

SCHOOL-LEVEL

School-level contests are a great way to recognize student achievement, as well as narrow down the number of entries a school is able to send to a Regional competition. Schools coordinate their own contests and recruit their own judges from the community. Teachers should contact their regional coordinator for resources, including a judge training video, sample forms, and to-do lists.

REGIONAL-LEVEL

Ohio is split into 10 regions for the preliminary competitions. Each region is broken up by county. Approximately 2,000 students compete at the regional level in Ohio. Regional event registration materials will be available online in early-December.
