The Starr and Headington Atlas of Champaign County, Ohio, published in 1874, is a valuable tool for the study of the county's history in the second half of the nineteenth century. The lack of an index has limited the book's usefulness; this work corrects that defect.

The index contains every name in all parts of the Atlas: plat maps of villages and townships, historical text, lists of patrons, advertisements, and illustrations. There are three exceptions: names in the table of contents, page 3; names of presidential candidates, page 4; and names of surveys and surveyors, artists, and lithographers--these are omitted.

The index gives the names exactly as in the Atlas. No attempt has been made to correct misspellings, even where obvious. Page references are given for each entry. Entries on maps are further identified by township or village (see key); and by lot, section, or survey number. Lot numbers, especially in the smaller villages, may be absent or duplicated. Section numbers, used in the western two-thirds of the county, are self-explanatory. The eastern third of the county is part of the Virginia Military District or Survey (VMS), and consists of a number of irregularly bounded surveys. The letter/number code employed by the Atlas is used to identify these. In the small VMS portion of Salem Township, "VMS" alone is used in the absence of code numbers. A few areas were not given a code letter or number: they are assigned to the nearest appropriate coded areas. Where contiguous holdings of the same person extend over more than one property or section, only the largest holding is indexed. Non-contiguous holdings of the same person are indexed separately, even if in the same section or survey.

The present county, township, section, and survey boundaries are unchanged from what they were in 1874. Two names have changed: Addison has returned to its original name of Christiansburg, and Kingston is now Kings Creek.

In the villages, nearly every lot is identified. Only the city of Urbana does not give the owners' names on its plat map. In the townships, every property above 10-20 acres is identified. So the Atlas names every substantial property owner in the county outside of Urbana.

Page references given in the index are those of the original edition. The 1974 Unigraphic reproduction added blank (uncounted) pages between 56 and 57, 61-62, 62-63, 70-71, and 71-72. Plates of Mechanicsburg (p.62) and Maple Grove Cemetery (p.71), which took one page in the original span two in the reprint.
