Manager Luken insists that he be protected in the operation of the plant and insists that the sheriff do his duty and keep the mines operating. The Governor might be called in as a last resort to maintain order. Can violence in the struggle between labor and management be prevented?

Street Improvements
The Town Council has approved the funds for the gravel for the streets of the Ohio Village. After last year’s flooding of the streets in the village it was deemed important by most that the streets of the village be re-graveled. The Town Council has contracted with The Buckeye Dredging Company of Columbus to provide crushed limestone at the price of $6 per ton. This should make for less dust and make it easier to move about our small town.

AMATEUR BURGLAR
Makes Ineffectual Attempt to Blow a Safe
An ineffectual attempt to force the safe in the Village Mercantile was made last Sunday night. What the “gopher” tried to do was to pry off the outer plate of one of the doors, with the idea, seemingly, of digging out the interior filling and throwing the bolts. He drilled three holes each of 2 inch diameter, in the left edge of the right-hand door, and cut course threads in the edges. Then he inserted setscrews in the holes, and tried to pull the plate off by turning these screws. He succeeded in pulling the plate about half an inch out of line, but that was all. He could not get it any further. He broke the handle off the knob trying to shoot the bolts, and then apparently he abandoned the theory on which he had so far worked.

AMATEUR BURGLAR
An ineffectual attempt to force the safe in the Village Mercantile was made last Sunday night. What the “gopher” tried to do was to pry off the outer plate of one of the two doors, with the idea, seemingly, of digging out the interior filling and throwing the bolts. He drilled three holes each of 2 inch diameter, in the left edge of the right-hand door, and cut course threads in the edges. Then he inserted setscrews in the holes, and tried to pull the plate off by turning these screws. He succeeded in pulling the plate about half an inch out of line, but that was all. He could not get it any further. He broke the handle off the knob trying to shoot the bolts, and then apparently he abandoned the theory on which he had so far worked.

Next the burglar drilled a quarter inch hole near the combination knob, intending, possibly, to blow powder in and force an entrance that way, or else to lift the tumblers holding the bolts in place with a small pointed tool. In any event this plan was not followed to its conclusion, probably for the reason that the burglar’s working time had expired. Men of his profession are a little fastidious about working overtime.

The safe was found closed, and its contents secure, when the store opened in the morning.
A wonderful meal was recently served by Mr. Ingram at his home, the food having been prepared by his cook, Walter Anderson. A select group of friends was delighted by the unique and flavorful meal. The meal consisted of Hamburger Steak, made with a pound of raw flank steak and a small onion chopped until a perfect mince and mixed together. Seasoned to perfection with salt and pepper. The meat was then made into cakes, but quite flat and squared off (Mr. Ingram says this cooks them more evenly). They are then fried in a pan until brown. The hamburger steaks were sent to the table warm and covered in boiled onions. They were accompanied by crisp fried potatoes. The cold raw potatoes were cut into long strips, as opposed to the traditional cubes. These stripes were then thrown into boiling lard until they were a uniform light brown color. Drained and seasoned with salt they were the perfect compliment to the hamburger steaks. The small sweet rolls Mr. Anderson baked were also worthy of praise. A few guests enjoyed the surprising treat of putting the meat and onions on top of the rolls and found it was quite the taste sensation.

The meal was ended by a most delicious and buttery pound cake. The meat was found to be so good the diners wished they could put the leftovers in a bag and carry them home!

Those lucky enough to be at the table all agreed the food left them craving more! An idea was floated around that Mr. Ingram and Mr. Anderson should consider opening a restaurant together. Said one guest, when asked about the quality of the food, “I do believe if I had the opportunity to purchase food this good in the American House Hotel restaurant my wife and I would buy it by the sack!"

Animal Notes

Grasshoppers attain their greatest size in South America, where they grow to a length of five inches, and their wings spread out ten inches. It is not an uncommon thing when traveling by rail in the summertime to see a bee or wasp keeping up with the train and trying to get in at one of the windows. Japan has a breed of mice which are a puzzle to naturalists. At different periods of the day they whirl round and round for hours at a time. If a person should lift a mouse when it is whirling the animal will resume its whirling the moment it is set down. When an ostrich is preparing to hatch she scratches a hole in the ground about the size of a bushel basket. Eggs are then laid day after day and arranged around the hole. When 21 are laid the bird kicks them into the hole. According to Prof. Agassiz, there is a sea worm or annelid, the “Bololo,” at Levuka, in Fiji, which arrives in myriads on the coast on a certain day. The waters are so full of them as to resemble vermicelli soup. After laying their eggs nothing is left of them but empty skins. A true rhinoceros of the Upper Miocene, of Kansas, belonging to the genus Teleoceras, has been mounted in the American Museum of Natural History, New York. It is a complete skeleton of an aged female. It bore a horn on the end of the snout, a little nearer the end than in the existing rhinoceroses, besides having fewer teeth. A swallow is considered one of the swiftest of flying birds, and it was thought until a short time ago that no insect could escape it. A naturalist tells of an exciting instance he saw between a swallow and a dragon fly, which is among the swiftest of insects. The insect flew with incredible speed, and wheeled and dodged with such ease that the swallow, despite its utmost efforts, completely failed to overtake and capture it. Siamese women wear their arms while bathing and wash them in the river while enjoying their bath. When they have finished they go up the steps of their floating houses and, having wrapped a sheet round themselves, they wring the water out of their wet clothing and hang them up to dry.
Word to the Wise

Miss Barrington Switches to Farming
As many of you know, Florence Barrington, recently hired many clerks to run the store in her stead as she pursues her dreams of agriculture. This surprised some since she has been described by some as “lazy” and “irresponsible. She has assured us though that this choice has brought great joy to her life. Not only has she sustained herself via the crops that she has grown single-handedly, but she claims her mental horizons also have never been clearer. Miss Barrington says, “It’s as if a great veil has been lifted from my brain and allowed me to think thoughts that have never been thunk before.” The community wishes you luck in your new endeavors.

The Spinster’s Prize
We at the Telegraphic Advertiser have asked several of the women at Ohio Village why they are spinsters for a prize. We enjoyed the published answers so thoroughly, that we have awarded each of the ladies with $1.

Because I have other professions open to me in which the hours are shorter, the work more agreeable, and the pay possibly higher.

Because there are better animals to enlarge my menagerie of pets, and I find the animal man less docile than a dog, less affectionate than a cat, and less amusing than a monkey.

Miss Florence Barrington

My reason for being a spinster is answered by a quotation from the “Taming of the Shrew”: “Of all the men alive I never yet beheld that special face which I could fancy more than any other.”

“Ragtime” Music Sweeping the Country
The new ragtime music is taking the country by storm. Starting in bars and dance halls where the new musical forms that formed the basis of ragtime were featured. Ragtime has a distinct, syncopated rhythm and a fusion of musical sensibilities emanating from Negro music. Amid all of this has emerged a young new composer. His name is Scott Joplin. Scott Joplin’s exact date of birth and location is not known, though it is estimated that he was born between June 1867 and January 1868. Born to Florence Givens and Giles Joplin, Scott grew up in Texarkana, a town situated on the border between Texas and Arkansas. The Joplin’s were a musical family, with Florence being a singer and banjo player and Giles a violinist; Scott learned how to play the guitar at a young age and later took to the piano, displaying a gift for the instrument. Julius Weiss, a German music teacher who lived in Joplin’s hometown, gave the young pianist further instruction. Joplin is also a vocalist and can play the cornet as well. Joplin left home during his teen years and began work as a travelling musician. Joplin lived for a time in Sedalia, Missouri in the 1880s and in 1893 he fronted a band in Chicago during the World Fair. He later settled in Sedalia again while continuing to travel, with the Waltzes "Please Say You Will" and "A Picture of Her Face" becoming his first two published songs. Joplin studied music at Sedalia’s George R. Smith College for Negroes during the early 1890s and also worked as a teacher and mentor to other ragtime musicians. He published his first piano rag, "Original Rags" a few years ago. Just this month Joplin has turned out a new song that is sure to be a big hit. It is known as the "Maple Leaf Rag".

SYSTEMATIC SAVINGS

How Small Amounts of Money Can Be Made to Produce Really Surprising Results

The following shows how easy it is to accumulate a fortune, provided proper steps are taken. All children should be taught as early as possible the importance of saving their money, instead of becoming spendthrifts, and flitting it away. The table shows what would be the result at the end of 50 years by saving a certain amount each day and putting it at interest at the rate of six per cent.

Nearly every person wastes enough in 20 or 30 years, which, if saved and carefully invested, would make a family quite independent; but the principle of small savings has been lost sight of in the general desire to become wealthy.—Farmer’s Union

Lowell—Mr. R.T. Archer, a farmer, was in the city to receive treatment from Dr. Gallagher for a badly injured eye. While Mr. Archer was cutting hedges a large thorn struck the optic and penetrated to a considerable depth. The eyeball was badly torn and a portion of the contents escaped. The injury was a serious one, but it is thought the sight will not be totally destroyed.

Alliance—Burglars entered the residence of Rev. Dr. Lane, pastor of the First Methodist Church, Friday night, the family being absent from the city. The burglars ransacked the house, cooked a meal on the kitchen stove and before leaving set fire to the house. The flames were discovered and quick work by the fire department confined the fire to the bed-room and parlor. The fire loss will be $600.

One of the local justices of the peace asked a prisoner at the bar, “What is your name?”

Prisoner. “Sam Jackson”

Justice “Three years ago when you were up before me you said your name was John Smith.”

Prisoner “Yes, but that was an entirely different case.”

“Are you sorry that you mixed corn flour with your wheat flour?” asked a customer.

“I should say I am,” the miller admitted, “In the first place, I ought to have called it a ‘health blend’ and have put it on the market at a higher price than the pure stuff.”
