, the commissioners, being of the opinion that the court-house was insufficient to hold court in, rented the basement of the Methodist Church, for which they agreed to pay $100 per year. At the same time they also employed Hubbard Baker to draw a draft of the proposed new court-house, the construction of which was sold on the 22d of May, 1849. John Clever, being the lowest bidder, purchased the stone work at three dollars and sixty cents per perch. Basil Waters, being the lowest bidder, purchased the brick work at seven dollars per thousand; and Emmet Baker the carpenter work, at seven thousand dollars; Robert Moore the digging of the cellar, at fourteen cents per square yard. The said building was completed and received by the commissioners during the year 1851.

EARLY SETTLERS.

The first settlement within the present limits of Brown County, of which any definite account can now be obtained, was made by Belshazzar Dragoo, who settled on Eagle Creek, about three miles from Ripley, on the land where Elijah Fitch now lives, in 1794. Dragoo was a native of Hagerstown, Maryland. He had a family consisting of twelve children, only one (Benjamin) of whom is now living, he being the youngest of the family. Belshazzer Dragoo was a soldier of the "Revolution." He is supposed to have built the first house (a log cabin) that was built in the county. There being abundance of wild game, they never were at any time without meat—for bread, the corn was ground in a hand-mill. This family were compelled to endure severe privations, and often escaped the dreaded tomahawk and scalping-knife of the merciless Indians.

The next cabin built in the county was built by William Kinkead. William Kinkead, Sr., was born in Augusta County, Va., January 9th, 1736. He was (November 3rd, 1756) married to Eleanor Guy; she being taken captive by the Indians, April 14th, 1763, who took her to their town (Chillicothe) and retained her until 1765, when she made her escape and returned to Virginia. The names of their children were Margaret, born September 25th, 1757; Andrew, born February 25th, 1760; Isabel, born April 19th, 1762. Margaret and Andrew, Sr., were captured by the Indians. Andrew, Jr., was born July 25th, 1764, in Warren County, Ohio, while his mother was a captive. Agnes was born 1766; William, June 6th, 1769; Eleanor, August 31st, 1771; Margaret, September 10th, 1772; Susannah, April 3d, 1775; Guy, March 14th, 1779; Rebecca, July 25th, 1782; John, December 25th, 1784.

In the year 1780 William Kinkead, Jr., in company with others, brought a drove of sheep to Woodford County, Kentucky, he being at that time eleven years of age. In the fall of the same year he returned to Virginia, and in the spring of the following year returned to Woodford County, with his father's family, and made a settlement in that county near the present town of Versailles. December 1st, 1789, William Kinkead, Jr., was married to Annie Dunlap. In the year 1790 he took a lease on Stoner Creek, Bourbon County, Kentucky, for a term of seven years. After remaining here five years he sold his lease, and, becoming dissatisfied with Kentucky on account of slavery, he removed to Ohio, and settled in Brown County, in 1796, where he bought three hundred acres of land in Harris' survey, paying $4.00 per acre for the same. William Kinkead, Jr., had a family of nine children, viz.: Alexander, Nancy, Peggy, William, Annie, Robert, James, Guy, and Scott, a part of whom are still residents of the county. The next settler in the county was a man named York, who kept a ferry at the mouth of Red Oak Creek. York did not own any land. Where he was from and what became of him is not now known. Wm. Dunlap, a young man 18 years of age, came with Wm. Kinkead when he removed from Kentucky, in 1796. After remaining with him two years he married Mary Shepherd, and settled one mile north of Wm. Kinkead. Among the early settlers in this part of the county was Jeptha Beasley, who came from Virginia, in 1798, and settled on the land now owned by his son, Jeptha Beasley, Jr. Mr. Beasley was engaged in trading down the river, and, it is said, that he walked home from New Orleans no less than 18 times. Isaac Shepherd located here in 1798 or '9, on the land now owned by Wm. Gilliland.

The early settlers in the vicinity of Aberdeen were, Benjamin Beasley, from Ky., in 1796; Evan Campbell, James Parker, William Gilberts, Uriah White, John Evans, John Cruse, George Harrison, Ellis Palmer, Nathan Ellis. Among the first settlers in the vicinity of Georgetown were, Daniel Figgins (a soldier of the Revolution), Thomas Allen, Henry Ralston. William White In the eastern part of the county the Washburns were early settlers, and also noted Indian hunters. From the year 1800 the tide of emigration flowed in rapidly—too rapidly to chronicle the several names of the settlers. Pioneer history is one full of romantic and instructive incidents, illustrative of early scenes and habits. The habitations of those days were the double log-cabin with an entry between, with two rooms, clapboard roof, puncheon floors, with chimneys of split sticks and clay mortar, clapboard doors, with wooden hinges and latches. A loom and spinning wheel were indispensable, as well as a hominy block and pestle, and a hand-mill to manufacture meal and flour. The schoolhouses were rude structures of logs without windows, the light being admitted through cracks between the logs, which were in winter closed with oiled paper. Geographies, dictionaries, and grammars were unknown; teachers were very limited in their education, so that it was impossible to obtain an education in anything but the most common branches. In those days there was a magic in an education, which few now seem to realize. An education under our liberal school system seems to have lost its charms.

For a long time the early settlers on this side of the river were compelled to go to Kentucky for their supplies. Food, clothing, household goods, farming implements, and munitions of war could be obtained only in small supplies, and with great difficulty. Intercourse with the older settlements was slow and uncertain, and they could not be relied upon for protection, or even for assistance, in times of danger from the Indians. In 1806, an eclipse of the sun took place, and it was the impression with many that the end of the world had come, and many prayed on that day who had never prayed before, and who had seldom thought very devoutly of the coming of that great and notable day of the Lord. As there were but few books, and little education, but few were enabled to understand the coming of such sudden darkness at midday.

EARLY RELIGIOUS HISTORY.

The first religious services held within the limits of Brown County were during the summer of 1798, by the Presbyterians, in a grove on "Red Oak" Creek, near the Ripley and Russelville turnpike, about two miles from the town of Ripley. The minister having charge of the meeting was Robert Wilson, from Washington, Ky. During the next year, 1799, a church organization was effected in this neighborhood, and a log church was built on the land of Isaac Shepherd, about three hundred yards from the site of the present church at Red Oak. Unfortunately, the records of this organization were never preserved, and there is no means of determining who constituted this first church, more than that the Redmans, Dragoos, McClurgs, and Shepherds constituted a part of the organization. Robert Wilson preached for the newly organized church during the remainder of the year 1799. The congregation then procured the services of John Denlevey, from Va., who preached for them almost two years, when a dissatisfaction arose from his preaching "false doctrine," which caused Denlevey to leave the church, taking with him a part of the society, who with himself joined the Shakers. During the two succeeding years the church was with out any regular pastor. In 1805, the services of James Gilliland, from Pendleton district, South Carolina, were secured. Mr. Gilliland continued to labor for the congregation for a number of years. The "round log" church was replaced after a few years with a "hewed log" building, the same being replaced by a stone building in 1817.

The next religious organization in the county was that of the Shakers, who had an organization in the southeastern part of the county, beginning about the year 1804. John Denlevey, who had previously been a minister in the Presbyterian Church, was a prominent member of this organization. Their first meetings were held in groves, or at private houses. A log building divided into two departments was afterward erected, in which the two sexes worshipped separately. The existence of the Shakers as a religious body was of short duration, beginning "about the year 1804, and ending about 1810."

About this time, organizations of the different churches were becoming common in the several neighborhoods throughout the county. "In September of 1810, a Christian camp meeting was held near where Bentonville now stands." About the year 1812, the first Methodist church of the county was organized.

The following statistics show the number of denominations and value of church property in the county at the present time:—

Total number of organizations of all denominations, 80. Of these eight are Baptist, twenty-four Christian, two Lutheran, twenty-seven Methodist, twelve Presbyterian, two German Reformed, and five Roman Catholic. Total number of edifices, 79. Estimated value of church property, $279,850.

MINERALS.

The blue limestone is the principal mineral found in Brown County. It is valuable for building stone or for burning into lime. In the upper portion of it are found marine shells, and on the hillsides it is found in detached pieces. Underneath the lowest strata or base of the hills is a compact soapstone or blue clay, impervious to water. There are throughout the county numerous mounds or tumuli of the ancient inhabitants, and many interesting relics of the Stone Age have been found.

SOIL.

As the Ohio River borders on the county for a considerable distance, there are many fine bottoms, which are mostly rich and well cultivated. Beyond these for an average distance of three miles, the river hills rise from 400 to 500 feet, and are interrupted at short distances by precipitous ravines. The timber and soil are of a good quality, and where the hills are not too steep to be farmed, good crops of corn and tobacco are produced. Further back from the river the ravines disappear, and a high table-land is reached, more clayey, yet well adapted to grass and small grains, and with proper cultivation suited to any crop common to the climate.

MANUFACTURES.

The following statistics show the manufacturing industry of Brown County in 1870:—

HISTORY OF THE PRESS OF BROWN COUNTY.

(Thanks are due Dr. T. W. Gordon for the following extracts relative to the history of the press of Brown County up to the year 1856.)

The first printing establishment brought to this county was purchased by Louden, Butt & Co., of Morgan, Lodge & Co., in Cincinnati, and a newspaper was published on it, entitled The Benefactor, in June, 1820, in the village of Levana, two miles below Ripley, on the Ohio River. It continued one year at that place, when a dissolution took place between its owners, and Mr. Louden sold his interest to William Middleton, of Ripley. At that time a man, who was a silent partner, is said to have entered the office and to have taken possession of, and carried away a large portion of the material, including the main screw of the press and the platten. These he hid amongst the "dog fennel" and "Jamestown weeds," then growing abundantly in and about Levana. No paper was issued from June, 1821, until November the same year, when the owners tried to collect the material thus scattered by a writ of replevin, but failed in their efforts. They, however, gathered up what they could find of the material left, and added new material to it, and again The Benefactor made its appearance, conducted by Butt and Middleton; but with the partial change of owners it made a complete change in location, and instead of greeting its patrons from the banks of the Ohio, as of yore, its radiating centre was Georgetown. Butt and Middleton continued its publication at Georgetown up to the 16th of May, 1822, when Middleton sold his interest to Hon. Thomas Morris, of Bethel, in Clermont County, and The Benefactor made its appearance under the management of Butt & Morris until in January, 1824, when Hon. Thomas L. Hamer became the editor, and James J. Smith publisher. The paper was published by these gentlemen until 1825, when its publication was discontinued. The size of The Benefactor was 18 by 22 inches. Subscription price $2 per annum.

The second paper published in the county was The Political Censor. This paper was first established at Williamsburg, at that time the county seat of Clermont County, by Thomas S. Foot and Robert Tweed. The first number was issued in March, 1812. It strenuously opposed the last war with Great Britain, that being the bone of contention with the then contending parties in the United States. Foot and Tweed continued its publication until some time in 1814, when they sold the establishment to James Finley, who continued to publish the paper at Williamsburg one year, when he removed to West Union, Adams County, and continued its publication until March, 1822, when he removed to Ripley. In 1823 the establishment was purchased by John and James Carnahan, who published the paper until some time in 1824, when it was discontinued. Size of the paper was 17 by 22 inches. Terms, $1.50 per annum in advance.

The third paper published in the county was The Castigator, the first number of which was issued at Ripley, on the 11th day of June, 1824, by David Ammen. In politics The Castigator at first rather favored the election of John Q. Adams to the presidency, but after another paper was started in the county, which came out fully for Mr. Adams, The Castigator ceased to support or even favor his election, and at a later period became an active partisan in favor of the election of Gen. Jackson to the office of president, and on that gentleman's withdrawal from the contest, it hoisted the name of Martin Van Buren, and fought manfully for his election. In August, 1826, The Castigator was removed to Georgetown. In May, 1836, Mr. Ammen sold the paper to Benj. Morris, of Clermont County, who, on the 10th day of the following July, resold it to Mr. Ammen, losing nearly one-half of the price of the establishment in the speculation. David Ammen then took his son Michael Ammen in company, and they continued to publish the paper until the 27th of March, 1837, when it was purchased by a purse raised for the occasion. Its politics were changed to "Whig," and John Duffy and Thomas H. Lynch commenced its publication, and continued it until the 21st of the following June, when the name was changed to the Political Examiner. The material on which The Castigator was printed afterward printed The Examiner, The Ripley Telegraph, and still later Freedom's Casket, by W. Tomlinson, who removed the material to Piketon, Pike County, Ohio, and published The Hickory Sprout upon it. After issuing eleven numbers of The Sprout, commencing July 24th, 1844, the material was burned.

The fourth paper published in this county was the Western Philanthropist, by Daniel F. Barney, of Georgetown. The first number was issued on the first day of December, 1825, the paper only continuing for a few weeks.

The fifth paper published in Brown County was the Western Ægis, by A. and J. Butt. The first number was issued on the 13th of June, 1827. Its publication was continued until some time in the year 1828, when the office and material were burned; new material was then purchased, and the paper again started, when, in December, 1828, the owner removed it to Waverly, Pike County, Ohio.

The sixth paper published in the county was the Farmer's Chronicle and Ripley Advertiser. The first number was issued on the 25th of August, 1830, edited by G. W. King, and published by Patterson. Mr. King had purchased the material for the office with the hope of assisting Mr. Patterson to obtain a livelihood for himself and family, but, finding that Mr. P.'s propensity for alcoholic drinks was almost insatiable, he disposed of the press, type, etc., after keeping up the paper for nearly a year.

The seventh paper published in Brown County was The Democrat and People's Advocate, published in Georgetown, by Isaac N. Morris, the first number of which made its appearance on the 12th day of November, 1833. It strongly advocated the election of Martin Van Buren to the office of President. Its publication was only continued for six months, when the proprietor sold the material to C. F. Campbell, of Ripley.

The eighth paper in the county was The Ohio Whig, C. F. Campbell, editor, the first number being issued at Ripley, August 4th, 1834. The Whig was continued until some time in 1836, when Mr. Campbell sold the establishment to Robert B. Harlan, of Wilmington, Clinton County, Ohio.

The next paper was The Political Examiner, the first number of which was issued by John Duffee and Thomas H. Lynch, on the 21st of June, 1837. After the publication of a few numbers the paper was issued by Duffee and Pollock until after the returns of the election of 1838, when the publication of the Examiner was discontinued. At that time Preston Sellers owned a share in the press, and he, taking charge of the paper, published it until the next August, when Lynch sold the material to C. Edwards, of Ripley. Mr. Sellers then procured new material, and continued to publish the Examiner until August, 1843, when he sold out to Isaac N. Walters, who removed the press and fixtures to Clark County, Ohio. Sellers then purchased the material upon which The Free Press had been printed at Xenia, Ohio, and removed it to Georgetown, where he continued to publish The Examiner until March, 1845, when it was removed to Ripley, and there published until August, when it was transferred by the sheriff to G. W. and Oscar F. Shaw, who commenced the publication of The Ripley Bee upon the material.

The tenth paper published in Brown County was The Democratic Standard, the first number being issued July the 4th, 1837, at Georgetown, by Amos Derrough, who continued the publication of the same until Jan. 9th, 1838, when he sold the establishment to L. B. Leeds & Francis M. Allen, who published it until the 12th day of October of the same year, after which time it was published by Leeds alone until January, 1839, when Mr. Derrough again took charge of it, and published the same until January, 1840. The Standard was again revived on the first of August, 1840, by D. P. Palmer, who published it until February, 1845, when Will. Tomlinson became the proprietor, and published it until 1847, when it was published by J. H. Smith and C. W. Blair. In 1848 it was published by J. H. Smith and T. Q. Blair. In 1849 D. W. C. Johnson became proprietor, and the name of the paper was changed from Democratic to Georgetown Standard. After publishing the paper but a short time, Mr. Johnson resold it to Will Tomlinson, who published it until the year 1850, when the Standard and the Democrat and Journal were united under the name of the Democrat and Journal.

The eleventh paper was The Ohio Freeman, established in Georgetown by John Duffy, March 8th, 1839. After the publication of the thirteenth number it was discontinued. (The Freeman was neutral in politics.)

The twelfth paper was the Ripley Telegraph, by C. E. Edwards; the first number of which was issued at Ripley on the 7th of Sept. 1839. Mr. Edwards continued to publish it until Jan. 8th, 1842, when he sold to Morrison H. Burns, who published it until May, 1843, when he sold it to Will Tomlinson, who published Freedom's Casket on the same material.

The fourteenth paper published in the county was the Ripley Bee, by George W. & Oscar F. Shaw. The first number of the Bee was issued on the 23d day of August, 1845. The paper was continued under this firm until May 1st, 1848, when L. G. Jenkins, purchased G. W. Shaw's interest in the paper, which was then conducted by the firm of Shaw & Jenkins, until May, 1849, when Oscar F. Shaw sold his interest to C. F. Campbell. Jenkins & Campbell enlarged the paper, and continued its publication until the 19th of August, 1850, when Jenkins sold his interest to C. F. Campbell and T. F. Sniffin.

The fifteenth paper was the Western Wreath, edited by C. W. Blair, G. B. White, and J. G. Marshall, and published by Will Tomlinson. The first number of the Wreath was issued on the 6th of September, 1845. After ten or twelve numbers were published, the paper was purchased by Tomlinson.

The sixteenth paper published in Brown County was The Taylor Battery, published in the town of Ripley, by J. D. Shaw. The Battery was a Whig campaign paper, and published only during the campaign of 1848.

The seventeenth paper was The Western Literary Journal, the publication of which was commenced in Georgetown, by W. P. Stewart and G. W. King, Jr., as proprietors, and D. W. C. Johnson, as editor. The first number was issued September 8th, 1849. After the publication of five or six numbers, P. McGroarty became editor, and William Stewart entire owner. After the publication of number twenty-one, Mr. Stewart became editor and proprietor, and continued to publish it until March, 1850, when he changed its head to the Democrat and Journal.

The eighteenth paper was the Democrat and Journal, which was afterward purchased of Stewart by D. W. Johnson, who united with Tomlinson of The Standard, which produced the Democratic Union; this being the nineteenth paper, the first number of which was issued Jan. 1st, 1851, and was continued under this firm for one year, when Tomlinson sold his interest to W. P. Stewart, and the paper was continued in the name of Johnson and Stewart until May, 1852, when Stewart became the owner, and continued its publication until the close of the volume, when D. W. C. Louden and Abraham Sallee became the owners of the Union office. The first number of the paper issued by them was in January, 1853; they continued until September of the same year, when Sallee retired, and Louden continued to publish the paper until May, 1854, when one-half of the establishment was purchased by S. H. Cook. In October following Louden sold his interest to W. H. Sallyards. Mr. Sallyards also rented Cook's share, and the Union ceased to exist.

The twentieth paper published in the county was The Aberdeen Courier; the first copy being issued from the press at Aberdeen, on the 3d of June, 1851, by William Brown. He continued to publish the paper six months, when he sold the establishment to W. H. Sallyards, who published the same until about the 1st of December, 1852, when it was discontinued.

The twenty-first paper published in the county was the Ripley Herald, the same being published by Will Tomlinson; the material being owned by a company of Spiritualists. The first number was issued on the 13th of May, 1852. The Herald advocated the doctrine of spiritualism. After 19 numbers of the paper had been issued, Mr. Tomlinson sold his interest to Oliver Baker and others, who changed its name to The Spiritual Era; the same being the twenty-fourth paper published in Brown County.

The twenty-second paper published in the county was a Pierce campaign paper for the campaign of 1852, called The Granite Rock, published by Will Tomlinson in Ripley, edited by A. P. Lewis and N. A. Devore. After the first few numbers were published, the paper was conducted by Mr. Tomlinson alone.

The twenty-third paper was the Scott Battery, a Scott campaign paper, for the campaign of 1852, published at the Bee office in Ripley, and edited by J. D. Shaw.

The twenty-fourth paper was the Spiritual Era, a continuation of the Ripley Herald; the first number of which was issued Oct. 1st, 1852, by Oliver Baker and others. The Herald was published nearly two years, ceasing Jan. 1st, 1854.

The twenty-fifth paper published was the Independent American, published on the Union material. The first number was issued from the press in Georgetown, on the 9th of November, 1854. After the first number Thomas W. Gordon became the editor, and continued to conduct the editorial department until the 19th number, when he retired, and Wm. Sallyards took charge of it, and conducted it until the 28th of June, 1855, when J. H. Brown purchased Wm. Cook's share in the office and became editor of the paper. Mr. Sallyards sold his interest to Brown in November, 1855.

The twenty-sixth paper was a revival of the Union by W. P. Stewart, who afterward sold his prospects to John Reed & A. P. Harrison, after issuing one copy of the Union.

The twenty-seventh paper in the county, was the Brown County Democrat, by Reed & Harrison, published on the material of the Ripley Herald. The first number was issued from the press in Georgetown, on the 3d of May, 1855, C. A. White & G. W. Hamer, editors. August 16th, White retired. November 22d, Reed left the establishment, having sold to Harrison.

The twenty-eighth paper was a continuation of the Independent American, under the name of the True Jeffersonian, conducted by J. H. Brown and W. W. Young.

The twenty-ninth paper published in the county was a revival of the Democratic Standard August 26th, 1858, published by Sallyards and Taylor. Edited by J. P. Fyfer and T. T. Taylor. The paper came out March 31st, 1859, under the name of T. T. Taylor. About the 10th of May following, Taylor disposed of his interest in the paper to A. R. Vancleaf, and it was then published by Sallyards and Vancleaf, until September 8th, 1859, when Vancleaf retired and the paper was continued by T. T. Taylor until September 15th, 1859, he having sold to John G. Doren, who also purchased the Brown County Democrat, the two being consolidated and published under the name of The Southern Ohio Argus, this being the thirtieth paper published in the county.

The thirty-first paper was The Loyal Scout, a campaign paper, published in Ripley during the campaign of 1860, by Will Tomlinson.

On the 6th of April, 1864, L. B. Reeds, having purchased of John B. Doren The Southern Ohio Argus, issued the first number of that paper in his name. In the fall of the same year he changed the name of the paper to The Brown County News, this being the thirty-second paper of the county. In 1868 Mr. Leeds associated his son with him in the publication of The News. In May, 1874, Thos. J. Leeds retired, and since that time The News has been published by L. B. Leeds. In June, 1867, the Independent Press made its appearance in Ripley, published by Ward and Sellers. At the expiration of eight months the same was sold to Thomas Gliddon, who published it for a period of three or four months, when it was consolidated with the Ripley Bee. In January, 1870, W. Tomlinson began the publication of a paper in Ripley entitled The Lunch Basket. At the expiration of the third month Mr. Tomlinson purchased an interest in The Ripley Bee, and discontinued the publication of The Lunch Basket. In the spring of 1870, began the publication of The Reform, the paper being published in the town of Ripley by a "stock company," the publication of which terminated at the close of the sixth month.

On the 15th of July, 1874, S. J. Housh purchased, of Reynolds and Baird, The Ripley Bee, and the name of the paper was changed to The Ripley Independent, the same being published for six months, when it was sold to M. J. Chase & Co., who again changed the name to The Ohio Valley Times. On the 20th of July, W. B. Tomlinson purchased the paper, resuming the old name, Ripley Bee.

The publishing of the Georgetown Sentinel, by T. J. Leeds, was begun during the summer of 1874.

PLEASANT TOWNSHIP.

Among the early settlers in this township were Jacob Burgett, Aaron Burgett, Valentine Burgett, Walter Wall, John Macklin, James Roney, John Roney, James Calvin, Amos Moore, Sr., Wm. Lyon, James Woods, Nathaniel Woods, Henry Ralston, Robert Sample, Stephen Calvin, Robert Wright, Samuel Ellis, Samuel Ross, James Curry, Robert Curry, Edward Hall, Sr., Edward Hall, Jr., Fielding Martin, James Hamilton, Amos Mitchell, James McKinney, James Louden from Mason County, Ky., emigrated with his mother to Adams, now Brown County, Ohio, in the year 1806, and settled on a lease of land belonging to Capt. Washburn, the same being now owned by John B. Clifton, and located in Jefferson Township. Mr. Louden was at that time ten years old. Among the settlers living in the neighborhood at that time, were Alexander Jolly, David Devore, Neil, and Joseph Washburn, James Works, Isaac Pritchett, Joseph Newman, John Phillips, Robert Forbus. Mrs. Louden had a family of three children, viz., Charles, James, and Nancy, only one of whom (James) is now living. Thomas E. Allen, a native of the State of Maryland, emigrated from the State of Kentucky during the year 1800, and settled on the Ohio River near the town of Ripley. After remaining here a short time he purchased fifty acres of land on "White Oak" Creek, one mile west of Georgetown, giving in exchange for the same a horse valued at sixty-five dollars. After remaining here a few years he removed to Bethel, Clermont County, Ohio. Mr. Allen had a family of nine children. Walter Wall, a native of Pennsylvania, came to this county and settled in this township at an early day. He came with his family in an open boat from Pittsburg, and settled on the land now owned by his son, William Wall. The place where he settled was in an unbroken forest, without so much as a cabin to protect him from the weather. Among the early settlers of this township not mentioned were John Liggett, John Mefford, Joshua Jordan, Thomas Rodgers, Abram Sells, William, Isaac, and Amos Ellis, Archibald Tweed, John and Robert Forsythe.

The first church organization in the township was at "Free Soil Ridge," as early as the year 1800. The first church building erected was a double-log church built by the Presbyterians. The second church building erected was a Methodist church called Hillman's Church, in the southeastern part of the township.

Pleasant township contains twenty-two thousand four hundred and fifty acres of land, valued at six hundred and sixty-six thousand three hundred and eighteen dollars, chattel property to the amount of two hundred and twenty-three thousand four hundred and thirty-five dollars, value of property in towns and villages one hundred and fifty thousand nine hundred and fifty-five dollars, making a total valuation of one million two hundred and sixty thousand five hundred and sixty dollars. It also contains fifteen school districts, with an enumeration of nine hundred and thirty-eight children between the ages of six and twenty-one years, and a voting population of five hundred and forty-four.

GEORGETOWN.

Allen Woods was among the first settlers in this vicinity, and laid out the north part of the town (on land previously purchased by him) December 10, 1819. Henry Newkirk soon after laid out the south part of the town; additions having since been made by J. G. Marshall and C. A. White. The land on which the town was laid out was at that time covered with a dense growth of underbrush and timber, at the same time being very wet and marshy. David Johnson, from Hillsboro, was the first man of business in the town; he engaging in the mercantile business as early as the year 1820. Mr. Johnson was followed by Charles White, James Clark, John J. Higgins, Thomas L. Hamer, and others. During the latter part of the year 1820, the county seat was located, and the first term of court held in the village. The first hotel was a large building, erected by Allen Woods, on the site where the "American House" now stands. Johnson & Hughes engaged in the pork business as early as 1820. The following notice of their business occurred in the Benefactor, a paper published at Levanna: "We will pay $2.50 in silver, per hundred, for corn-fed pork, or $3.00 in Kentucky notes—Georgetown, Ohio, Nov. 23, 1820—Johnson & Hughes." The Christian Church (New-light) was organized in 1825 by Elder Gardner, this being the first church organization in the village. The church building was of brick, built by subscription, and paid for mostly in trade. The second church built in the town was that of the Presbyterians, organized and built during the year 1826. The building was of brick, and was erected on the site of the present church of this denomination. Among the members of this church were Dr. Buckner, the Macklin and Shepherd families. The next church organized in the village was the Baptist Church, organized during the year 1827, the principal members being Job, Egbert, Edward Thompson, and Joseph Stitt. The Methodist Church was organized and a church built about the year 1827 by George Maley. The first building was of brick, and stood near the present site of the woollen mill. The present M. E. church was erected in 1846; the Presbyterian church in 1853. Georgetown now contains five dry goods stores, two clothing stores, seven groceries, two stove and tin-ware stores, one saddle and harness shop, one woollen factory, one saw and grist mill, three hotels, three churches, one bank, one carriage shop, five blacksmith shops, one furniture store, two carpenters, six physicians, fifteen lawyers, one union school of five rooms. The village has a population of fourteen hundred.

Thomas Lyon Hamer was born in Northumberland County, Pennsylvania, in the month of July, 1800. In or about the year 1812 his father removed to the State of New York, and settled in the vicinity of Lake Champlain, where he remained until the year 1817, when he emigrated to Butler County, Ohio, and settled near the present village of Oxford. His son Thomas left him at the mouth of "Nine-Mile Creek," on the Ohio River, where he engaged in teaching school. At the close of his first term of school he immediately procured another at the village of Withamsville, and at a later date taught school in the town of Bethel, where he boarded with the family of Thomas Morris, under whose instructions he pursued the study of law. In the spring of 1821 he was admitted to the Bar at Williamsburg, then the county seat of Clermont County. In the following August he removed to Georgetown, and began the practice of his profession. In the year 1825 Mr. Hamer was elected representative for Brown County. In the year 1829 he was again elected to the Legislature, and was chosen speaker of the House of Representatives. In the year 1833 he was elected to Congress from his district. At the beginning of the war with Mexico he enlisted as a private soldier, but was soon promoted to the command of an Ohio brigade. During his term of service in the army he was again elected (October, 1846) to Congress from his district. On the 3d day of December, 1846, he died near Monterey, while yet in the service of his country. His remains were brought to Georgetown, and interred February 13, 1847. Mr. Hamer was regarded as an able and successful lawyer, the oracle of his neighborhood, beloved and venerated; only an extended history would do justice to his memory.

Jesse R. Grant, father of U. S. Grant, located here at an early day, and was engaged in the tanning business. He was also a prominent man in the "Whig party" in its day. A racy account is given in the Ohio Freeman (published at Georgetown by John Duffey), on May 11, 1839, of the charter election, at which it appears Jesse R. Grant was a candidate for Mayor, but defeated by John Smiley. The article closes with these lines—more emphatic than poetic:—

"Float high and broad our city's banner,
We're ruled no longer by a tanner!
The despot's laws are all repeal'd,
And all their folly stands reveal'd!
A tailor now has got the sway,
Which he will keep until next May;
And then if he but cuts and stitches plain,
We'll try to make him Mayor again.
But if he cuts to make a swell,
And does not do his duty well,
We'll serve him as we did friend G——t,
And be our Mayor again he shan't."

Here is also the home of G. W. King, the first Prosecuting Attorney for Brown County. At the organization of the county Mr. King was a resident of Ripley, but removed to Georgetown in a short time after it became the county seat. Mr. King has been an able and successful lawyer, and, although advanced in years, still continues the practice of his profession.

LEWIS TOWNSHIP.

William Trout was born in Lincoln County, North Carolina, in 1786. In 1809 he removed from there to Clermont (now Brown) County, Ohio, and settled on a branch of Bullskin Creek, a few miles from the Ohio River, on the land now owned by James Miller. There was living in the vicinity at that time Joseph Clark, who afterward built a sawmill on the creek. Aside from these two men and their families, there were no other residents nearer than Felicity, a distance of several miles. During the next year (1810) there came into the vicinity John Hoss, from North Carolina; the Logans and Wells, from Kentucky. Robert Higgins was born in Virginia, in the year 1750, and served as captain in the continental army during the war of the "Revolution;" was taken prisoner at the battle of Germantown, and was kept as such on Long Island during the last three years of the war. In 1796 he emigrated from the South Branch of the Potomac River to Brown County, Ohio, and settled on a survey of 1000 acres of land, obtained for services in the army, in the south part of this township, including the present town of Higginsport, which was laid out by him. He died in the year 1825. Jesse Printy is also an early settler in this township. He was born near Trenton, New Jersey, in 1784, and removed to Mason County, Kentucky, in the year 1796. After remaining there 14 years he removed to Lewis Township, Brown County, Ohio, and settled on Bullskin Creek, taking a lease from Richard K. Mead, on the land now in the name of Calvin Tegarden. There were living at that time in this vicinity Joseph Clark and John Bowd; the latter kept the first ferry between Augusta and the Ohio side of the river. James Roney built a log mill on White Oak Creek, in the year 1800, which is said to have been the first built in the county. John Sargent, Ephraim Minor, and Nathaniel Norris were also early settlers in this township. John Bowd was the first sheriff of Clermont County; Lewis Township being a part of Clermont County at that time (1800). Zion M. E. Church was among the first places of worship in the township; the building was a hewed-log house, built for school purposes; afterward used for a church.

Higginsport, in the south part of the township, was laid out by Robert Higgins, in the year 1804, on a tract of land entered by him in the Virginia military land district. The town contains 3 dry-goods stores, 5 groceries, 2 drug stores, 3 hardware stores, 1 distillery, 1 sawmill, 10 tobacco warehouses, 2 pork houses, 4 churches, viz: 1 Christian, 1 Presbyterian, 1 Lutheran, and 1 German Methodist; Masonic, Odd Fellow, and Good Templar Lodges, 3 physicians, 1 graded school, 2 hotels, 1 livery stable, 3 coal yards, 2 wagon and 3 blacksmith shops. The town contains about 800 inhabitants; has daily communication with Georgetown and all points on the Ohio River.

Feesburg, a small village in the north part of the township, was laid out in 1834, by Thomas Fee, who was engaged in the mercantile business. It now contains 3 stores, 3 churches, viz.: 1 Methodist, 1 Presbyterian, and 1 Christian; 1 school, 2 wagon and 2 blacksmith shops, and post-office, and 200 inhabitants. The township has in all 9 churches and 13 schools, with an enumeration of 1139 children, including 350 belonging to the separate school district of Higginsport. It also contains seventeen miles of free turnpike, has a voting population of 525, and a taxable valuation of $1,270,559.

JEFFERSON TOWNSHIP.

Jefferson Township was originally a part of Byrd, including also small parts of Jackson and Franklin, organized in 1853. John McMahan and George Brown were elected magistrates at the first election, in November, 1853.

Samuel Pilson, wife, and three children, viz.: James, John, and Jane, removed from Augusta County, Virginia, in the month of November, 1807, and settled in what is now Jefferson (then Byrd) Township, where he remained until his death in 1848, aged 80 years. James, his oldest son, is now still living on the old homestead of his father, and is the oldest person now living in the township, being in his 80th year. He was appointed surveyor by the court of Adams County, at the age of 20 years, and was afterward surveyor of Brown County. In 1831 and '32 he was a member of the House of Representatives, his opponent being Jesse R. Grant, father of the present president of the United States. In 1834 and '35 he represented Adams and Brown counties in the State Senate.

Among the early settlers of this township were George Baird, Abram Shepherd, Col. Edwards, Benj. Garner, John Mann, Levi Laycock, Bazil Thomas, Aleck Glaize, the Washburns, Kennetts, Glaziers, Brockaways, and Shaws.

The first school of the township was on the land of James Baird. The first church was that of the Presbyterians, built on the land now owned by James Baird—Reuben White minister.

Jeral Donalson was born 1767, came to this military district in the year 1790, was taken by the Indians in 1791, made his escape about ten days afterward, reaching Fort Washington. He was with Wayne's expedition against the Indians, heard the cannon that proclaimed the passage of the "Declaration of Independence." He died in 1860, aged 90 years.

RUSSELLVILLE,

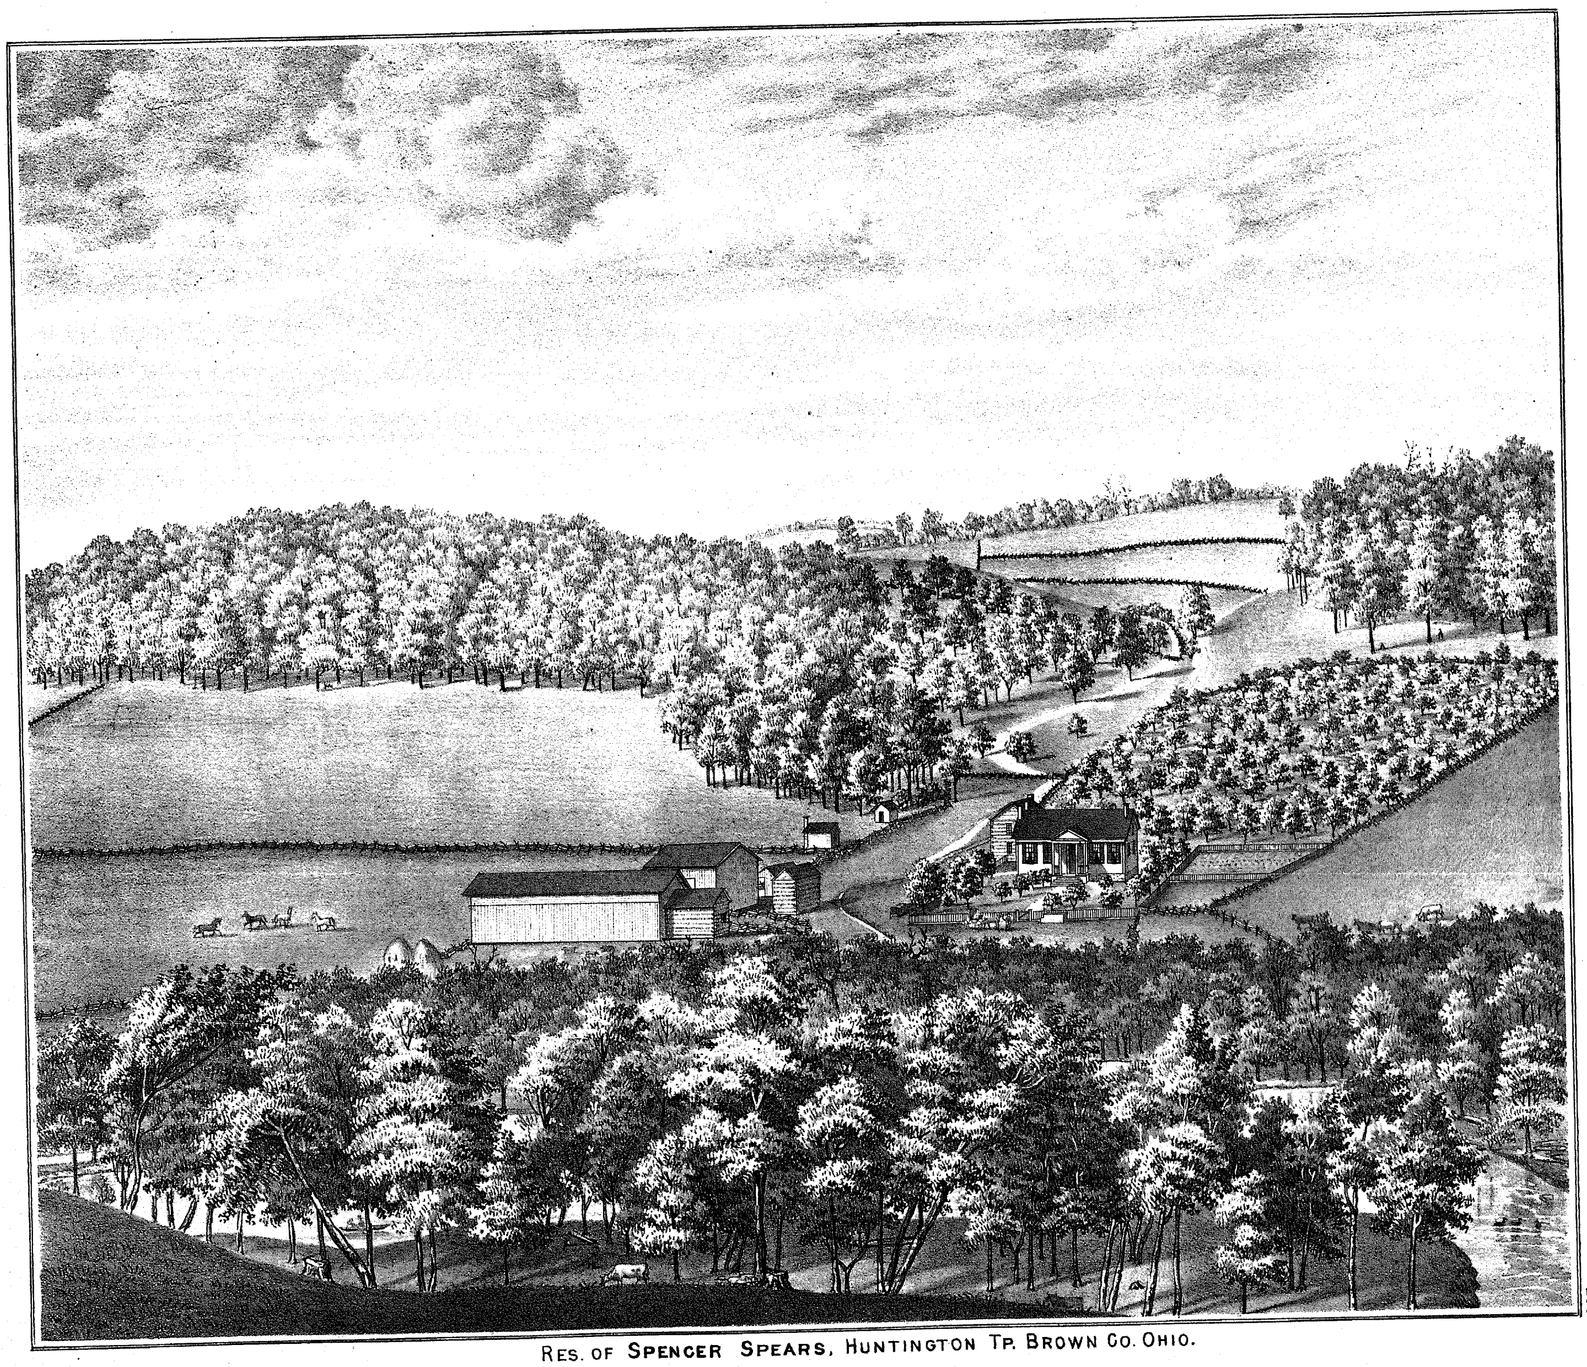

On the Ripley and Hillsborough turnpike, is distant ten miles from the former, and seven miles from Georgetown. It was laid out in the year 1816, by Russell Shaw, and named for him. Russellville has always been noted for its churches, of which it contains seven. It also contains several stores and shops, one flouring mill, two hotels, and about 400 inhabitants. The township contains in all ten churches and five schools, with an enumeration of 300 children, exclusive of Russellville, which has an enumeration of 168, making a total of 468. The voting population of the township numbers 256.

Taxable valuation of township, exclusive of Russellville, $426,510. Russellville, $125,465. Total $551,975.

CLARK TOWNSHIP

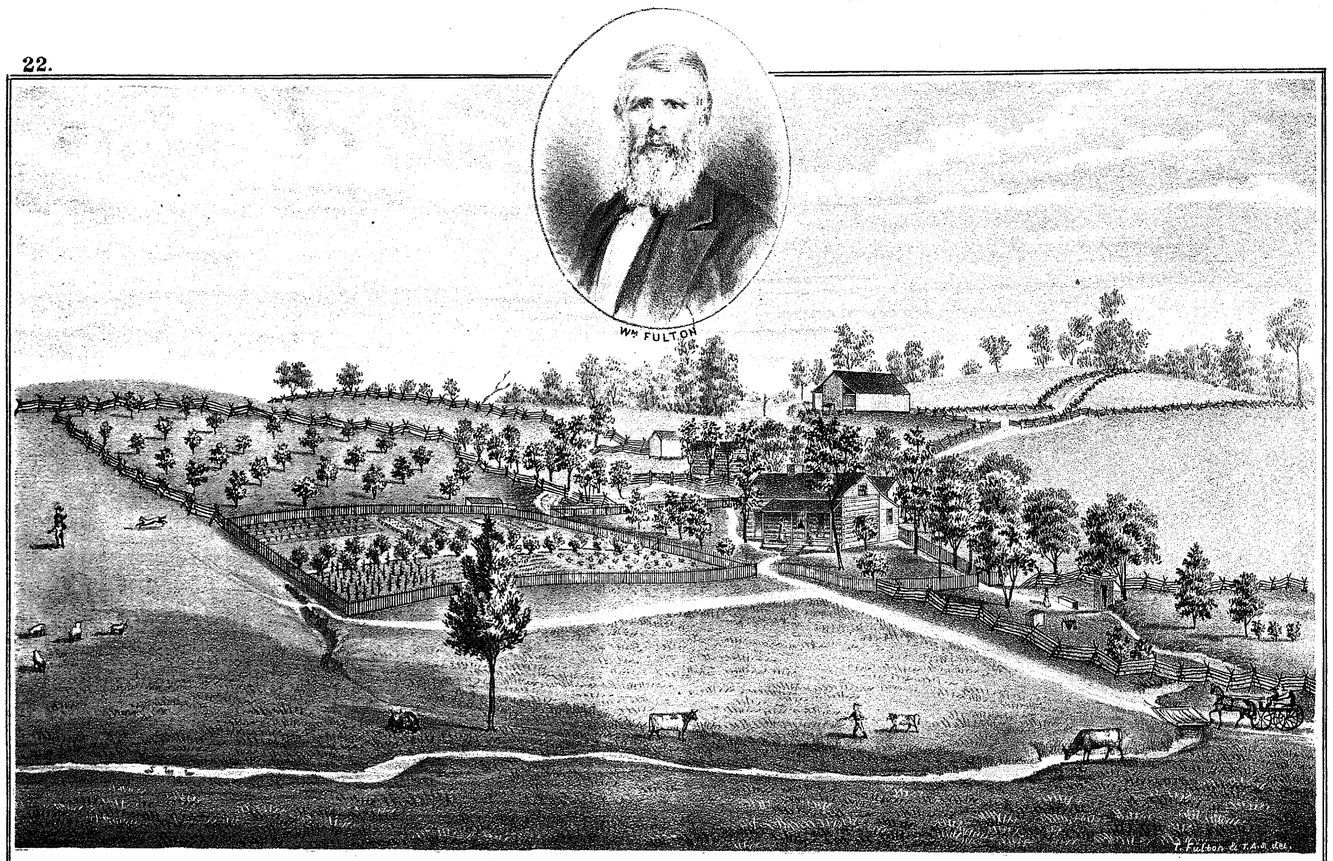

Is one of the original townships of Brown County, from which Pike township was stricken off March 23, 1823. Thomas West was born in Pennsylvania, in 1785. In 1788, at the age of three years, he emigrated to Kentucky with his grandfather, and settled in Bourbon County. After remaining there twelve years, they emigrated to Ohio, and settled in Clermont County, on the land where David Hoover now lives, in Franklin township. In 1808, he was married to Barbara Gray, and in 1814 they removed to Lewis township, in Brown County, and settled on the land now owned by Solomon Bolander. They had a family of ten children, three boys and seven girls, seven of whom are now living. Mr. West now resides with his son, Z. West, in Clark township, his wife having died in 1866, at the age of 75 years. He is probably the oldest man now living in the township, having attained the age of 90 years. He is still a vigorous and active man for that age, and can readily see to read the finest print without the aid of spectacles.

Among the early settlers of the township, were John Frazee, John Brooks, Matthew Coulter, Amos Stevens, James Duncanson, William Neal, Sr., John Hester, George Flake, Nathaniel Moore, Louis Thompson, David Ogden, Thomas Early. David Ogden was from New York, and came to Ohio in 1815, and settled in Hamilton County, where he remained two years, and then removed to this township in 1817, and settled on the land now owned by Dr. Robinson. Brooks was from North Carolina, Duncanson from Long Island. Thomas Early was a native of Virginia, where he was born in 1785, from whence he removed to Ohio in 1816, and settled in Clermont County; after a period of four years he removed to Brown. He is said to have been the first man to haul produce to Cincinnati from Brown County in a wagon.

HAMERSVILLE

Was laid out in the year by Nathaniel Moore and George Flake. It now contains 4 stores, 1 stirrup factory, 3 shops, 1 church, 1 school, post-office, 1 saw mill, 2 physicians, Odd Fellows' and Good Templars' lodges, and one "Order of the Patrons of Husbandry."

The township has 3 churches, viz., one Christian Union, one Christian, and one M. E. It also contains seven schools with an enumeration of 547, a voting population of 207, and a taxable valuation of $520,707.

HUNTINGTON TOWNSHIP.

This township was organized prior to its being stricken from Adams County. Its position is in the southeast part of Brown, bordering on Adams County, and the Ohio River, the surface is very much diversified, the land bordering on the river is comparatively level, while in the interior, and north, rough and hilly.

Benjamin Beasly, Sr., was the first settler within the limits of this township. He was a native of Virginia, from whence he removed to Kentucky in the year 1789; after remaining there seven years he removed to Ohio, and settled on what is now known as Beasly's Run in the year 1796, on the land now owned by Mrs. Grimes, his granddaughter. During the next year, there came James Parker, from Penna., Wm. Gilberts, Uriah White, John and William Hiatt, John Evans, John Housh, John Cruse, Geo. Harrison, John Gunsaulus, Ellis Palmer.

Evan Campbell, a native of Redstone, Penna., emigrated to Kentucky, and settled at "Brooks Bar" three miles above Limestone (now Maysville), some years prior to 1800. In or about the year 1800, he purchased a tract of land in Ohio opposite Maysville, Ky., and moved upon it. There was living at that time, upon the present site of Aberdeen, Nathan Ellis, who owned the land now occupied by the town. Ellis afterward established the first ferry between Ohio and Kentucky, in this vicinity, which he kept for a number of years. He also planted an orchard in the river bottom where the town now stands, which is supposed to have been the first planted in Brown County. Previous to the organization of a school on this side of the river, the children were sent across the river to Maysville. In 1817, a log school house was erected on the land of Evan Campbell, one mile northeast of town, a Mr. Calderwood being employed to teach the first school for $2.50 per scholar, for a term of three months. Previous to a church organization, the people attended services in Kentucky. The first church organization in the township was by the Rev. Wood, in the year 1800, said organization being Baptist. A few years afterward, a Methodist organization was effected at the house of James Dennis, on the land now owned by John Brookover. Among those who belonged to this organization, were the Campbells, Dennis', McCauleys, Kilgores.

The first church built in the township, was Bethlehem Church, built by the New Lights on Slickaway Creek, in 1829. The building was of brick, and was blown down by a storm in 1860, and replaced with a frame building the same year. The Presbyterian church at Huntington was the second church erected in the township, built about the year 1830. The M. E. church in Aberdeen was erected in 1845. Jesse Ellis, son of Nathan Ellis, is now the oldest man living in the township, he being in his 96th year. Nathan Ellis was the first "justice of the peace" in the township, after whom Thomas Shelton was elected, who held the office for 44 successive years. He was born in Stafford County, Va., 1776, and in 1812 emigrated to Brown County. In 1816, he was elected justice of the peace for Huntington township, which office he held without interruption until his death (1860). He was perhaps the most remarkable man of his section, from the fact that he had officiated at the solemnization of more marriages than any person in the United States. It has been estimated that he has united in the bonds of wedlock over four thousand persons. Hundreds of young people, whose parents were unfavorable to their plans, have flown to the old "Squire" and found his services an efficient remedy for their misfortunes. He always claimed that the majority of his marriages were happily made, and if they turned out to the contrary, he consoled himself with the reflection that his own part was well done, and he was not to blame. The old gentleman, for many years previous to his death, had a peculiar passion for buying or trading watches, and it was said that he seldom made a good trade. He has purchased as many as six watches within a week, and traded them for others within that same time. He was a zealous and lifelong democrat, taking great interest in the progress and prosperity of his party, and never voting any other ticket. After the death of Shelton, Massie Beasly was elected justice of the peace, who has remained in office until the present time.

ABERDEEN.

This town was laid out July 5, 1816, by Nathan Ellis, James Powers' addition in 1832, Jno. Beasly's 1st addition 1841, 2d 1845, 3d 1850. The first man of business in the town was Arthur Mitchell, who was in the mercantile business. Succeeding him were Andrew Scott, James G. Lane, and Wm. Parker. The town now contains 2 drygoods stores, 2 blacksmith shops, 1 wagon shop, 1 tannery, 1 hotel, 2 livery stables, lumber and coal yard, and 1 commission house, 1 school, 2 churches, Masonic, Odd Fellows, and Good Templar lodges. The township contains in all 5 churches, viz., 2 Christian, 1 Baptist, 1 Presbyterian, 1 M. E. No. of school districts 13, with an enumeration of 809. Separate district of Aberdeen 311, voting population 435.

PIKE TOWNSHIP.

This township, originally a part of Clark, was organized March 3, 1823; the survey being made by John McBeth. The first man who came to this township was John Allen, who came here in 1810, while it was yet a part of Clermont County. Mr. Allen settled on Sterling Creek near the centre of the township on the land now in the possession of the heirs of Mrs. Blair. He was soon after followed by Joshua Archer, William Still, and George Sheik. These men were known as "squatters," and located four miles from New Hope, which was the nearest settlement. John Allen was the first to make a purchase for a permanent settlement, buying 1200 acres of land in the survey of Benj. Holmes. Mr. Allen bought of the agent of Holmes in the year 1824, paying two dollars per acre for his land. He continued the purchase of land by the survey until he was the owner of 3100 acres, lying on both sides of Sterling Creek. This he sold in quantities to suit purchasers at different periods; unfortunately for him the purchasers were compelled in a short time to pay $3.00 per acre for the land which they had bought of Allen for $2.00, in consequence of his title to the same not being genuine.

In 1824 Mr. Allen was appointed colonel of a regiment of militia, and so rapidly had the county been settled that he mustered on the farm, where he had settled as a squatter fourteen years before, his regiment of men, numbering eight hundred rank and file. Joseph Keethler, Christopher Day, Robert Allen, Vinson Brown, Robert Allen, Hutchins Allen, Jasper Shotwell, from Ky., John Earhart, from Pennsylvania, Joshua Lambert, Henry Moyer, James and Jonathan Hunt, were among the early pioneers of this township. The first church organization was a Methodist church on Sterling Creek in 1823, services being held at private houses; those of Joseph Keethler and John Allen being the most prominent. John Allen was the first justice of the peace in the township, elected in 1824, which office he held for twelve years. Vinson Brown and Martha Allen were the first persons united in marriage in the township, and the child first born in the township was Sanford Allen, son of John Allen, born in 1810. The first school was taught by Joseph Ralston in a log-cabin on the land of John Allen in the year 1817. The same was taught by subscription, the tuition being $1.25 per quarter, and the number of pupils twelve, making $15 per quarter, or $5.00 per month for his services. The school was supported by John Allen, Joseph Keethler, Christopher Day, Samuel Jones, and Vinson Brown. Robert and Charles Brown of this township were among the pupils of said school.

New Harmony, laid out by E. B. Wharton, is a small village in this township.

The township also contains one M. E. and one M. P. church; eight schools; 493 children between the ages of six and twenty-one years; and a taxable valuation of $301,968. Voting population 221.

SCOTT TOWNSHIP.

Among the early settlers of this township were Henry Sumalt, Joshua Davison, Francis and Thomas Myers, Robert Davison, Benjamin and Nicholas Smith, John McBeth, Robert McBeth, John Stansberry, Jacob Fite, James Norris, Jonathan Natwood, Robert McCall, John Pitzer. Henry Sumalt was a native of Harrison County, Ky., from whence he removed to Clermont (now Brown) County, Ohio, and settled on White Oak Creek, below the present village of New Hope, and built the first mill in the township in the year 1813. The property on which Sumalt located is now owned by Henry Davison. Joshua Davison settled on the land now owned by John and Samuel McCall. The Myer brothers (Francis and Thomas) located on White Oak Creek opposite the village of New Hope. The property is now in the possession of John Sams and Orman Dunn. Robert Davison located on the creek just above the village, on the land where William Espy now lives. The Smith brothers (Benjamin and Nicholas) settled on White Oak Creek about two miles south of the village, on the land now owned by Marshall Patton and William Martin's heirs. John and Robert McBeth were natives of Pennsylvania; they emigrated to Ohio at an early day and settled in this township on 300 acres of land purchased by their father in survey 1213, which he divided between the two boys. Henry Wardlow now owns the land where John McBeth settled, and Henry Young where Robert settled. John Stansberry was a native of Virginia, Jacob Fite from Kentucky, James Norris from Vermont, Jonathan Natwood from Vermont, Robert McCall from Kentucky, William White from Kentucky, and John Hill from Ireland, were also early settlers of this township, as also David Reynolds who built a mill on the site of the present one in "New Hope" in the year 1822.

There are two churches in the township, viz., one M. E. and one Christian. The M. E. church in New Hope was built in the year 1851. Previous to the erection of this building the congregation worshiped in a log church which stood on the land of Godfrey Kitterring within the suburbs of the village.

The Christian church on the pike two miles south of the village was built in 1874; previous to this the denomination worshipped in a log house one mile north of the town, on the land now owned by Peter McKee. Martin Gates and Francis Myers were the first justices of the peace in the township. New Hope, situated seven miles from Georgetown, on the Georgetown and Mt. Orab turnpike and White Oak Creek, contains two stores; two shops; one hotel; one church and school; one grist mill; carding machine; two physicians; post-office; and one hundred inhabitants.

The township also contains six school districts; 342 white and 24 colored children between the ages of six and twenty-one years, with a voting population of 206, and a taxable valuation of $352,919.

WASHINGTON TOWNSHIP.

Washington township was organized December 2, 1822; the first election being held January 1, 1823, at the house of Henry Dunn, for the election of the necessary township offices.

William Wardrow is supposed to have been the first settler in this township. He was a native of Virginia; from there he emigrated to Kentucky, and from there to Washington township as early as 1805 or '6, and settled in the lower part of the township, at the forks of White Oak Creek. He had a large family of children. His son William was a volunteer during the war of 1812, during which time disease terminated his life. His other children all settled in the neighborhood of their father. Levi Wardrow, a son of Samuel, and grandson of William Wardrow, is now living on the homestead of his father, adjoining that of his grandfather; he lives within six or seven rods of the spot where he was born seventy years ago, and has never seen a river nor a steam-boat, and yet only a short distance from the Ohio River where passing steamers can be seen at almost any hour of the day. The family of Samuel Wardrow, consisting of four boys and three girls, remained at home for quite a while after maturity. It is said that they had a pair of "steelyards" in the possession of the family capable of drawing 200 pounds, and yet they would only weigh one member of the family.

The second settler in the township was Vinson Calvin from Kentucky, who came to the township in the year 1807, and settled on the land now owned by Joseph McFadden and George Nelson; these were followed by a number of persons, such as the Pettijohns, David Graham, John Moore, Joseph Bratton. Moore was a native of New Jersey. The Grahams and Pettijohns were Virginians. Sardinia was laid out April 1st, 1833, by Josiah Moore and William Lilly. During the summer following there were three buildings erected by the following persons, viz, Josiah Moore, Isaac M. Beck, and William Mills. Moore's house was the first one framed, but Beck's first completed. During the next year (1834) John Mahaw built the residence where Dr. Beck now lives. Stout D. Renyan and John L. Pangburn also built during this year. Lilly and Moore had a small store when the town was laid out, which they continued for a number of years.

John L. Pangburn erected a carding machine and oil mill in 1833. Hubert Burke started a cabinet shop in 1835. About the same time Willis Gilliland engaged in blacksmithing, and S. D. Runyan in wagon-making. Dr. Isaac Beck came here soon after the laying out of the town from the adjoining neighborhood, and continued the practice of his profession already commenced. In 1835 he removed to Bethel, Clermont County, and from there to Indiana, and returned to Sardinia in 1837. The second addition was made to the town during this interval. The first church of the township was built by the Presbyterians in 1829, on the site of the cemetery, northeast of town. The second was the M. E. church, built in 1840, and was known as the "Mt. Carmel" Church, built on the land now owned by Sarah Bell; they had services, however, in the neighborhood for many years previous to the erection of this church.

The Presbyterian Church was organized by John Boyd. In 1840 the Baptists built a church in Sardinia—a society having been organized by John Stearns. This organization, however, only existed for a period of four or five years, when the church building was sold for school purposes. In 1846 the Presbyterian church was removed and rebuilt in Sardinia. In 1860 or 1861 the M. E. church at Mt. Carmel was abandoned, and a new church built in the village also. Sardinia now contains three stores, three millinery stores, one carriage shop, two blacksmith shops, two shoe shops, one chair splint factory, one tin shop, two physicians, one drug store, two churches, one school, and a population of two hundred. Major McIntire is the oldest business man of the town, having been engaged in the mercantile business for a number of years. The town has communication by mail with Williamsburg, Clermont County, and was known in times of slavery as a celebrated depot on the "Underground Railroad."

Richard Pettijohn and Robert Hamilton were the first justices of the peace in the township. The oldest persons now living in the township are Mrs. Hall aged eighty-four, Mrs. Wright, eighty, and Jacob Lout aged seventy-five years. The township contains eight school districts, with an enumeration of three hundred and fifty-seven children between the ages of six and twenty-one years; has a voting population of one hundred and fifty, and a taxable valuation of $338,027.

EAGLE TOWNSHIP.

This is one of the original townships of Brown County, the east line of which forms part of the boundary line between Brown and Adams Counties. A part of it was stricken off on January 20, 1823, and was organized into what is now known as Jackson

Township. Robert Breckenridge emigrated from Bourbon County, Kentucky, in 1808, and settled in Eagle Township, Adams (now Brown) County, on the land now owned by James Wilson. He brought with him a family of thirteen children, only two of whom are now living in Brown County. Samuel, the second child, is now living on the old homestead, and is now in his seventy-seventh year. Robert Breckenridge's original purchase was one thousand acres of land in Ratliff's survey. Samuel Breckenridge had a family of nine children, only four of whom are now living. John Alexander, a native of Augusta County, Virginia, and a soldier of the Revolution, emigrated from Virginia to Eagle Township in the year 1811, and settled on the land now owned by his son, William Alexander. He brought with him a family of six children, four boys and two girls, viz., Francis, John, Andrew, and William, Elizabeth and Hannah, none of whom are now living except William and Andrew. John Alexander, Sr., died March, 1832; his wife Jane died in 1837. Among the early settlers of the township, and previous to Alexander, were John Miller, Sr., and John Miller, Jr., Hugh Miller, James Cowen, Thomas Rhodes and father, Spencer Rickett, Adam Irwin, John Baker, Tom Murphy, Benjamin Murphy, Elijah Murphy, William Laycock, John Nelson, Jonas Sams, Stephen Davis and his brother Isaac, William Deming, James, Frank, and Michael Duffey. Israel Bell came to the township in 1818; he was also a soldier of the war of 1812; so also were John Scott, William Duffy, Hugh Miller, Robert Breckenridge, James Cowen, William Laycock, Meyer Sams, Elijah Murphy, and John Records.

James Kendle and his sons Aaron, James, Hosea, Samuel, Benjamin, Samuel Cross, Joseph Statler, Jeremiah Fenton, Sr., and Jeremiah Fenton, Jr., were also early settlers in the township. Robert Breckenridge built the first saw and grist mill on Brush Creek, built in the township. William Laycock was the first justice of the peace in the township. The first church organized in the township was the M. E. Church, at Fincastle, organized in the year 1839, by John Manker. The next church organized was the Christian Church, at Fincastle, in 1840, by ——— McLain. There are two other churches in the township, viz., Disciples, organized 1850, and the Reformed, organized in 1845. The colored people also have two organizations in the township, viz., one Baptist and one Methodist.

In this township is located one of the settlements of colored people, who were originally the slaves in Virginia of Samuel Gist, of England, and who emancipated them in 1818, and located a part (three hundred and fifty) of them on a body of land in the west part of this township; the original survey was that of Cadwalder D. Wallace; the land was purchased by the agent of Wickam and Page, executors of James Gist. These people were located here in 1820, and unfortunately the location was not a favorable one, the land being wet and of a poor quality, consequently their condition is not very prosperous. Fincastle was laid out in 1835, by John Alexander, and named by Samuel Stivers after Fincastle, Virginia. John Frierson was the first man of business in the village, who was engaged in merchandising. Dr. S. E. Carey was born in this township in 1820, and has long been distinguished as a man of enterprise, and successful in the practice of his profession. The village now contains three stores, three churches, post-office, one mill, one school. Israel Bell is the oldest man in the township, he being eighty-nine years of age. There are eight schools in the township, and four hundred and sixty-one school children. A voting population of two hundred and two, and a taxable valuation of $329,117.

JACKSON TOWNSHIP.

Jackson Township was originally a part of Eagle, from which it was separated by an act of the county commissioners, June the 20th, 1823. The first election for township officers was held at the house of Stephen Reynolds. The township was surveyed by James Pilson. Among the early settlers of the township were Samuel Evans, who located near the present village of Carlisle; William McColgin, Sylvanus Parker, Joseph Reynolds, John Anderson, Thomas Brady, old Mr. Clendenin, William McNown, Thomas Rickey, Samuel Benington, Jacob Middlesworth, John and James Nelson, James Wright, Josiah Rhoton, the majority of whom were from the State of Virginia. Joseph Reynolds was an Eastern man, and was known in his vicinity as a "Yankee." He being the first settler in his immediate neighborhood, the settlement was in consequence called the "Yankee settlement." The first church in the township was a log church built in the year 1825. This same building is still standing on the land of Sylvanus P. Evans. Samuel Evans built the first saw-mill, on Eagle Creek, built in the township. Stephen Reynolds is supposed to have been the first justice of the peace.

The village of Carlisle was laid out in the year 1834 by John Anderson. It is now a village of 75 inhabitants, and contains three stores, two blacksmith shops, two milliner shops, and one church. The township contains four churches, viz.: two Methodist Episcopal, one New Light, and one Christian Union; one I. O. O. F., and one organization of the "Patrons of Husbandry" The number of schools is six, with an enumeration of 334 children, and, according to the last census, has a voting population of 174, and a taxable valuation of $439,818.

BYRD TOWNSHIP

Is one of the original townships of Brown County, being one of the townships stricken from Adams County at the organization of Brown. Among the early settlers of this township were John Knox, Thomas Hatfield, on the farm now owned by his son David, John McLaughlin, Andrew Dragoo, Lawrence Ramey, George Fisher, John Wright, Nathaniel Beasley, Benjamin Sutton. Beasley was at one time county surveyor of Adams County, afterwards captain, and the general in the militia. Lawrence Ramey had a family of ten children, nine girls and one boy. His son (George) died in the army during the war of 1812. Thomas Moore is also an early settler in this township; he is said to have kept the first (log) tavern in the township, where the village of Decatur now stands. John Austin built the first mill in the township, on Eagle Creek, just below the junction of the east and west branches. The first school was taught in a log house near the present village of Decatur, by Thomas Harris. The same school was afterwards taught by Judge Livingston. Benjamin Sutton is said to have been the first justice of the peace in the township, which office he held for the period of twenty-five or thirty years. The following anecdote is said to have been frequently told by the "'Squire" on himself. Passing along the public highway, he by chance met the wife of one of his neighbors riding what might be considered rather an inferior horse, when the 'Squire took occasion to remark that she was riding a very poor horse. "Yes," she replied, "she would much prefer a jackass for that purpose, but as they had all been elected 'Squires, it was impossible to get one."

Byrd Township is identified with the early religious history of Brown County. The first religion established in the township was that of the Shakers. This religion was preached here as early as 1814, their first services being held in groves or private houses. Afterwards a structure was erected in which they worshipped, which is described as being "a log pen" of but a few feet in height, and divided into two departments, in one of which the men, and in the other the women, worshipped, which building was afterwards converted into a building more suitable for worship. Their continuance as a religious body was, however, but for a short time, covering a period of only five or six years, when most of them removed elsewhere.

In the year 1810, a "Christian" church was organized at what is now known as "Liberty Chapel," by Archibald Alexander, but who constituted the membership of that church is not now known. Services were held either in the woods or at private houses until 1817, when the church became so much strengthened that the building of a house of worship was determined upon; accordingly a stone church was erected during that year, the dimensions of which being 44x34 feet, the wall 2 feet in thickness. The building committee consisted of David Devore, Jeptha Beasly, and Samuel Pickerell. The masons who built the walls were Daniel Copple and Joseph Hughes. In consequence of the old church needing repairs, and change of location being desirable, a new church building was erected in 1874 The dedication sermon was by J. S. West, December 13th, 1874, from the following words: "Wherefore, seeing we also are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses, let us lay aside every weight and the sin that doth so easily beset us, and let us run with patience the race set before us, ever looking to Jesus the author and finisher of our faith." The following have been the ministers of this church: Archibald Alexander, John Longley, Jesse Holton, David Hathaway, John Ross, John Rodgers, J. B. Lucas, John Young, David Thompson, B. F. Salee, W. D. Moore, and J. S. West.

The township contains seven school districts, with an enumeration of 454 children; a voting population of 230; and a taxable valuation $545,113.

FRANKLIN TOWNSHIP.

This township was organized by an act of the county commissioners, December the 2d, 1822, the first election being held at the house of Henry Dunn. Among the early settlers of this township were Philip Lindsay, from Pennsylvania, Thomas Lindsay, from Kentucky, Azil Lucas, Jacob Lucas, John Prickett, Benjamin Hayes, James and Henry Dunn, Isaac Washburn, Joseph Long, Hosea Boner, John Shofe, and John Brown. Those of the next date were foreigners, the first of whom was George Boyer, who settled on the land now owned by Levi Dunn, in the year 1825, and was the forerunner of the large and thrifty population of Germans that now so largely predominates in the township, the present population being at least two-thirds German. Uriah Springer and John Lindsay were the first justices of the peace in the township, each of whom held his office for the period of twenty-one years.

Arnheim, a small village in this township, was laid out December 2d, 1837, and contains a church, school, three stores, several shops, etc. The churches of the township number in all five, viz.: one Catholic, one German Methodist, one Baptist, one Lutheran, and one Christian Union. The township also has seven schools, with an enumeration of 430 children; a voting population of 215; and a taxable valuation of $351,428.

PERRY TOWNSHIP.

This township was organized at the first meeting of the county commissioners, April 15th, 1818. This township is well adapted to the raising of all kinds of grain; the soil is generally fertile, the land rolling, and well drained by the "East Fork" of the Little Miami, which passes through the entire length of it. Solomon Claypool was among the first settlers of this township, and built the first cabin on Solomon's Run. Nathan Bishop settled in this township in 1818; he buying a farm of 110½ acres, and still owns the same farm at the present time. At the present time he is a resident (and mayor) of the village of Fayetteville. It is said that he has collected more money for other people in Brown County than any man in the State, and can say that he has never taken one cent of any man's money wrongfully.

CHRISTOPHER DAY was born in Maryland, August 6th, 1788. In 1800 he moved with his father to Mason County, Kentucky, and settled three miles from Washington; was married to Hannah Dye, August 10th, 1807; moved to Ohio in 1808, and settled on Straight Creek, near the present site of Georgetown, and moved from there to this township, and settled on the farm where he now lives in 1822. Hannah Day, his wife, died December 31st, 1821. He was married the second time in 1822, to Melinda Grove, who died March 17th, 1855. Benard Kelly was born in Ireland April 1st, 1798; moved to this country in 1825; settled in Brown County 1832; died April 28th, 1875. His family consisted of six boys and two girls. Five boys and two girls are still living. Mrs. Kelly was born in Ireland 1803; came to this country in 1825; was married in Cincinnati 1828. She resides on the old homestead at the present time, with one son and two daughters.

JOHN B. STUMP was born in Loudon County, Va., 1798. In 1800 his father, Joseph Stump, left Virginia for what they called "The Western Country." After travelling through a portion of Ohio, they settled in Bourbon County, Kentucky, on Kennedy's Creek, near Paris. After remaining in Kentucky about three years, he moved back to Hampshire County, Va., where he resided until his death. About 1827 John B. Stump settled in this county, on the farm where he now resides; went back to Virginia in 1830, where he married Miss Margaret Moreland, on the 21st of January, 1830, after which he returned to Ohio and settled for life.

FAYETTEVILLE

Is situated on the "East Fork" of the Little Miami River, 38 miles from Cincinnati, and 12 miles from the Little Miami R. R. The village contains several stores, one hotel, five flouring mills, one public school, post-office, one Catholic church, several shops, etc., and has a population of about 400 inhabitants. Has a daily communication with Cincinnati via Milford and Little Miami R. R.

ST. PATRICK'S ACADEMY.—This institution is conducted by the "Sisters of Charity," of Cedar Grove, near Cincinnati. The school is in a flourishing condition, the terms are exceedingly moderate. Board and tuition, including bedding, washing, mending, per session of ten months, $125.

ST. MARTIN'S

Is situated in the north part of the township, five miles from Westboro, on the Cincinnati and Hillsboro R. R., with which it has daily communication by omnibus. The village contains a church, school, post-office, store, shops, etc.

FERRISTOWN.

When Williams and Ferris began their business of manufacturing hames, lumber, etc., at the above-named place, October, 1866, there were not to exceed 35 or 40 acres of cleared land on the entire tract of over 1100 acres. At this time, Nov. 1875, there are more than 500 acres under cultivation. Since 1866 they have shipped more than one million feet of lumber, twelve thousand cords of wood, one hundred thousand bushels of charcoal, ten thousand dozen pairs of hames, which have found a market in nearly every State and territory in the United States, Cuba, Mexico, and Canada.

URSULINE CONVENT is situated in Brown County, 45 miles east of Cincinnati, and five miles and a quarter from Westboro. Railroad trains run as far as Westboro, connecting with an efficient omnibus line which conveys passengers over a fine turnpike, to the commodious hotel in the adjacent village of St. Martin's.

This institution was founded in the year 1845, by Mother Julia Chatfield, of the Ursuline Convent, Bologne-sur-mer, France, some sisters from her own convent and that of the Ursulines of Beaulien, France. On arriving in Cincinnati, this farm and beautiful woodland adjoining, in all three hundred and twelve acres, previously the site of a theological seminary, donated by Gen. Lyttle, was given by the most Rev. Archbishop J. B. Purcell, D.D., to the Ursulines, for educational purposes. Accordingly measures were taken by the Rev. Claude Gacon and Rev. William Cheyniel, of Riom, France (who had settled in Brown County in 1839), for erecting a spacious building, which was opened for use in 1849.

Again in 1860 and '67 additions were made under the immediate supervision of the foundress, Mother Julia Chatfield, who presided over the community for twenty-nine years, and to whose prudence and wisdom is owing the present flourishing condition of this popular institution.

ST. MARTIN'S CHURCH was established in the year 1835 by Martin Kuendig, who is now a resident of the town of Milwaukee.

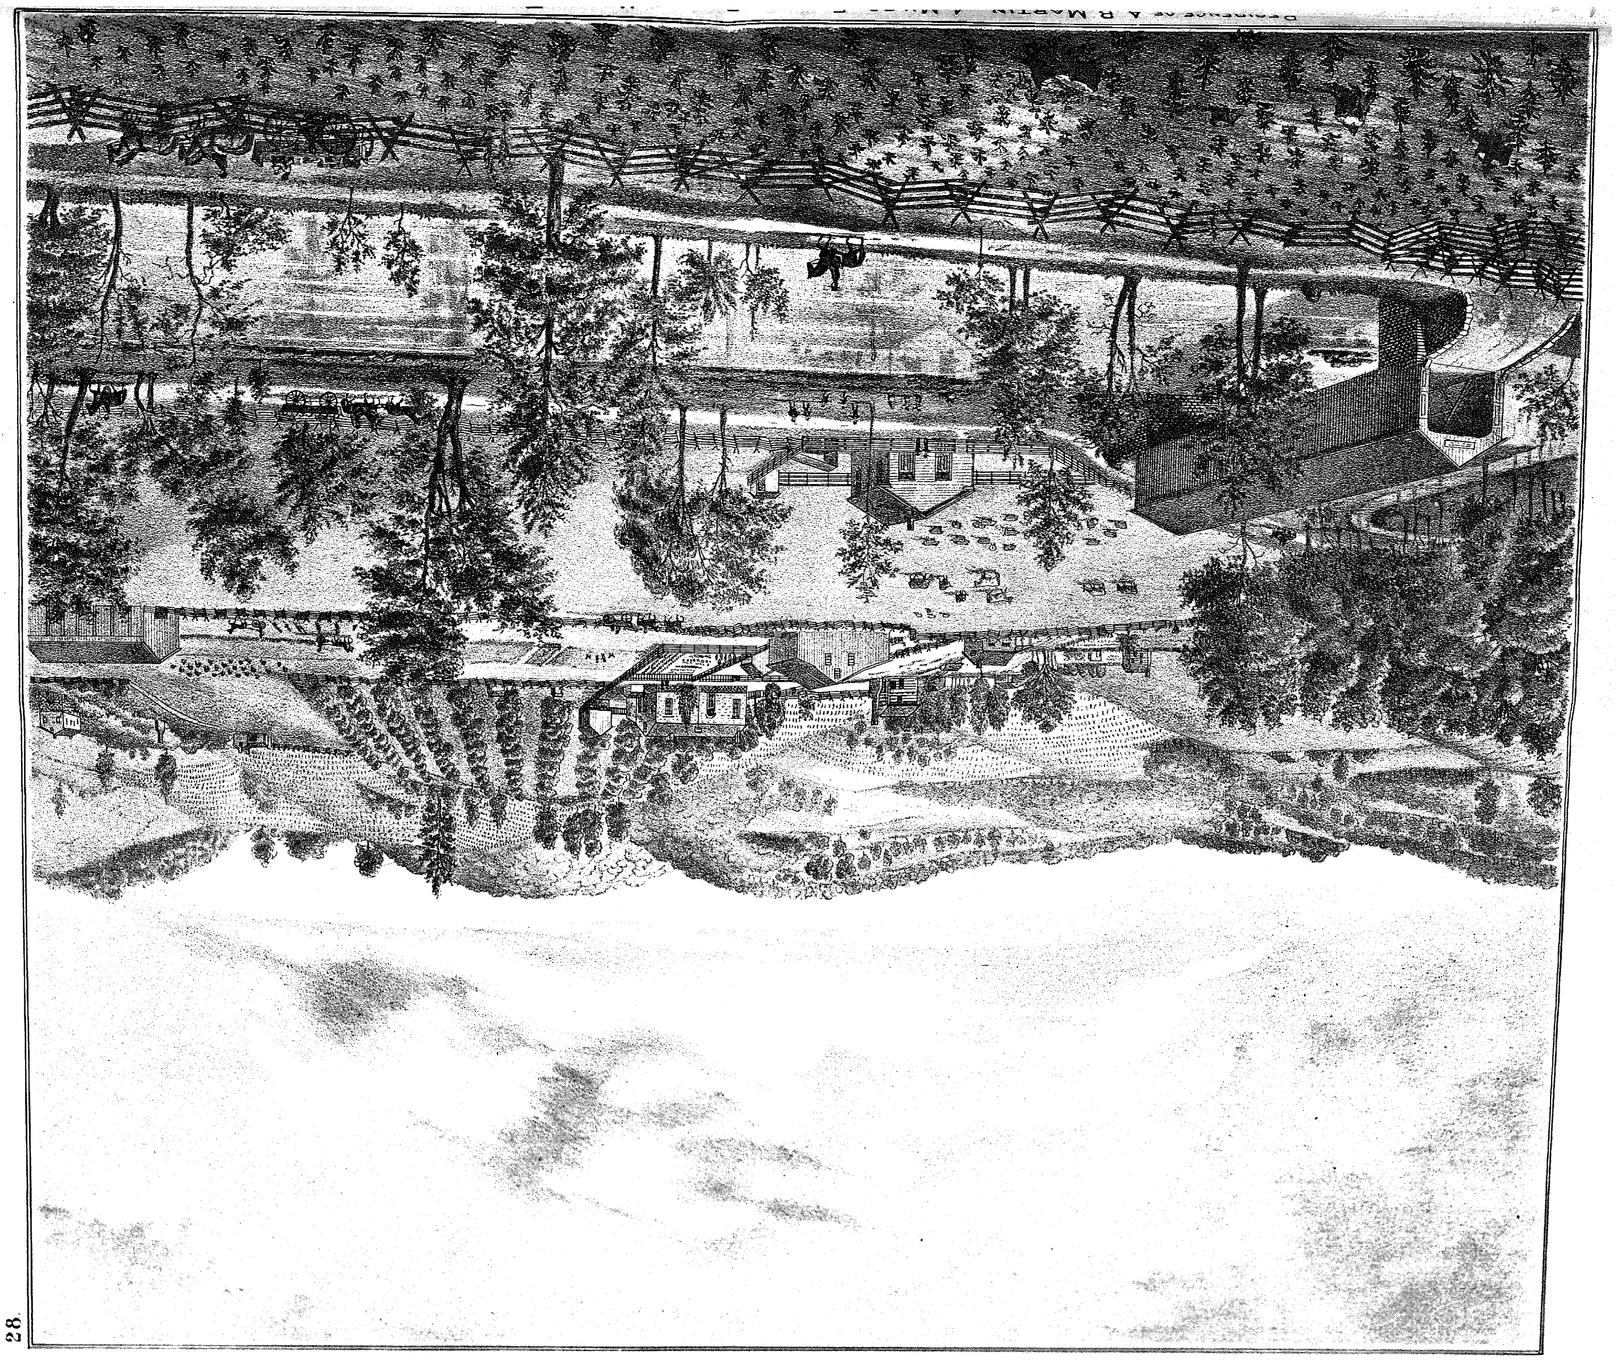

The first building was constructed of logs partially hewed, which served the congregation until 1860, when it was taken down and rebuilt by a handsome brick building.

ST. PATRICK'S CHURCH (Fayetteville).—This church was organized in the year 1839, by the priest of St. Martin. During
