The Real President

Two men from Ohio, William McKinley and Mark Hanna, have maintained a very symbiotic relationship over the years. The friendship dates all the way back to McKinley’s days as governor and senator from Ohio. Mark Hanna and William McKinley continued their friendship as they assumed their offices in March, 1897. Senator Hanna was looking for a residence; President McKinley suggested that he stay at the Executive Mansion until he found one. According to William R. Hearst's New York Journal, “the Senator doubtless feels that if anyone has the right to make himself at home in the White House he is the man”. Hanna soon moved into the Arlington Hotel, close to the White House, where he occupied a large suite. Despite civil service reform, a president has a large number of posts to fill. It is customary to fill many of the lower level positions with party political workers. Hanna had a voice in many of McKinley’s appointments, but the President made the final decision. Hanna was allowed to recommend candidates for the majority of federal positions in Ohio. Hanna was also dominant in the South, where there were few Republican congressmen to lobby the President. He and McKinley decided on a system where many southern appointees were recommended by the state’s member of the Republican National Committee and the defeated Republican congressional candidate for the area in question. Hanna and McKinley gave few places to those who had served under Harrison, as the two presidents were not friendly. “Silver Republicans”, who had bolted the party at the convention or later, received nothing.

Hanna has hinted that he might not want to run McKinley's re-election campaign in 1900, stating that he is suffering from rheumatism. McKinley wants and needs Hanna, but on his own terms. McKinley wants to at least demonstrate that he is his own man. Time will tell when the election season for the presidency begins year after next.

Vandalism of the Worst Sort

Marion—Some fellow took it upon himself to break up the new cement sidewalk which is being put down in front of Dr. Curtis’s and Miss Hoddy’s, Second street. Each square that had been laid was pecked and broken with what appeared to be the corner of a brick. The act was a mean one; and he who did it, should it ever come to light, should suffer for it.

Council Meets
Tough Decisions in the Future

As the Ohio Village rapidly moves toward the 20th century the Town Council met the other night to discuss some important issues that will be facing our town. One of the issues facing the town is the lighting of the streets. As the town grows, so must the lighting of our streets. As most town folk are aware, the limited lighting that we now have is provided by gas lamps. If the number of lamps were doubled then the village would have adequate lighting for the foreseeable future. This would also double the amount of gas being used and also the cost of lighting the village streets. A cheaper method of lighting would be to use electricity as Westerville, Worthington, and Columbus have done. While cheaper to operate this would also entail an initial cost for installation.

Another issue that was brought up at the council meeting was the increasing appearance of horsesless carriages on our streets. The noise being generated by these vehicles is alarming. Reckless operation of these vehicles at speeds up to 35 miles per hour also represents a danger to our town’s people. The question facing the council is whether these machines should be regulated and if so, how?

The last issue that was discussed at the meeting was the providing of water and sewage disposal for the town. State law states that any village in Ohio must provide such services once that village reaches a population of 500. The village will soon reach that threshold. This would be a great step forward for those living and working in the village. Each building in the village would be able to have running water and have a water closet if one desired. The negative side to this is that the town has to find a way to pay for the installation of this service. Of course that can only be done through higher taxes that we would all have to pay.

Because of the complexities of these issues the members of the town council are asking the citizens of the Ohio Village to offer their input as to what direction they would like to see the council go in dealing with these developments. Our councilmen, Henry Klostermann, Mrs. Bertie Adams, Les Grimm, William Wurst, and TJ Bates, ask that you attend next month’s town council meeting or seek them out at their places of business.

“Devil’s Island”

Besides Ralph Delmore, who used to play in the old Athenaeum several decades ago, Emily Rigi, an actress quite well known in Columbus, is with the “Devil’s Island” company, which opens at the Great Southern this week. Miss Rigi is one of the older actresses and was with Augustin Daly in the 70’s. In this Dreyfus play Miss Rigi appears in male attire, it is said, in her career.

Vera De Nole who, in collaboration with A.D. Hall, wrote “Devil’s Island”, is also in the company.

Lowell—Mr. R.T. Archer, a farmer, was in the city to receive treatment from Dr. Gallagher for a badly injured eye. While Mr. Archer was cutting hedges a large thorn struck the optic and penetrated to a considerable depth. The eyeball was badly torn and a portion of the contents escaped. The injury was a serious one, but it is thought the sight will not be totally destroyed.

Cleveland—Rains of last Monday softened the soil and caused a cave-in on the Doan Street sewer in Glenville. Late in the afternoon a mass of earth slipped into a trench which is being dug 15 feet below the street level and buried a number of workmen, one man was dead and another seriously injured. The dead man was Louie Alupp, he was 50 years old and from Italy.
